Socialist in Office.
New Deal Complete.
Religious War in Mexico.
Senator Norris' Idea.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

DODGE CITY, Kan., May 23.

AMERICANS, old fashioned, surprised to find old professed socialists selected by the government to supervise and criticize plans for industrial recovery, may find comfort in Europe.

Socialism has become, in many places, an important part of the world's political machinery, and without serious damage to what Russia calls "capitalism."

RAMSAY MACDONALD, formerly a worker in the British mines, now Prime Minister, is a Socialist, always has been. In his cabinet, working with him harmoniously, are some of the most conservative men in England, including old school tories.

Socialists have been prominent in the French government for years, even "extreme Socialists."

OLD CLEMENCEAU himself, the aged Tiger who kept Germany out of France, and sent the Kaiser to Holland, was a Socialist, enemy of aristocracy and the church.

It was his hostility to the church that prevented him being chosen President of the French republic, after the big war.

Socialists, like others who believe they could make the world over and better, often find when power comes that the world is doing about as well as it can and that the wise plan is to go along with it.

PROF. RAYMOND MOLEY, who ought to know what is what in the new era, writes:

"With the passage of the stock exchange bill, the New Deal is practically complete. There is nothing that the President or any responsible member of the administration has said to indicate that any important further development of governmental authority is contemplated. This will be reassuring not only to business, but to the vast masses of people who do not want democracy to undertake too much.

"The problem now is one of administration. It is the practical business of operating the structure that has now been built. That means a problem of getting men to do it, for good men make good administration."

"THE VAST masses who do not want democracy to undertake too much" will feel that democracy has undertaken a good deal, if it really means to have business and all its details supervised, managed and controlled by the government.

Passage of the stock exchange bill means simply an effort to regulate gambling in one form.

Men that want to gamble will find other ways to do what they want to do, including stock speculation.

You can make laws, but you can't change human beings, as prohibitionists found out, and when you try to change human nature by force you make it worse, usually.

Just what government has accomplished, what effects it will produce, and how long they will last, the people, and the government itself, do not yet know.

MEXICO WITNESSES the beginning of another war against the Catholic Church, in the important state of Sonora. The governor, Rodolfo Elias Calles, has ordered every church in Sonora closed and gives the priests twelve hours to leave Sonora.

Already religious services had been reduced to an absolute minimum. Governor Calles of Sonora is the son of P. Elias Calles, who years ago closed churches in many places in Mexico.

THE CLOSING of the Sonora churches is said to have followed the sending out of three state circulars to teachers, civic officials and executives throughout Sonora, "requesting them to express views against fanaticism in religion."

Replies received having been unsatisfactory to the governor, closing of the churches and expulsion of priests followed.

THE OVERWHELMING mass of Mexico's population is deeply religious and Catholic. It is also an overwhelming population of Indian blood. What the results of an imitation of the Russian effort to extirpate religion will produce with a population similar to that of Mexico, remains to be seen.

Many believe that governing is easier and maintenance of order simpler among such a population, believing that heaven awaits them if they behave and a very hell if they fail to behave.

SENATOR NORRIS, of Nebraska, who wants presidents of the United States elected directly, by popular vote, would eliminate the electoral college, sees his bill beaten by two votes. He will introduce it again and carry it. With such elections, Nebraska and other states of moderate population may later lose their importance in presidential elections, just as they would lose power in the Senate if Senators were elected by popular vote throughout the country.

The present arrangement of two Senators for every state no matter how small, gives each state importance.

IF THE MAN who got the greatest number of votes, no matter where he got them, were elected President, a few of the big cities, New York, Chicago, etc., might outweigh in influence the serious thinking of many states like Nebraska.

POLICE SLAY BARROW, MOLL

Outlaw, Girl Shot Speeding From Trap In Alabama

SHREVEPORT, La., May 23.—(AP.)—Clyde Barrow, the Southwest's No. 1 outlaw, and his gunwoman, Bonnie Parker, were shot and killed today by Texas officers while speeding 85 miles an hour at Black Lake, about 90 miles south of here.

Barrow, wanted for more than a dozen slayings, several kidnapings and numerous bank robberies, and the Parker woman were slain on a road when they fell into a trap laid by the officers.

Frank Hamer, former Texas ranger; W. M. Gault, highway patrolman, and Ted Hinton and Bob Alcorn, Dallas County sheriffs, encountered the pair. Hamer reported:

"We killed Clyde and Bonnie at 9:15 this morning. They are at Black Lake, a hideout we had been watching for weeks.

"Clyde and Bonnie did not get to fire a shot. Their car was full of guns and ammunition, but they did not get a chance to use them."

Hamer, a former Ranger captain, is one of the best known peace officers in Texas.

BROTHER SLAIN

Recently he was commissioned as a highway patrolman to help hunt down the Southwest's most feared criminals.

Hamer and other officers said the identification of Barrow and Bonnie Parker was positive.

Bonnie, Barrow's companion on many of his forays, was charged by officers with active participation in the gunplay.

She was believed to have been with Clyde and his brother, Marvin, when a posse cornered the gang near Dexter, Ia., July 24, 1933. Clyde and Bonnie eluded officers, but Marvin was fatally wounded.

DEATH CAR WRECKED

ARCADIA, La., May 23.—(AP.)—B. P. Theus, of Arcadia, returning from the scene of the slaying, stated that when fired on, Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker were traveling about 85 miles an hour and the woman had a machine gun in her lap.

There were only two persons in the car, according to Theus, Arcadia citizen, who went to the scene soon after the killing.

The bodies were left in the car until the arrival of Dr. J. L. Wade, Bienville Parish Coroner.

The car careened into an embankment at the left side of the road and was wrecked.

The pair apparently had gone through Gibsland and was heading southwest on the Gibsland-Castor road when the officers called on the speeding pair to halt.

Soviet 'Air Train' Makes Lengthy Hop

KOKTEBEL, Crimea, May 23.—(AP.)—Soviet Russia's "air train" completed the first long distance flight of such a conveyance in the history of world aviation today, landing here at noon.

Koktebel is 808 miles from Moscow, where the flight started.

Dillinger Moll, Doctor Convicted As Outlaw Aides

MRS. EVELYN FRECHETTE

DILLINGER MOLL CONVICTED

ST. PAUL, May 23.—(AP.)—Evelyn Frechette, French-Indian sweetheart of John Dillinger, and Dr. Clayton May, Minneapolis physician, who treated the outlaw's gunshot wound, today were convicted by a Federal Court jury of conspiracy to hide the notorious outlaw.

Mrs. Augusta Salt, Minneapolis nurse tried jointly, was acquitted.

Miss Frechette was immediately sentenced by Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye to two years in the Women's Reformatory at Alderston, W. Va., and fined $1,000, while Dr. May was sentenced to two years in a Federal prison and fined $1,000. The maximum penalty under the law is two years and a fine of $10,000.

Both were granted a week's stay of sentence.

MURDER RIDE VICTIM FOUND

Mystery Cloaks Body Discovered in Squirrel Hill

Shot twice through the head at close range, possibly as he sat in the front seat of an automobile, the body of Morris Kaufmann, 34, of Philadelphia or Baltimore, was found today in a vacant lot in Covode street in the exclusive Squirrel Hill section.

The victim, identified through police fingerprints, was expensively dressed and apparently had been taken on a gangland death ride.

Kaufmann was arrested in Philadelphia in 1926 on a robbery charge, police identification files revealed. Detectives wired authorities there for details of his past record in an effort to determine what gang affiliations, if any, Kaufmann may have had.

He had not been robbed. A gold wrist watch, $51 in cash had not been touched.

BEHIND BOULDER

The blood-covered body was found concealed behind a huge boulder in the lot, which adjoins the Wendover Apartments, 5562 Hobart street, Squirrel Hill, by two employes of the apartment house who were on their way to work.

A pair of rimless glasses, smashed and blood-smeared, were found on the sidewalk near the lot.

Homicide detectives were handicapped in getting their investigation under way due to the lack of complete identification for several hours after the body had been found.

He had been tentatively identified earlier as Jack Klein, of Baltimore or Philadelphia, from a registration slip from the Fairfax Hotel, 4614 Fifth avenue.

TRACE AUTO

Detective Lieut. Frank Ferris, head of the Homicide Squad, said he was attempting to trace the automobile, known to have been driven by Kaufmann when he registered at the hotel about midnight Sunday and when he checked out about 8 p. m. Tuesday.

No trace has as yet been found of the car, Ferris said. He also indicated that a mysterious woman companion might be drawn into the case.

The bullets pierced Kaufmann's head behind the left ear. They had first passed through his left hand, indicating that he had thrown up his hands in a gesture of protection.

TRAIL OF BLOOD

Deputy Coroner W. F. Jackson said that the body had been brought to the Covode lot in an automobile, tracks of which were found near the curb, with blood leading to the boulder.

At the morgue Dr. J. W. McMeans, assisted by John P. Black, superintendent and X-ray expert, conducted an autopsy, and James L. Davidson, assistant coroner and ballistic expert, endeavored to reconstruct the killing.

DOCTOR OFFERS CLUE

Lieut. Ferris declared that he believed Kaufmann had been slain in some distant part of the county and the body taken to the Covode street lot for concealment. He would not amplify his statement, however.

Dr. A. H. Weinberger, of 5526 Hobart street, one of the first to view the body this morning, said that while taking a walk about 1.40 a. m., today he had noticed an automobile, its lights extinguished, parked near the lot.

Robert Graff, of 2130 Wightman street, excercising his dog about the same hour, told police a simllar story.

Two policemen, walking their beat, passed the lot about 40 minutes earlier, Lieut. Ferris said, but said no car had been parked there at that time. Kaufmann's watch had stopped at 1:45.

13 Dead on Trail Of Dillinger Parole

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP.)—One year ago today John Dillinger was paroled from the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City for his first criminal offense against society—armed robbery.

Today he is the nation's most sought desperado. The Dillinger trail is splotched with 13 deaths either attributed to his quick shooting gang or to police officers battling to capture them.

Woman Locks Baby Son In Home, Takes Poison

A diary which told of seeing her husband with another woman, police reported, today revealed the story behind the attempted suicide of a heartbroken North Side mother.

Found unconscious in the street, half a block from her home, Mrs. Bertha Lhota, 28, of 938 Iten street, was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital, suffering from effects of poison she had swallowed a short time before. Her condition is said to be critical.

Before leaving home she had locked her 2-year-old son, "Sonny," in the house.

Fastened to her dress police said they found a 13-page account of her marital troubles. Her mother, the diary stated, had refused to hear her story, saying:

"You made your bed, now lie in it."

So she poured out her woe in writing.

Her last entry, written just before she took the poison, read:

"I have been wondering all along where Eddie was spending his time but tonight I found out. I saw him with a girl in an automobile down on Federal street at 9:30. I would never believe it unless I had seen it for myself. I can't go on any more without Ed's love."

Police also found a letter written to her brother-in-law and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Lhota 3714 Hiawatha street. To them she wrote:

"Please forgive me for what I am going to do. I want you to take Sonny and bring him up with your children.—Bertha."

The husband, Edward Lhota, is a milk truck driver, police said.

The Darrow Report

THE REPORT of the Darrow committee on the NRA need not have been withheld from publication until the Recovery Administration's reply was ready for simultaneous issue.

The report answers itself.

It is a frantic, fanatical, socialistic and almost anarchistic attack upon the administration and its purposes.

An important and needed inquiry has been perverted to the service of Clarence Darrow's hates, prejudices and long trumpeted hostility to the ways of ordered society.

In the operation of the NRA there is undoubtedly an impact upon the small producer and the independent merchant which should be lightened and, if possible, removed. It is a real defect in the National Recovery Act and calls for dispassionate approach, and correction, if possible.

DARROW, as the chairman of the committee appointed to examine this question, has used his position to arraign the measures of the administration generally and with such bias, exaggeration and distortion that he has discredited himself and all the things he stands for.

As a matter of fact, instead of injuring the administration, which was his obvious desire, he has conferred a distinct benefit upon it.

He has made its policies, some of which are disquieting enough, more acceptable in the minds of the sane and sober citizens of the nation. Even the most disturbing of the administration's proposals seem sound and conservative by comparison.

This so-called board of review, which is nothing less than a board of defamation and detraction, has done a service to the nation as well.

Mr. Darrow will gain no commendation or support for his fantastic theories among the vast majority of our judicious people.

THE ADMINISTRATION should learn one thing from this incident, and that is not to create a lot of boards to formulate opinions which the administration should possess for itself.

Mr. Roosevelt was elected to be President of the United States, to carry out the provisions of the Democratic platform, to put his own progressive ideas into operation, and not to LEARN FROM or LISTEN TO the freaks and fanatics of politics.

No one cares what Mr. Darrow's opinions are. No one wishes to hear them.

He is known to be an unbalanced extremist, a violent and erratic person.

Why should the administration desire his views when the public does not desire his opinions or have any confidence in them?

Why should the administration appoint boards and commissions of this kind?

Why should it depend in any way on SOCIALISTS and COMMUNISTS and ANARCHISTS?

THE PEOPLE did not elect THEM to put their ideas into operation and never will elect them.

The people have no patience with these fanatics.

The people are disgusted that they should be allowed to encumber the columns of the newspapers with their propaganda.

It is, after all and to some degree, Mr. Roosevelt's own fault that these extremists are in a position to speak as dignified advisers of the administration.

FORTUNATELY their violence deprives them of all credence and authority.

FORTUNATELY this report of the board of review will have no effect except to discredit its signers and strengthen its opponents.

BUT THE PRESIDENT should learn from this incident not to depend on people of this unbalanced character.

Let him exercise his own judgment, pursue his own policies.

IT WAS FOR THAT HE WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

HOW DID SOCIALISM CREEP INTO DARROW REPORT? . .

BULLETIN.

Selection of the Federal Court jury to hear the case of State Senator James J. Coyne and 11 co-defendants on vote fraud charges will not get under way until tomorrow morning. This was agreed upon late this afternoon by counsel and United States Judge Schoonmaker.

State Senator James J. Coyne, no longer the all-powerful political leader of Allegheny County, today faced the most important crisis of his public life.

The Oakland Republican and 11 of his followers were scheduled to go on trial in Federal Court on charges that they conspired to steal the Congressional election in the Thirty-second Congressional District in November, 1932.

The trial was booked for today when Judge F. P. Schoonmaker late yesterday refused the request of government prosecutors for a postponement until Monday.

State Senator Coyne, today in U. S. Court with 11 of his followers facing trial on charges of conspiracy to steal the Congressional election in the Thirty-Second Congressional District, November, 1932.

CHARGES LINKED

Prosecutor James I. Marsh denied that the postponement had been asked because of James P. Bailey's charges that Mayor McNair and Democratic Nominee-to-Congress Theodore L. Moritz, his secretary, had tried to persuade him to change his testimony to favor Senator Coyne.

Department of Justice agents are investigating these charges and their findings probably will be placed before a federal grand jury after the Coyne trial.

With the trial of Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, the McKees Rocks Assemblyman, and five defendants ready for the jury this afternoon, preparations were made to pick a jury for the Coyne case.

The Steedle group scored another victory today when, after the defense had rested, Judge Schoonmaker directed the jury to acquit Robert S. S. Haus, Mt. Lebanon beer dealer, who was one of those charged with conspiring to steal the election of 1932.

MISTRIAL DENIED

During the closing arguments by First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh in the Steedle trial, Defense Counsel John A. Metz jumped to his feet and asked for tht withdrawal of a juror, wnich would have ended the trial with no decision.

Metz objected to a reference by Marsh to certain state laws. His motion was refused.

Marsh, referring to Supreme Court Justice James B. Drew, who appeared as a character witness for Steedle, told the jury:

"We were not over-awed because the justice appeared as a character witness."

Marsh began his closing argument when court convened after the noon recess. Metz, winding up for the defense, declared that the government had failed to show who "manhandled" the ballots and attacked the testimony of various prosecution witnesses.

When the Steedle trial began there were 12 defendants. As closing arguments were made by counsel and Judge Schoonmaker

The body of August Miller, 65, of 5211 Friendship avenue, was found hanging in his butcher shop, at 4114 Main street, Bloomfield, shortly before 8 a. m. today, according to a report to the Coroner. The case was reported as apparently suicide, the man having been in ill health.

DOCTOR DEFIED BY MARSHALL

Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall, disregarding his physician's orders, reported for work as usual today.

Marshall is suffering from a nervous condition of the stomach.

He said his doctor had advised him to remain home and rest up for a few days. But the superintendent was at his desk today.

ROOSEVELT STANDS BY NRA DESPITE DARROW ATTACK

ANOTHER YEAR OF LIFE FOR BLUE EAGLE

President to Accept Verdict of Public On Final Fate

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Roosevelt will stand by the Blue Eagle of NRA for the second year of its emergency flight.

This was definitely ascertained today, amid the whirl of controversy over the Darrow report coupled with word that the Chief Executive is eager to hear debate from the country as to the future of NRA after June, 1935.

The President has told inquirers he is keeping an open mind on just how far the government should go a year hence in seeking a permanent arrangement between the government, industry and labor.

He plans to survey the results in his tour across the country this summer. In the meantime, he intends to stand pat on the general principles of the National Recovery Administration.

New legislation would be necessary to carry on the NRA in its present form after mid-June next year. Any such action would be handed to the next Congress.

NRA OPPOSITION BUSY

The opposition faction on Capitol Hill, however, showed no signs today of relaxing its criticism.

Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, who proposed the Darrow Review Board's inquiry, and who, yesterday, asserted the NRA was allowing monopolies to become "more powerfully entrenched than ever before," today demanded in a Senate speech that Congress remain in session until it is assured of what he called infamous abuses under NRA. He asserted there was "no sincere effort to enforce the codes against big offenders."

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho who stood with Nye for the Review Board investigation, is seeking an opportune time to urge his bill for restoring the anti-trust laws.

Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, planned to press his resolution for an investigation of the NRA. Should this substantiate the findings of the Darrow board, he would have the House vote for the "immediate abolishment" of the NRA.

ROOSEVELT ACTION SEEN

There were signs today that President Roosevelt might take a definite hand soon to cut through the confusion on NRA which the Darrow board's condemnation intensified.

It appeared probable, however, that he would first let the immediate hullaballoo subside or swing into definite lines, and allow revisionary policies within NRA to be perfected.

It does not now appear likely that the Darrow board will quit silently at the end of the month, as suggested, on the theory that its work is ended. It has plans all made to keep on going.

Hugh S. Johnson, meanwhile, has put up to the Chief Executive new policies which are intended to unload the baffling enforcement problem of service trade codes; reduce the supervisory effort of government, now being dissipated over more than 400 separate codes; and, by simplifying or correcting the more abusable price maintenance provisions, reduce materially the anti-monopoly cry.

TUGWELL HERE MUM ON NRA

Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, and known as "No. 1 Braintruster," hasn't seen the Darrow report, but evinced surprise that the noted lawyer should speak in favor of socialized ownership and control of industry.

Prof. Tugwell was en route to Washington from Kansas City by plane. He missed connections here and was forced to continue the journey by rail.

He declined to comment on socialization of industry, which he predicted in a recent book, saying:

"Why should I? I have nothing to do with NRA."

Jobless League Continues Protest

Hearing of the protests of the Unemployed Citizens' League against delay in clothing relief and the food allotment discontinuance will be resumed today before City Council. The league is seeking a city appropriation of $600,000 to carry relief until the end of the year.

A New Officer On the Beat :-: By QUIN HALL

THOMAS WARNS OF FASCISM

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 23.—(AP.)—Norman Thomas told an audience of bankers yesterday that Fascism is threatened by the activities of deputy sheriffs in Christian County, where he was prevented from making a speech yesterday. Thomas said:

"Deputy sheriffs in Christian County are paid by the Peabody Coal Company and are recruited from New York and Chicago gangs."

Freedom of speech, the press and assembly are threatened by such occurrences, the former Socialist candidate for President declared at a luncheon club meeting attended by delegates at the Illinois Bankers' Association convention.

He denounced Deputy Sheriff Joseph H. Betterton, who threw tear gas bombs and stopped his speech at Taylorville.

Thomas said:

"There is great danger in a situation where sole enforcement of the law rests with employes of a coal corporation. Most of the deputy sheriffs bear the marks of gangsters except that they wear a badge given them by the Peabody Coal Company."

Roosevelt Meets NRA Quiz in Latin

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt resorted to Latin today when asked at his press conference for comment upon Clarance Darrows report on NRA. He replied with a smile:

"Res ispe loquitor (the thing speaks for itself."

He said he had not seen Darrow since early this month, and at that time Darrow said he thought he could finish his work by May 31.

Darrow, Johnson Conference Denied

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(INS.)—Reports that Clarence Darrow and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson were to have a conference today concerning the Darrow board's blistering indictment of the NRA in its recent report met with denial by both parties.

Darrow said he had no intention of seeing the General, Miss Frances Robinson, Johnson's secretary, said it would be impossible for the General to see Darrow as he would be "out" all day.

TRUCKERS CALL CODE MEETING

In preparation for the operation of the trucking code to start Monday, the Pittsburgh chapter of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association has called a special truckers' meeting for 8 p. m. Friday in Homewood Carnegie Library.

Offices have been opened at 1013 Grant Building for registering "for hire" vehicles, under the provisions of the NRA code.

Failure to register is a violation of the code, according to Hugh G. Walsh, secretary of the Pittsburgh chapter of the truckers' association.

Truck Crash Fire Fatal to Driver

TRENTON, N. J., May 23.—(AP.)—Fire which broke out immediately following a head-on truck smashup early today on the Brunswick pike, near Lakelands, took the life of a Maryland driver and destroyed his truck.

The victim was Arthur Lawrence, 24, of Fruitland, Md. The driver of the other truck escaped injury.

U. S. Selling Pearls Of Film Director

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—(AP.)—Unset pearls, which government agents said Clarence Brown, film director, had purchased in France and neglected to declare on returning to the United States, will be sold today at auction by the United States Marshal's office.

SINCLAIR FLAYS DARROW REVIEW

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—John F. Sinclair, dissenting member of Clarence Darrow's National Recovery Review Board, said today that the majority of the board, dominated by its chairman, had in the course of its hearings interested itself only in destructive criticism of the NRA.

It had no proper effort to learn all sides of the controversies over the effects of the codes, he declared.

Meeting reporters at the Bankers' Club, Sinclair asserted:

"I have attended many meetings, but I have never seen such improper procedure as took place during the hearings by the board. Critics of the codes were permitted to testify for hours, while witnesses who endeavored to answer them were given scant consideration."

New York Bakers Return Blue Eagles

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 23.—(AP.)—Declaring the government has not lived up to its part of the bakers' code, delegates to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the New York State Association of Retail Bakers, voted unanimously last night to return their Blue Eagles to Washington.

Before signing the NRA code, the bakers said, many were operating at a loss, and since the agreement, many have gone bankrupt.

Giant of A. E. F. Dies in West Va.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 23.—(AP.)—John Lindsey Carroll, the largest white man in the A. E. F., died a few days ago, and 1,000 persons attended military services for him at the little town of Smithfield, in Wetzel County, last Sunday.

Carroll, who was 46, stood 6 feet 9 inches and weighed 300 pounds. He wore a No. 14 shoe.

SWEATSHOP AID LAID TO DARROW

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—Sidney Hillman, a labor leader, contended today that the Darrow Review Board is "scandalously and disgracefully" making itself a mouthpiece for sweatshop operators.

Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, made his statement at a reconvened hearing on the cotton garment code, which had broken up earlier in the day because of a row among its members over his questioning of a witness who complained of NRA.

Hillman said "it will be the greatest disservice to the country if this board permits sweatshops to use it to stir sentiment against the NRA, and does not permit labor to cross-examine and develop the facts."

Jeweler Accused In Robbery Plot

WILKES-BARRE, May 23.—(AP.)—A bench warrant for the arrest of Nat Meyer, Central City jeweler, was issued today after he was accused in court of planning a $23,000 diamond robbery last February at his own jewelry store.

The accusation was made by William Trefry, arrested in New York City two months ago as the actual robber.

Bootlegging Grows, Pa. Probe Ordered

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(AP.)—Judge George A. Welsh, asserting that "bootlegging seems to have about reached the level of prohibition days," has ordered a federal grand jury to investigate possible official connivance in Eastern Pennsylvania counties.

PRESIDENT ASKS LABOR BILL SPEEDING

Senator Announces Wagner Act to Be Reported Soon

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt told Chairman Walsh of the Senate Labor Committee today he hoped for action on the Wagner labor board bill this session. Senator Walsh (Dem.), told reporters after his talk with the President that the committee would report out the controversial legislation within a day or two.

He added the President would be guided by the decisions of Congress on the controversial features, but that the chief executive wanted a labor board established to take over the divided labor activities of the NRA, the Labor Board, and the Department of Labor.

Walsh said the President preferred to keep the size of the board to five members.

He explained the legislation as it now stands would not forbid the organization of company unions but would restrict contributions by employers to collective bargaining groups.

PRESIDENT ACTS IN OIL CHEAT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Roosevelt hopes that Congress will greatly strengthen federal regulations in the oil industry before adjournment.

To that end, he has addressed a letter to the chairman of the Senate Mining Committee and the chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee citing figures supplied him by Oil Administrator Ickes that 149,000 barrels of "illegal" oil are being produced monthly.

Production is greatly in excess of that fixed by the petroleum code.

Walkout Sure Unless Union Demands Are Met, Chiefs Say

One hundred thousand steel workers throughout the country today were preparing to strike so that they will not "be caught short-handed" if demands for union recognition are not met on June 10, their president said today.

International President M. F. Tighe, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, in an exclusive interview with the Sun-Telegraph, explained that the workers are hoping for the best, but are taking precautionary measures, too.

From other leaders of the steel workers, it was learned that the workers have already won the enthusiastic sympathy and promise of support from other fields of labor. Among these was a promise by a group of truckers' unions that in the event of a strike they will not haul provisions, materials or strike-breakers, according to Clarence Irwin, of Youngstown, one of a group of young union men who conferred with Tighe and other officials yesterday.

BACKERS LINED UP

Further alignment of other industries with the steel workers is expected to result from a meeting in Cleveland on Sunday, Irwin said. To that meeting representatives of the auto industry, coal miners, rubber trade and railroad men have been invited in an attempt to secure their wholehearted support in the event of a strike.

Recommendations of tactics to be used in the event of a strike was laid before Tighe and the other international officers yesterday by Irwin and fellow leaders.

Representing a "committee of 10" named to carry out the intensive campaign, this group included William J. Long, militant Weirton leader; William J. Spang, of Duquesne; Charles Greenwood and Earle J. Forbeck, of McKeesport.

WORKERS' WATCHWORD

The watchword of the workers, according to these prominent leaders, will be 'no compromise and no delay if there is a strike."

Beneath the demands for union recognition, the core of dissatisfaction in the workers' minds is the Weirton Steel case which has dragged along unsettled for months, Tighe said.

In Weirton the workers' union, through Long, president of the Weirton Lodge, presented to Weirton Steel Company its demand for recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. An answer by June 10 was asked.

The demand was presented to P. Q. Millsop, vice president of the Weirton Steel Company, who was noncommittal regarding the firm's stand.

WANT 'FAIR BREAKS'

Feeling runs high among the workers that the steel code has not given the men a fair "break," Tighe said. Explaining that the international officers can only carry out the orders of the workers themselves, he said:

"We are going to appeal to K. M. Simpson, divisional administrator of the steel code, to correct the present difficulties in the revision of the code now being made.

"No decision regarding a strike can be reached until after June 10, because we have given the steel men until that date to give union recognition. After that date, it will be in the hands of the men to decide what they want to do and order us to carry out their wishes."

Weather Conditions

High pressure is influencing the weather over much the greater portion of the country this morning, with crests of high over the Ohio Valley states and over Saskatchewan, 30.14 and 30.34 inches, respectively. The low pressure that passed over this section yesterday produced light to moderately heavy showers over this section, and over most of the Atlantic Coast states during yesterday and last night. The skies are clear nearly everywhere this morning. The high pressure caused a change to cooler weather over the eastern states, but no frost was reported this morning except in Northern Indiana. In Saskatchewan and Manitoba temperatures as low as 30 degrees occurred this morning.

PONDER FARLEY 'JOB DIVORCE'

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—Speculation as to the length of Postmaster General Farley's tenure as Democratic chairman was reopened today by a new divorce between a national committeeman and a federal job.

Both President Roosevelt and Farley have agreed the latter would abandon his political chairmanship as soon as a successor is found. Democratic chieftains are looking around, chiefly westward.

Horatio J. Abbott, of Michigan, was the latest national committeeman with a federal job to send in his resignation. But unlike most of the others, he left his government post and today still was on the committee.

No action was taken in the cases of Judge James H. Wilkerson and Walter C. Lindley, whose conduct of similar cases was also investigated.

The formal impeachment charges will be presented to the House probably tomorrow.

OIL INSTITUTE HEAD URGES SALES TAX

Manufacturers' Levy Proposed to Ease Burden of Billion

A general manufacturers' sales tax was held to be the solution to the nation's taxation problem by Axtell J. Byles, president of the American Petroleum Institute, at the institutes' fourth mid-year meeting in the William Penn Hotel today.

The oil industry's tax burden was estimated by Baird H. Markham, director of the American Petroleum Industries Committee, at more than a billion dollars, of which more than $700,000,000 is derived from motor fuel.

Attacking "excessive taxation," Markham accused the federal and state governments of "gouging."

DOLLAR DIVIDED 3 WAYS

Byles said:

"The answer to the taxation problem is a general manufacturers' sales tax, which has aptly been described as 'painless taxation.' An exceedingly modest tax, spread over all commodities, would relieve the purchaser of gasoline and the oil industry of a part of this unjust, discriminatory and destructive burden. Neither the present tax burden nor the increase in cost of distribution is to the interest of the public any more than it is in the interest of the oil industry."

Mr. Byles said the "gasoline dollar" could be divided three ways, and that one-third goes for taxes. He said the trend is toward increased taxation and marketing costs, and that a continuance would destroy the industry.

SUPPORTS DISNEY BILL

The Institute president advocated enactment of the Disney bill giving Interior Secretary Ickes power to co-ordinate control of crude oil production in order to balance it with consumer demand. He added:

"So long as this power remains in the hands of the present secretary, we have confidence that it will be administered fairly and intelligently both from the standpoint of the public and of the industry."

Markham told members of the board that high tax levies discourage consumption and evasion of taxes by "wildcat" operators creates unfair competition.

He urged the industry to take more intensive interest in governmental affairs, not merely in self-protection, but as a force for good government, saying:

"It can discover the roots of tax and legislation evils, and weed them out; it can attack the bad laws and effect their repeal and it can obtain for itself, and for all industries, proper legislation in government."

3 FREED IN BODY DIGGING

Three men have been acquitted of a charge of feloniously removing a body from a grave in St. Adelbert's cemetery, Carrick.

They are John Sitar and Joseph Stowion, both of 1600 Bingham street; and John Voetak, of 1700 Warton street, acquitted on a verdict directed by Visiting Judge R. P. Sherwood yesterday in Criminal Court.

According to the story told in court, Sitar had purchased a cemetery lot without his wife's knowledge. While he was ill in a hospital, their infant daughter died and was buried by the wife's instructions in another lot.

When Sitar was able to leave the hospital, it was testified, he and Stowion and Voetak, who were in his employ, went to the cemetery in daylight and moved a casket which he thought contained the body of his child to his own lot.

It later developed that instead of moving the body of his own child he had transferred the body of Sophis Hudzicki, 10, daughter of Mrs. Nellie Hudzicki.

When Mrs. Hudzicki ordered the body moved back, it was testified, Sitar and his two aides again placed the casket in the wrong grave.

Cummings Joins Fight Over NRA and Trusts

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Department of Justice jumped into the fray today to prosecute any violations of anti-trust laws arising under sanction of NRA codes.

This may prove one of the most serious conflicts within the administration, observers declared. Attorney General Cummings told Universal Service:

"We are making an independent investigation of the suspension of anti-trust laws in NRA codes.

"This is a calm, dispassionate, judicial inquiry. It may be 30 to 60 days before we are prepared to announce what action may be taken.

"You can be sure that we will vigorously prosecute any violations of the laws prohibiting monopoly, monopolistic practices and agreements in restraint of trade."

The investigation by the prosecuting arm of the federal government is being conducted independently of a similar inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission.

NRA officials said today they are prepared to meet any legal tests and to defend the codes against complaints they permit monopolies benefiting favored interests. However, there was an undisguised air of tension at NRA headquarters.

Police Here Start Drive Against Panhandlers

Strike Rioting Renewed In Toledo, Scores Hurt

TOLEDO, O., May 23.—(AP.)—While two observers for the state militia looked on, automobiles bringing employes into the plant of the Electric Auto-Lite Company were stoned today following last night's rioting in which scores were injured.

Motorcycle police rode into the crowd of more than 300 and forced them back from the plant entrances.

The National Guard observers, Col. E. W. Fuhr of Columbus and Brig. Gen. L. S. Connelly of Cleveland, said the troops would not be sent in unless the situation gets more serious.

More than 200 persons engaged in hand-to-hand fighting in last night's rioting, after police tried to prevent strikers from stoning automobiles bringing day shift workers from the plant.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 23.—(AP.)—The violence-punctured strike of Minneapolis truck drivers, to which one death and scores of lesser casualties are charged, was ordered ended today.

Terms of a settlement came from the Regional Labor Advisory Board following a bloody clash between strikers and police. C. Arthur Lyman, vice president and general manager of the American Ball Company, suffered a fractured skull which caused his death. He was assisting police. Twenty police were injured.

MAIL ROBBER HELD AS SUSPECT IN JUNE ROBLES KIDNAPING

CHILD'S CLUE TRAPS MAN AT MINE

Former Convict Served Term in $2,000,000 Train Holdup

TUCSON, Ariz., May 23.—(AP.) An alleged participant in the nation's largest mail train robbery was questioned by uthorities here today concerning the $15,000 kidnaping of June Robles, 6-year-old heiress.

The suspect, Joe Newton, refused to make any statements regarding the kidnaping, in which the ransom was not paid, or the robbery of a Medford, Okla., bank, the charge on which he was arrested here last night.

Officers said Newton had been under surveillance for several days, during which time he had made nocturnal visits here from a mine in Sonora, Mex., a locality in which an intensive search was conducted for the Robles girl before she was found.

2 MILLION ROBBERY

Sheriff's investigators said Newton made telephone calls to Tucson from the old Robles ranch between here and Sasabe at the border. They said they had learned he lived at the mine, 45 miles below the international line, with a brother, Tull.

With three other brothers, Willie, Willis and Jesse, Department of Justice records here disclosed, Joe served a federal prison sentence for participation in a $2,000,000 train mail robbery at Rondout, Ill., in 1924.

CHILD GIVES CLUE

Sheriff John Belton, of Pima County, said June had given him some information regarding the men who held her captive in a desert pit about 10 miles south of here and he indicated this information had led to putting Newton under surveillance.

June was kidnaped as she returned home from school here April 25 and found in the desert 19 days later by Pima County Attorney Clarence Houston and her uncle, Carlos G. Robles, assistant county attorney. They were directed to her hiding spot by an anonymous letter from Chicago.

MOTHER UPSETS MILLEN BOYS

DEDHAM, Mass., May 23.—(AP.)—Murton and Irving Millen today demanded that their mother be taken from the witness stand in Dedham court. They called Miss Ida Fendel, of defense counsel, to the prisoners' cage and asked her to take their mother, who was weeping, from the stand immediately. Miss Fendel explained the mother would conclude her testimony soon and the sons consented to let her finish.

Describing Irving's actions as a baby, the mother said he was always falling out of his high chair. As he grew older, he would always do what anyone told him. She said:

"If you said: 'Climb up on the roof' he'd do it, and Murton—why Murton was a prince in Irving's eyes. He would do whatever Murton told him."

Murton, she testified, was subject to fits of melancholy and rage since childhood.

2 PLEAD GUILTY TO KIDNAP PLOT

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP.)—James Lacey and Benjamin Wolfram pleaded guilty today to plotting the abduction of Emanuel Philip Adler, banker and publisher of Davenport, Iowa, who escaped two sluggers who meant to kidnap him from the Morrison Hotel February 21.

A third defendant, Edward Kindredge, pleaded not guilty to the conspiracy charge and was ordered to trial May 29. Lacey and Wolfram will be sentenced at that time.

Fred Mayo, one of the two who lay in wait for Adler and attacked him as he stepped from his hotel room, had been nabbed by the police a few minutes after the kidnaping attempt and committed suicide by hanging in his cell the next day. He had confessed the plot, and directed police to Lacey as his confederate.

Y., under parole for three years to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children of New York.

The baby boy, now a patient in the New Kensington Hospital, was placed in the care of Mrs. Elizabeth Caruthers, Westmoreland County Children's Bureau director, until adoption arrangements can be made.

WOODBURY, N. J., May 23.—(INS.)—Accused of attempting to kidnay a 20-year-old farm girl, two youths were held in Gloucester County Jail today in default of $5,000 bail each.

Fliers Speeding To Writer Ill on Honeymoon Ship

International News Service.

BALBOA CANAL ZONE, May 23.—Engaged in a dramatic race with death, two United States Navy seaplanes, built for destructive war but suddenly rushed into action upon an errand of mercy, neared the uninviting and almost uninhabited Galapagos Island group 500 miles off the west coast of South America this afternoon after a forced flight from the naval air base here.

They were carrying a surgeon and medical supplies to the aid of William A. Robinson, traveler and adventurer, who is critically ill of appendicitis aboard his little honeymoon boat, the Svaap.

Robinson was reported in wireless messages to have "taken a turn for the worse" during the night and to be in a very serious condition.

The Navy planes started their flight of approximately 1,000 miles at 6:30 a. m.

Steaming along far behind the aircraft is the United States destroyer Hale, which on orders from Washington, passed through the canal from the Atlantic side last night and immediately set out for the Galapagos to refuel the planes if necessary.

The Hale will not reach the islands until sometime Friday. If the two medical officers aboard the seaplanes decide upon an immediate operation Robinson probably will be brought back to Balboa aboard the speedy destroyer.

The race with death was ordered after Robinson's socially prominent Chicago bride, Florence Crane Robinson, had flagged the fishing trawler Santa Cruz and had its skipper radio the naval station at Balboa that her husband was stricken with acute appendicitis.

JURY DEBATES FAZIO CASE

The jury trying Phillip Fazio, Swissvale beer garden proprietor, and Nick Consolo, of Wilkinsburg, in connection with a Swissvale bombing, retired today to consider its verdict.

The defendants have been on trial all week before Judge Samuel H. Gardner. They are charged with bombing the home of Dr. George C. Seitz, Swissvale Councilman, who has been warring on racketeers.

Fazio, who less than three years ago was acquitted in the same court room of the barrel murder of beer runner William Gregory, went on the witness stand and made a complete denial of the bombing charge.

He declared he never left his beer garden the night of April 24 until he heard the bomb explosion nearby and ran out to see what it was. Consolo's defense was also an alibi.

RYAN ACCUSES YOUNG BRIDE AS TRIFLER

Countess, 19, Declared To Have Deceived Rich Socialite

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Charges that his 19-year-old bride of two months, the former Countess Mariette Wurmbrand-Stuppach, was not a "chaste and virtuous woman" at the time of their marriage, were made by wealthy Clendenin Ryan, Jr., in his annulment suit complaint filed in Supreme Court yesterday.

Filing of the complaint cleared up the mystery of Ryan's charges, kept secret since first papers in the suit were filed, several weeks ago, six weeks after the couple was married in St. Patrick's Cathedral with the top strata of New York society in attendance.

With the complaint was filed Mrs. Ryan's demand for a bill of particulars.

PLOT CHARGED

Ryan charged the countess "conspired" with others to persuade him to marry her. He said she told him it was essential they marry quickly because her mother insisted she marry into the nobility and was opposed to an American marriage.

Then Ryan, secretary to Mayor LaGuardia, said he asked the young countess several questions, in reply to which she told him:

That she was a chaste and virtuous woman.

That she loved and honored him and would continue to do so if he married her.

That she and her family were wealthy and owned considerable property in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia.

Ryan charged the countess' family has little or no property, and said the countess' mother, far from opposing an American marriage, had expressed a wish that her daughter marry a wealthy American.

SCION OF MILLIONAIRE

Ryan is a grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, who left an estate valued at approximately $135,000,000.

Just before the complaint was filed, making its contents public property, the countess angrily told reporters she is continually under surveillance of five detectives employed by Ryan.

Later the countess admitted she was engaged one month last summer to Baron Buhoeveden, of Germany. They could not get along, she said. In August of last year she was engaged, also for a month, to Count Vladimir Mitrovsky. She said her mother did not like the count and "took me away."

MONTOUR AIMS AT MIDLAND

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 23.—Indications that the Montour Railroad, which will provide an Ohio River outlet for the Youngstown streel district, may swing its branch line from Beaver Creek, here, into Midland, Pa., another mill town, were seen today when a 40-acre farm on a hillside above Smith's Ferry, Pa., was acquired. About $30,000 is said to have been involved in the deal which was negotiated by James E. White, of Pittsburgh, who has represented the Montour in acquiring rights of way between Negley, O., and the Ohio River.

An option is also said to have been obtained by the Montour interests on additional acreage.

AMELIA EARHART PICTURED ON HER PITTSBURGH VISIT

Mrs. Putnam, the flier, in Pittsburgh today as she confided that she, too, may enter the coming MacRobertson international air race from London to Australia. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

TURNER ON WAY FOR SPEED HOP

Col. Roscoe Turner, the nation's ranking speed pilot, who holds both records for coast-to-coast flying, will return to Pittsburgh tomorrow to make final plans for his speed flight to Chicago Saturday.

He hopes to establish a new speed record between the two cities, carrying official messages to the opening of A Century of Progress Exposition as representative of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

He will carry a message of greetings from former Gov. John S. Fisher, president of the Chamber, to Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, and from Pittsburgh companies who have exhibits at the exposition.

On Friday, Col. Turner will address the noon luncheon of the Chamber, outlining his plans and discussing the progress aviation has made in bringing the nation's major cities closer together.

Plane, Gliders Off On 'Air Train' Hop

MOSCOW, March 23.—(AP.)—The result of the first long-distance "air train" flight in the history of aviation—with an airplane towing three gliders—was awaited with intense interest in Moscow today.

The expedition took off yesterday for Koktebel, in Crimea, 808 miles away.

AMELIA DRAWN BY SEA HOP

America's most famous woman flier, Amelia Earhart Putnam, of trans-Atlantic fame, forsaking temporarily the controls of her plane, arrives in Pittsburgh today by train.

Still anxious to acquire flying laurels, she said she is "thinking seriously" of entering the MacRobertson international air races this fall from London to Australia.

Her plans to enter the race were heightened, she said, on hearing that Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, former Pittsburgh woman and mother of two children, had entered. She continued:

"There is a good chance that I will enter. I will decide this week."

She praised the Junior Birdmen of America organization, which is sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst papers throughout the country for boys and girls from 10 to 21 years inclusive. She said:

"I think it is a marvelous organization for it will help greatly in making the boys and girls of the United States familiar with aviation and airplanes.

"I hope that just as many girls as boys will join the Junior Birdmen for there is no reason why a girl can not build a model plane just as easily as a boy."

Mrs. Thaden now lives in Kansas City. She said in an Associated Press report that she will be accompanied in the race by her husband, Herbert Thaden.

Girl Loses Dress In Holdup and Lands in Cell

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(AP.)—A 20-year-old girl's sudden appearance in pink silk underwear on a busy street led to her arrest, and that of a policeman, on charges of holding up a millinery store.

The attempted robbery failed yesterday because Mrs. Ruth Leibowitz, owner of the shop, defied a man with a pistol and tore the dress from his girl companion. A moment later the girl in the slip dashed up to a motorist and asked a "lift home." She was given it, but the motorist later led police to the apartment, where Patrolman Robert C. Wisterhood, 31, and Frances Walters were arrested.

MOTHER'S VIGIL ENDS AS TRAIN INJURES SON

Missing Boy Believed Near Home, Maimed For Life in Texas

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 23.—An anxious mother, who has been waiting at a bus station every day for the past week for her missing son to return, today quit her vigil.

Mrs. Thomas A. Kirby today received word from Fort Worth, Tex., that her 14-year-old boy, Bob, who left home on April 6, is lying in a hospital there, maimed for life.

Bob was struck by a freight train in the Fort Worth railroad yards last night. Flashing wheels severed one leg and severely injured another.

The father of the boy, Thomas A. Kirby, plant superintendent of the Pennsylvania Telephone Corporation, is flying to the boy's bedside.

Bob was a student in the eighth grade at St. Joseph's Parochial School. Following his disappearance, his family had no news of him until about a week ago, when they were informed he had been located in Dallas, Tex., and was being sent home by the Federal Transient Bureau. His presence in Fort Worth was unexplained today.

GIRL FLIER TOPS AMY'S RECORD

PORT DARWIN, North Australia, May 23.—(AP.)—Jean Batten, 24-year-old New Zealand girl flier, reached this city today after a solo flight from England, on which she set a new women's record for the distance.

Miss Batten made the long, hazardous air jaunt in 15 days, 23 hours and 25 minutes, eclipsing the former woman's mark of 19 days held by Amy Johnson, wife of Capt. James A. Mollison, British flier.

The New Zealand girl arrived at Port Darwin to the accompaniment of a tumultuous welcome.

Miss Batten was making her third attempt at the flight when she soared away from Lympne, England, on May 8.

Her first effort was in April, 1933. Then her machine broke down beyond repair at Karachi, India. Last month, trying again, she crashed in Rome. She sustained severe face lacerations and several stitches were taken in her lip.

Nevertheless, as soon as her plane could be repaired, she flew back to England and began preparations for the third try, which has proved successful.

FEDERAL LOAN HERE ARGUED

A test case brought by Henry Tranter, manufacturer and member of the City Transit Commission, to determine constitutionality of the act creating the "Allegheny County Authority" was argued before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court sitting in Harrisburg today.

Tranter went directly to the high court asking that it enjoin the authority from borrowing $24,000,000 of federal funds to finance 12 self-liquidating projecas under the national recovery program.

Through his counsel, Clarence B. Nixon, Tranter argued that the federal funds borrowed might become the county's debt without satisfying the constitutional requirement of a vote by the people, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Members of the authority, Press C. Dowler, Joseph C. Trees and William McK. Reed, of this city, are named defendants. The court took the case under advisement.

Sartory's Reno Divorce Fails to Cut Alimony

A Reno divorce obtained recently by Martin Joseph Sartory, announcer and program manager of radio station WWSW, failed today to win him a reduction of payments to his former wife, Mrs. Margaretta Joseph Sartory, of 33 Meade avenue, Bellevue, mother of four children.

Sartory confirmed reports that he had remarried but declined to name the young woman.

Judge R. A. Kennedy in County Court ruled that Sartory must continue to pay monthly to the former Mrs. Sartory and also pay an additional $10 until he had made up back payments totaling $150.

Sartory had asked for a reduction in the amount. Attorney Louis Bowitz, representing the wife, told the court:

"This man had enough money to go to Reno and get a divorce, which of course is not recognized in Pennsylvania."

In his divorce petition filed in Reno, Sartory charged desertion July 26, 1926, and separation more than five years.

LAWYER VISIONS EDEN FOR TAXPAYERS

The need of a scientific method of assessment so that there would be no favoritism in levying the taxes, was cited as one of the first essentials in the theory of attaining the happiness of citizens in spite of taxation, in a statement today by Attorney S. V. Albo.

Attorney Albo said that since we have thus far taken as a basis upon which to build our tax structure, land and buildings primarily, we must see to it that a fair and impartial and equal assessment be made of the property of one citizen as compared with a similar property of another.

LAUDS PLAN

Attorney Albo declared that the nearest approach to such a scientific method is that now coming to be used by the county assessors. The plan he refers to is the Workmaster Plan, prepared by H. C. Workmaster, a member of the County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. He pointed out that under this plan there has been a readjustment of assessments in the county amounting to $400,000,000 in the last two years.

Pointing to the need for governmental economy, or the reduction of governmental costs, Albo said:

"A good government is a wise frugal government. We must not confuse frugality with miserliness and deprivation. Our principal dissatisfaction with our tax scheme is that we feel that the government is neither wise nor frugal. What people want is a government which is wisely operated on the most economical basis possible. The people like to believe and they have a right to expect, that as few dollars as possible are spent and that for those dollars they get full value in the way of service and benefit. That is true economy as contrasted with mere abnegation.

URGES CHANGES

"To achieve this wise frugality, it is necessary at the outset to bring about a few drastic changes in the structure of our government. There are many agencies, many departments which encroach upon each other. The greatest source of waste arises out of the lack of co-ordination in our various branches of government. Service that might well be performed by a single agency to serve many needs, is duplicated and reduplicated in each agency to be served. We have duplication of assessment in city and county; the vast overhead which is unnecessarily wasted in the administration of our innumerable school districts when the same service might be well done in just a few central points by bringing the schools not only under the fictitious supervision of the state but under its direct control; we have the repetitious and officious overlapping of police authority. We must adopt a plan to solve these problems, a system which is simple, direct and centralized. Only in this way can we accomplish economy."

Attorney Albo pointed out there are many obstacles blocking the much needed governmental changes, calling attention first to the barriers in the 60-year-old constitution. He said that there is only one way to obtain the much needed relief and that is to adopt a simpler and centralized system, and then go about removing the obstacles which prevent it being put into operation.

FIGHT INSULL'S SHANGHAI CLAIM

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP.)—Whether extradited or shanghaied from abroad, Samuel Insull now is in the jurisdiction of the Federal Court and should be tried on charges that cropped out of the ruins of his industrial empire, federal attorneys argued yesterday.

The prosecutors conceded "for the purpose of argument" that the former power prince might have been snatched away from Istanbul, but filed a demurrer to the defense contention that the famous prisoner virtually was kidnaped from a Greek vessel in free waters and that the Federal Court lacked proper authority over him.

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan took under advisement the former utility magnate's plea that he was outside the court's province. Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, who handled the case today while his client rested at a hotel, announced he would file a plea in support of his cause. A decision is expected within a week.

PARTIES LINKED TO SLAYING

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—(AP.)—An investigation of reported drinking parties in a stable near the spot in Golden Gate Park where the body of Miss Louise Jeppesen was found May 13 was begun today by Harry McKenzie, attorney for Millard Hickman, 45, Marine Engineer accused of strangling the Utah girl.

McKenzie said he hoped his investigation would throw light on the death.

Police also were endeavoring to learn the circumstances of Miss Jeppesen's discharge from a Post street night club. McKenzie stated:

"I contend that Hickman did not see Miss Jeppesen after she left his apartment. It is possible that she was met outside by some other man and taken to the park.

"I have been told by residents in the neighborhood of the park of strange goings on in a stable near the stadium. Miss Jeppesen lived nearby and it is possible she might have been lured there by someone at these parties."

INVENTOR WEDS SOCIETY GIRL

The story of a girl's friendship with a middle-aged business acquaintance of her father, which was climaxed 10 years later in marriage, was revealed today by Mrs. E. E. Slick, youthful wife of the wealthy Pittsburgh glass man and inventor.

Mrs. Slick, the former Martha Bond Grey, of DuBois and St. Petersburg, Fla., whose marriage to E. E. Slick at St. Petersburg April 9 was made known to friends here yesterday, said she met her husband as a girl in her 'teens. Their romance, she said, budded a year ago—three years after the death of Mr. Slick's first wife.

The bride is 25. Mr. Slick is 52 and the father of two sons, Edwin, 24, and William 16. The newlyweds are living at Mr. Slick's home, Penn and Murtland avenues. They returned recently from a honeymoon in Cuba.

Credited with hundreds of basic inventions, Mr. Slick is chairman of the board of the United States Glass Company, the Haws Refractory Company and the Johnstown Smokeless Coal Company.

Mrs. Slick, daughter of G. R. Grey, president of the Grey Glass Company, Falls Creek, near DuBois, was selected as queen of the Festival of the States, held at St. Petersburg in 1932 in observance of the Washington Bicentennial.

She attended Penn Hall School for Girls, Mt. Vernon Seminary and St. Petersburg College.

WOMEN VOTERS TO TALK ARMS CONTROL

International News Service.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 23.—Its program encompassing local and national governmental problems for discussion, the general council of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters today opened tis annual three-day conference here.

In addition to discussions of local governmental consolidations, child health, school district reorganizations, housing, federal and state employment service, unemployment relief and unemployment insurance, the conference on Thursday will hold a round table on governmental control of manufacture and shipment of armaments.

Mrs. Maurice N. Weyl, of Philadelphia, who attended the recent Washington conference on the cause and cure of war, will preside.

A. W. Motley, director of the Bureau of Employment in the State Department of Labor and Industry, will discuss the work of the state employment service tomorrow morning.

Other topics and speakers are: "A Budget for Pittsburgh," Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, Pittsburgh; "Philadelphia's Fight for a County Welfare Board," Arthur Dunham, Philadelphia, director of the division of family welfare and relief of the State Public Charities Association; "Federal-State System of Unemployment," Mrs. Robert M. Smith, Bethlehem, and "The State's First Separate Juvenile Court," Mrs. Bessie Kann Sack, Pittsburgh.

Accused Governor Assails Grand Jury

BISMARCK, N. D., May 23.—(AP.)—That the grand jury which indicted Gov. William Langer and eight associates on charges of violating federal laws was composed primarily of persons "antagonistic to and prejudiced against" the political faction to which the defendants belong was charged in federal court here by the defense in arguments to quash the indictments.

Banker Labels U. S. Nation of 'Money Nudists'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 23.—(AP.)—Joseph F. Hill, president of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, today declared the national budget should follow the axiom:

"Cut your coat according to the cloth."

He declared:

"The budget coat appears to be entirely demolished and they are now removing the pants. We soon may become a nation of financial nudists."

Hill, cashier of the National Bank of Chester County and Trust Company, West Chester, Pa., described himself as "an old-fashioned country banker."

He told the opening session of the association's fortieth annual convention that he has "deeply deplored and never been convinced of the necessity for the ruthless destruction of livestock and the restriction of farm products when millions are unemployed and in dire need of food."

Hill continued his criticism of "New Deal" banking developments with an attack on the postal savings system saying he could see "neither justice nor equity" in its continuance under current conditions. He declared:

"The banks of the larger cities, because of small returns on first class investments and little demands for funds from business generally, are cutting their interest, many of them to 2 per cent and even less on time deposits.

"Now that the government, in its opinion, has established the confidence of the public by the insurance of deposits, it is certainly not fair nor just that it should enter into competition by offering a higher rate than most banks can afford to pay."

The speaker declared banking conditions have improved, however. He said:

"The banking situation of today is in better condition than for a long period."

MOLEY PRAISES U. S. CRIME WAR

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—The administration's drive against racketeers and kidnapers was indorsed today by Raymond Moley.

In the first of three sections of the report President Roosevelt requested him to make on how best to combat gangdom, the former Assistant Secretary of State said enactment of the administration's crime bills would help considerably.

Pointing out that passage of the crime bills would increase the duties of the investigating force of the department, Moley said "it is my judgment that if the proposed legislation is adopted, the field investigating force should immediately be increased to 1,000." He called its present strength of 397 "totally inadequate."

About 3,500 Knights Templar paraded yesterday to the music of more than a score of bands.

Thousands lined the streets to view the colorful procession, a feature of the annual commandery convention, which closes today.

Mounted state police and Scranton officers headed the parade.

A mounted patrol of members of Corinthian (Chasseur) Commandery 53, of Philadelphia, escorted the grand commandery. Visiting knights composed four divisions of the parade.

HIKING CONTEST GOAL OF GIRL

Pittsburgh police started a search today for Peggy Damito, 20, of 4911 Baum boulevard, after she was reported to be en route to Columbus, O., to engage in a "walkathon" contest.

Her sister, Catherine Erine, told police the girl left her home late yesterday and that she was probably in an auto trailer with several men, bound for the Ohio city. A similar contest starts there today.

According to the sister, the missing girl engaged in the recent "walkathon" at Duquesne Garden and was known as Peggy Daniels. She was ordered arrested as a runaway.

Union Trust Sued Over Kreuger Deal

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh has been named defendant in a suit filed in Federal Court by Edward S. Greenbaum, trustee in bankruptcy of the Kreuger & Toll Co., in which the latter seeks to recover $146,216.

The suit avers that in 1930 the Union Trust Company turned back 5,222 shares of Kreuger & Toll stock for $146,216 in compliance with an offer made by Ivar Kreuger, and was alleged to have been paid from funds of Kreuger & Toll. The plaintiff charged payment was made without corporate action of Kreuger & Toll.

Summer Santa Arrested With 2 'Reindeer'

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP.)—A hot weather Santa Claus and his two "reindeer" were arrested for disorderly conduct because a chimney was too narrow for a passageway.

Alfred Raila, 19, told police he and Joseph Roberts, 18, were acting as reindeer for Walter Uzunaris, 20, when the latter was caught in a chimney.

They freed him by knocking the aperture to bits, but this displeased the owner, who had them arrested.

$3,000 VOTED IN SLUM RAZING

To remove a new menace caused by the city's slum clearance program, Council has voted to provide $3,000 to hire workmen to build barricades around open cellars left by the wreckers.

With more than 200 houses in the city either torn down or in process of demolition, what to do to make the locations safe has become a problem. Some of the cellars are reported filled with water and dangerous to children, according to George E. Evans, superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

The slum razing campaign has thus far been carried out entirely through co-operation with owners. Contractors in many instances have agreed to take buildings down for the material.

Superintendent Retiring After 58 Years at Pen

ALBERT RESE, 82

Guard Rese, retiring after 58 years' service at Western Penitentiary. He's walked out the gate as many times as he's walked in. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Notorious Criminals Of Past 5 Decades Worked Under Him

On July 1 the gates of the Western Penitentiary will swing open and Albert Rese, 82, will walk out, retired after 58 years of continuous employment in the institution.

Since 1876 when he first went to work in the old penitentiary on the North Side, Rese has had murderers, thieves and criminals of all types laboring under him in the prison's shoe repair shop.

When he gives up his job, he will say good-by to four of his men whom fate has doomed to stay at their work until death removes them.

Quitting his own business on Wylie avenue more than half a century ago to superintend convict labor, Rese had no intention of spending most of his life behind prison walls. Yet there he remained, and today he is a bit surprised at how rapidly the time has passed.

Many notorious figures of the past five decades have worked under him. Refusing to speak of them, he said:

"A prison's a prison, and those in it are best forgotten when you leave."

His reason for leaving he gave briefly:

"I'm tired of working."

Warden Stanley Ashe declared Rese is one of the best men in his employ and pointed to his years with the institution as evidence of his value.

Rese's plans for the future call for a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Al Kirby, in Rosedale, Pa., and a prolonged vacation on his son's farm near Los Angeles.

Shipbuilder Dies In 10-Story Plunge

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—William J. Parslow, 60, president of the Consolidated Shipbuilding Corporation, was killed last night when he jumped or fell from a window on the tenth floor of an uptown apartment house.

Detectives who searched the apartment said they found no notes, and assumed that Parslow was alone at the time of the fall.

A sick child at night—what a comfort to have a telephone!

A telephone is on guard day and night, ready to summon aid should need arise.

You can't depend on a neighbor's telephone. They may be out when you need it most.

There's no "waiting in line" when the telephone is in your home.

TO PARENTS ESPECIALLY

If you have no telephone in your home, think this over:

Suppose one of the youngsters got sick! You can't always "borrow" the neighbors' telephone to call the doctor or ask his advice. Sometimes they're away; at night they're asleep. You can't always use the public telephones. Sometimes stores are closed. Nothing takes the place of a telephone in your home in times of trouble or when things go wrong.

This isn't all. You need a telephone to get things done. For busy mothers, "tied down" by their household duties, it saves countless errands. Last, but not least, you need a telephone to make your home the happy, carefree place that children love. You need it to encourage wholesome companionships; to bring opportunities; to make the home the centre of interest.

A telephone costs so little that it doesn't pay to be without one particularly where children are concerned. In Pittsburgh you can have a telephone in your home for as little as $2.50 a month (and for even less in the suburbs).

COYNE CALLED TO TRIAL IN U. S. COURT

prepared to make the final charge, there were just six left on trial.

DIRECTED VERDICTS

Haus joints the five who on Monday won directed verdicts. They are Attorneys B. Robert Averbach and John J McGrath, Burton J. McKee, real estate dealer; Frank Miller, captain, and August Weisser, patrolman of the Stowe Township police.

Refused motions for directed verdicts for a second time were Steedle, Squire James J. Westwood, Squire Paul N. Franks, Wallace Ray, clerk in the county's Delinquent Tax Office; Police Chief Thomas Saunders and Patrolman William Scnwartz, of the Stowe Police.

The prosecution of Senator Coyne and his co-defendants—including Alderman John J. Verona, John Fugassi and Patrick J. O'Malley—represents the climax of the federal investigation into election-stealing. Convictions of the smaller fry—members of election boards—have been numerous.

As final arguments in the Steedle trial neared conclusion, defendants and attorneys in the Coyne trial lingered in the corridors of the Federal Building, awaiting word that would start selection of a jury to hear that case.

This investigation was begun after Mrs. Anne Felix, Democratic nominee, charged that the election had been stolen for the Republican nominee, Michael J. Muldowney, a Coyne man.

SLEUTHS AT HEARING

United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld today made no secret of the fact that five Department of Justice agents and a stenographer were present in Council chambers when James P. Bailey charged that he had been fired as a city assessor because he refused to testify for Senator Coyne. Dumbauld said he had a transcript of Bailey's charges.

Both McNair and Moritz, who was nominated for Congress on the Democratic ticket in the Thirty-second District last week, denied the charges.

The government's move for a postponement of the Coyne trial was opposed by Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for the Senator.

So today Coyne will take a seat at counsel table with the other defendants—Fugassi, long a power in inner political circles; O'Malley, Republican chairman of the Strip's Second Ward; Verona, leader in the Hill's Third Ward; Former Fire Captain Louis J. Conley, Republican chairman of the Ninth Ward; Tom Coyne, the Senator's brother; Assemblyman Patrick J. Maloney; George W. Savage, former city assessor; Frank O'Halloran, Ninth Ward district chairman; Martin Mullen, Tenth Ward district chairman; Walter Butler, and Harry Fink, private detective.

NAMED 'NIGHT RIDERS'

All are accused as "night riders" who sped about from polling place to polling place on election night urging election boards to falsify the count.

With the last testimony in the Steedle trial yestetrday the defense sought to counteract the interpretations of Maurice A. Nernberg, government's handwriting witness who testified that "X's" on ballots seized in Stowe and Scott townships and Carnegie indicated tampering.

H. G. Burtner, handwriting expert and penmanship instructor in Pittsburgh schools, suggested that any expert who can dissect "X" marks is more or less of a fortune teller.

Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, defeated gubernatorial candidate and counsel for Alderman Verona, was a character witness for Squire Westwood.

Principal witness against Westwood and Steedle was Frank K. Boyer, Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioner, who testified that Steedle, in Westwood's presence, related a plot to steal votes. This was denied.

FACES

Faces that are to be seen during the coming few days at U. S. Court, where these men along with five others and State Senator James J. Coyne face the charge of conspiracy to steal a Congressional election in 1932.

CONVICT SEEKS FREEDOM, HAS JOB

A job awaits Raymond Stewart Dugan if he is freed from Western Penitentiary, where he is serving a term for killing a bartender here in 1923, the State Board of Pardons was told today.

Dugan, described as a member of the "Blue Bandanna" gang, claimed he was innocent of the crime and that a confession was wrung from him "by inhuman means." He is serving an 18 to 36-year sentence.

J. C. Coulter, Western Penitentiary parole director, recommended that Dugan be paroled. He said the prisoner has a job assured him if he is freed.

Dugan and Albert Carelli were convicted of killing Phillip Flynn during a saloon robbery. Carelli was sentenced to death, the sentence later being commuted to life imprisonment, and he was pardoned in 1925.

Frank Rodi, a barber, who was sentenced in 1930 to serve 6 to 12 years in prison for killing James Hannon during a card game here, also asked for clemency so that he can be deported to Italy.

He told the board he drew a pistol in self-defense after he caught players cheating in the game, and that a shot was fired during a scuffle.

The board also heard the case of Joseph Lydzinski, Allegheny County, who is serving 12 to 24 years in prison for statutory offenses.

NAVY MAN SLAIN BY THUMBER

MARIETTA, Okla., May 23.—A hitch-hiker was held today by Oklahoma authorities who said he confessed to slaying a naval officer in an argument over "hitting bumps" in the road.

The hitch-hiker, Leo Hudgins, 27, a former Mississippi convict, offered to help Kansas authorities search for the body of the victim, Lieut. Com. S. T. Trowbridge, United States Navy.

Hudgins was quoted by Sheriff S. H. Randolph as saying he killed Trowbridge Saturday after the officer gave him a ride, let him drive the automobile and then threatened him for going over bumps in the highway "that hard."

He said he deposited the body in a roadside ditch 15 miles north of Greensburg, Kan. Informed that Kansas officers were unable to find the body, Hudgins signed an extradition waiver and volunteered to join the hunt.

Hudgins was arrested at Thatcherville, Okla., Sunday night, when he drove Trowbridge's blood-stained automobile into a garage for repairs.

LODGE BROTHER ADMITS POISON

OAKLAND, Cal., May 23.—(AP.)—Arthur J. Cleu, 40-year-old Oakland printer, faced a possible charge of attempted murder here today, authorities said, following his reported confession that he sent poisoned liquor through the mails to seven fellow-lodge members.

Cleu was arrested yesterday at Ukiah, where he was attending the annual grand parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, a fraternal organization. Comparison of his hand lettering with that on the poisoned liquor packages, was said by officers to have led to his detention.

Assistant District Attorney Charles Wehr planned to go before the grand jury tomorrow and ask for a return of an indictment against the printer. The indictment probably will be sought, Wehr sair, on the ground of "attempted murder."

In his purported confession Cleu assertedly blamed a long-standing quarrel with his lodge brothers.

TESTIMONIAL TO MONKS SET

Common Pleas Court Judge John P. Egan will be the principal speaker at a testimonial party in honor of the Brothers of the Society of Mary in Lithuanian Hall, 1723 Jane street, tomorrow.

More than 500 alumni, representing every St. Michael's class since 1882, will greet Brother E. Yack, of Mineola, L. I., and Brother George Snyder, of Dayton, former directors of the school who will journey here for the party.

The priests of St. Michael's Church and the brothers of St. Mary's School, North Side, will be among the honor guests.

Hospital Removes Tonsil Instead Of Appendix

MACON, Ga., May 23.—(AP.)—Clarence Jones went to the hospital to have his appendix removed—and came out with one less tonsil.

The hospital superintendent said Jones and another patient appeared the same day and were presented to the nurse as candidates for tonsillectomies. Beds were not available, so they returned later. The nurse asked Jones:

"You've come for your tonsil operation?"

She said he answered "yes."

He'll be back later for the appendectomy.

Arrest Man Attired Only in Underwear

Charles Sparwinskas, 46, of 2413 Sarah street, was arrested last night by South Side police as he was running around in his yard in nothing more than his underwear, police reported. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

FOUR REFUSED BEER LICENSES

Four applicants seeking beer licenses in the Pittsburgh district have been refused as the time nears for beer emporiums either to renew their licenses or take out liquor licenses, the Liquor Control Board announced.

The applicants refused, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg, are Eli J. Wojnovich, Duquesne; Schmitt's Restaurant, North Side, Pittsburgh; Joseph Solito, Leetsdale, and Rainbow Garden, McDonald.

Hospital Orderly Reports $20 Theft

Papers on a 65-year-old man discovered today in a yard at Craig street and Fifth avenue, indicate he is John J. Murphy, of 6704 Selwyn street, according to morgue officials. The body was discovered by police Lieut. Bernard Jacks. Death is believed to have been caused by a heart attack.

Odor of Mash Leads To Finding of Still

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 23.—(AP.)—Following the banks of what they termed "a mash smelling stream," federal agents uncovered a moonshine still in densely wooded Gibbon's Glade near the Pennsylvania-West Virginia state line.

The officers confiscated a 25-gallon still and 100 barrels of mash.

PARENTS BEAT DEATH BY HOURS

An airplane race with death was won by parents of William F. Curry, of Coraopolis Heights, injured in an airplane crash yesterday at Sherman, Tex., but it was a hollow victory.

The 22-year-old aviation student died early today, according to word received at the Curry home.

Young Curry, a social registerite, was injured yesterday in a crash which resulted in the death of a companion, Mortimer Riley, 21, of Hewitt, Long Island.

He was to have been graduated today from a commercial flying school in Dallas, Tex.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Curry, were accompanying his body back home today. Funeral services will be held at their home Saturday. Young Curry was a graduate of Shady Side Academy and Culver Military Academy.

Holdup Case Delayed By Lawyer's Absence

The trial of Irvine T. White, 223 Federal street, on charges of holding up L. E. Seibert, 1673 Perrysville avenue, February 15, was postponed in Criminal Court today because of the inability of Attorney Edward G. Coll, defense counsel, to be present. Coll is counsel in the trial of State Senator James J. Coyne and others on vote fraud charges.

SILVER GROUP SEES SUCCESS IN BILL

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The full power of the administration was thrown behind the silver bill today to overcome some opposition from within the silver bloc.

Senators Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, and Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, are in open rebellion against the bill, while other silverites, led by Senators King (Dem.), of Utah, and Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, hailed it as a tremendous victory for silver. The "middle-of-the-road" silverites, who expected outright remonetization, are ready to support it while declaring it failed to go far enough.

POLICY OUTLINED

The bill, in brief, announces a governmental policy of using both gold and silver as monetary reserves, with silver ultimately to be held in an amount equal to one-fourth of the nation's money stocks. It carried a mandatory provision for the purchase of silver to carry out this policy, although the Secretary of the Treasury would be given wide discretion as to when and where to buy.

Another mandatory provision would direct the secretary to issue silver certificates against the face value of all silver purchased. It would make these certificates legal tender for all debts, public and private, and for taxes and duties.

There is some disagreement among silverites over the value of this proposed legislation. Long called it a "candy sucker." King and Wheeler called it a "long step in the right direction."

HEAVY PURRCHASES

King said the President was enthusiastic" over purchasing silver. He predicted the bill would result in heavy purchases within the next year. Wheeler said:

"While this bill doesn't go as far as I would it is a long step in the right direction. I am enthusiastic for it. The President has gone further for silver than any President in the past 40 years. He should be commended for it. Personally, I am going to continue the fight for free and unlimited coinage of silver."

With the tariff under debate, it cannot be considered in the Senate before next week.

Treasury to Purchase 2 Billions in Silver

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(INS.)—Under the government's new silver program it will be necessary to purchase about $2,100,000,000 of that metal as a monetary base, according to the Treasury today.

Silver holdings of the Treasury for May 19, the latest available date, were about $554,502,000. About $300,000,000 was outstanding. It was stated that 1,14.117,000 ounces additional must be purchased to bring about the 25-75 ratio to gold.

To achieve that ratio, newly mined silver will be purchased at 64½ cents and present existing stocks of silver, estimated at about 200,000,000 ounces, will be acquired at 50 cents an ounce. The world "floating stocks" of silver, which do not include monetary silver, were given as about 800,000,000 ounces.

LONDON COOL ON SILVER

LONDON, May 23.—(AP)—The idea of convoking a world conference for rehabilitation of silver, thought by many here to have been in President Roosevelt's mind when he submitted his silver message to Congress yesterday, failed to strike a particularly responsive chord in British government circles.

It was declared semi-officially today that whereas silver may be "an extremely important political consideration" in the United States, it has no such significance in Great Britain.

While the British government has long expressed the belief that rehabilitation of silver would play an important part in world economic recovery official circles have been skeptical that the part played would be as great as anticipated in other capitals, especially Washington.

Chinese Bankers Hail Silver Action

SHANGHAI, May 23.—(AP.)—Virtually unreserved approval was the reaction among China's bankers and commercial circles today to silver legislation urged upon Congress by President Roosevelt.

In commercial circles, both exporters and importers concurred with Chinese bankers in approving the bill. They visualized the measure as stabilizing China's trade, which has been hampered by fluctuating exchange.

Roosevelt's Silver Hope, Vain, Says Jap

TOKIO, May 23.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's hopes for international silver agreements "probably are impossible of realization owing to domestic complications in each principal nation," Eigo Fukai, vice-governor of the Bank of Japan, said today.

He expressed the opinion that the President's bimetalism proposals "would be likely to weaken the foundations of America's monetary system."

New Dealers Show Skill Blanketing NRA Critics

TRAP.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The way the administration cornered opposition to the NRA is one of the revealing inside yarns of New Deal technique.

Again President Roosevelt used his decoy system. He has had unusual success trapping his critics with this technique, but never such amazing success as in the current case.

It all started months ago, when Senators Borah and Nye were leading the attack on the NRA. They contended that the Johnsonian codes were strangling little business. There can be no question but what there was considerable basis for their argument.

At any rate, their case drew such marked attention that Mr. Roosevelt called them in. He proposed that a committee be appointed to investigate their charges and that they serve on the committee.

Borah and Nye were too foxy to get tied up in a thing like that, but they did consent to the formation of a committee. And Nye, at least, co-operated to the extent of suggesting names for the committee. He is supposed to have named four of the members of the committee.

That was the Darrow committee.

SHUDDER

There were no two more disappointed men in the world last Monday morning than Senators Borah and Nye when they read the Darrow report.

They are good, sensible Republican Liberals, but not Socialists or Communists. Their Liberalism shines occasionally by contrast with some of the conservatives of their party, but they are not radicals.

Yet here was all their good material against the NRA in the Darrow report completely topped by the recommendation for socialization of all industry and an end of the profit system.

It was enough to make them shudder, and they did.

WAR KINGS

Somewhere along the way of preparing the report, Mr. Darrow had been led into offering the socialistic remedy. Only the insiders know that portions of the report were re-written four or five times after he conferred with administration authorities.

It was upon one of these rewriting occasions that the socialization theory found a place in the report. It is supposed to have been put in by Mr. Darrow's ghost writer, Charles Edward Russell, with assistance from a member of the committee, who played very close to Gen. Johnson.

At any rate, it gave the administration a perfect response. The boys had been breathing hard and were worried before the report was made public. They thought it might prove very damaging to the New Deal. After they saw it, their faces were wreathed in smiles. All they had to say was:

'These NRA opponents are Socialists and Communists."

Some of the sincere opponents of NRA policies were bitter enough to suggest that Darrow should be rewarded by the administration for putting NRA opposition on a socialistic level.

RESULTS

About all it amounts to, however, is political by-play.

The best inside data indicates clearly that the administration is going to put the NRA through the wringer during the next few months. It will adopt the best features of the Darrow report.

Also, if there is sufficient basis to the Borah-Nye charges, as they contend, the matter cannot end with the Darrow report.

In fact, it appears the debate has only started.

UNIQUE

There is one, and only one, Democrat in the House of Representatives running for re-election on a program of full-fledged opposition to the New Deal. He is James I. Claiborne, of St. Louis. Claiborne voted against everything except the NRA and has lately turned against that.

The answer is he running in a normally Republican district, which, however, now is supposed to include considerable New Deal sentiment.

NOTES

There seems to be a better chance for oil legislation before adjournment. The experts in that line agree legislation is necessary to save the code, now that the test violation case has gone over until fall in the Supreme Court . . . Ogden Mills is the only Republican outside of Congress who is attracting any national attention, but liberals within the party are dead set against him for any position . . . There is a group of Democratic Senators in the Amen Corner of the Senate who call themselves "the common people." They organized spontaneously and frequently consult each other on voting. Included in the group of 10 or 12 are Bone, Bulow, Erickson, Long, Pope and Wheeler . . . The Liberals are telling a fictitious story about a man who had a splendid plan for coordinating NRA, AAA, etc., and took it to the White House.

PAYOFF ACTION FORCED BY M'LEOD

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The House Rules Committee has voted to throw the controversial issue of unfreezing the deposits of closed banks squarely into the lap of Congress.

As a result the House today opens three hours of general debate on the Steagall bill, which authorizes the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to spend up to 1,225 million dollars on the purchase of assets of closed banks for pro rata repayment of depositors.

Debate will center on a fight to broaden the bill to make taking over of assets of closed banks mandatory rather than permissive and to increase the 1,225 million dollar total.

If the bill can be amended along these lines, the Steagall bill would virtually be the same as the McLeod bill, so vigorously opposed by the administration. The McLeod bill provides for the RFC to be the payoff agency rather than the FDIC.

Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, hailed the debate on the Steagall bill as a victory for his force. Representative Brown (Dem.), of Michigan, member of the Banking Committee, admitted the committee rider would never have been brought out had it not been for the McLeod drive.

McLeod, however warned friends of bank relief not to halt their efforts in behalf of his bill, for the assurance of a vote on the original full payoff measure, he said, is all that will guarantee action on Steagall's proposal.

The petition to force a vote on the McLeod measure June 11 today lacked only 11 of the necessary 145 signatures.

MESSAGE DUE ON WATERWAYS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Roosevelt will enunciate a broad national policy with regard to the use of the nation's waterways and marginal lands in one of the special messages which he plans to send to the present session of Congress.

The President in announcing he plans to send such a message said the document would embrace all phases of operations and policies with regard to inland waterways. No legislation at the present session of Congress will be asked, however.

The communication will touch on the uses of the Mississippi river, the Tennessee river, the Missouri river and many others, will outline a national channel-deepening program and touch on soil-erosion.

SCHOOL LOANS WIN IN HOUSE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The House today approved by a vote of 113 to 80 an amendment to the loans to industry bill authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan $75,000,000 to school districts.

The amendment, introduced by Representative Meeks (Dem.), of Illinois, was sponsored by Chicago members seeking relief for unpaid school teachers of that city. It is subject to another vote before final passage.

Under terms of the House bill, the RFC should be given $300,000,000 for direct industrial loans and the Federal Reserve authorized to loan $140,000,000. The Senate bill proved $250,000,000 for the RFC and $280,000,000 for the Federal Reserve.

Norris Over 73 Persists in Fight For U.S. Reforms

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—George Norris, to whom defeat is meat and drink, announced today a campaign to give America a more nearly perfect democracy "before I die."

The 73-year-old Republican independent Senator lost only yesterday in a battle to abolish the electoral college and encourage independent candidacies. The Senate voted down his proposed constitutional amendment, for a second time, 52 to 29. A two-thirds vote was required.

Undiscouraged, he declared today he would not only continue the fight, but would take the stump in Nebraska soon to fight for an amendment to the State Constitution setting up a single-house Legislature, instead of the present bi-cameral system.

AIR MAIL BILL BACK TO HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—Senate and House conferees today were agreed on an air mail bill which would place mail transport under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission subject to the limitations of specified rates.

The bill, which now goes back to the House for acceptance, includes the Senate amendment barring companies having officers held guilty of participating in past collusion to prevent competitive bidding.

Temporary contracts already let, and those to be awarded this month, could be extended for one year under the measure.

BUILDING LOANS BY U.S. URGED

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—An amendment to the administration's housing bill, which would set up up a $3,000,000,000 federal corporation for discounting urban mortgages, was recommended today by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Walter S. Schmidt, of Cincinnati, spokesman for the association, submitted the amendment to the Senate Banking Committee in supporting the housing program.

The corporation would be capitalized by the government at $200,000,000 and would purchase for discount mortgages on newly built tenant occupied homes, housing projects and business structures at a discount up to 2 per cent and bearing an interest up to 6 per cent.

Lewis H. Brown, president of Johns Manville Corporation and representative of the durable goods industries committee, indorsing the basic principles of the bill, said the committee considered the bill "the greatest single step" toward recovery.

He said almost 5,000,000 of the 9,000,000 people still unemployed were in the durable goods industires and that their revival was the "key" to recovery.

GAINS 5 LBS. IN 1 WEEK....! Feels Fine!

Kansas City Stenographer Tells How Amazing Mineral Concentrate, Free From Drugs, Richest in Newer form of "FOOD IODINE," added Weight, Strenghtened Nerves and Built New Energy.

Miss Betty Noever, 67 Palmer Road, Kansas City, Mo.

"I have been under weight for 10 years,' says Miss Betty Belle Noever, 67 Palmer Rd., Kansas City, Mo. "I also suffered from stomach trouble, anemia and nervousness and nothing seemed to do me any good until I tried Kelp-a-Malt. After the very first bottle I started gaining weight and in a few short weeks had put on 10 lbs., and I can truthfully say all my trouble vanished like magic: I've felt like a new person . . . never better."

Just one of the thousands of actual reports that are flooding in from all over the country telling us how this newer form of food iodine is building firm flesh, strengthening the nerves, enriching the blood — nourishing vital glands and making weak, pale, careworn underweight men and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain.

Modern foodstuffs, even fresh vegetables and similarly so-called "good" foods, have recently been discovered to be lacking not only in food iodine but in all the other essential organic minerals without which strength and health are impossible.

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

Kelp-a-Malt, only recently discovered, contains practically every mineral essential to normal well being. But most important of all, it is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine —natural iodine not made from iodides or other chemicals which oftentimes prove toxic, but the same iodine that is present in small quantities in spinach and lettuce. It is the lack of this iodine which experts in nutrition say is our foremost national health problem.

Kelp-a-Malt is a sea vegetable concentrate taken from the Pacific Ocean and made available in palatable, pleasant-to-take tablet form. Six Kelp-a-Malt tablets provide more food iodine than 486 pounds of spinach, 1600 pounds of beef, 1387 pounds of lettuce. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper for rich blood, vitality and strength than a pound of spinach, 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes—more calcium than 6 eggs, more phosphorus than a pound and a half of carrots—sulphur, sodium potassium and other essential minerals.

Only when you get an adequate amount of these minerals can your food do you any good—can you nourish glands, add weight, strengthen your nerves, increase your vigor, vitality and endurance.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. 100 jumbo size tablets, which are 4 to 5 times larger than ordinary size tablets, cost but little. Fine for Children, Too—Improves Their Appetite. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

Movie Stars Have Trade Lines

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—Hello! For the past two or three years Hollywoods economic structure has been in the throes of a dramatic change. The wailings of the hard-pressed are less heard; there is a determined uplift to chins and a planning of fortunes and careers along sensible lines.

Most remarkable fact in this change is this: The stars are entrenching themselves behind the protection of business enterprises, little side-businesses which they are developing either for present or future profits.

Cecil B. DeMille is a director in the Bank of America.

Hallam Cooley is an agent. So is Hedda Hopper.

Adolphe Menjou deals in real estate. So does Conway Tearle.

Bing Crosby runs a large ranch where he is starting to breed thoroughbred race horses.

Big Boy Williams raises polo ponies. Ditto for George O'Brien.

William Haines operates an antique shop.

Bebe Daniels and Skeets Gallagher are partners in a gown shop.

Leslie Howard and William Gargan are real estate men for lots in Palm Springs.

Winnie Sheehan and Jack Wurner have an interest in a chain of cafes.

Cary Grant owns a men's shop and Kent Taylor operates an awning store.

Charles Bickford has a garage and a whaling ship. He recently sold his interest in a lingerie shop. My, my!

Director William Beaudine operates an auto washing and greasing outfit.

George Raft plans to open a Hollywood night club.

Charles Ruggles runs a successful citrus ranch and poultry farm.

Grover Jones, scenarist, has part interest in a floral shop.

This little known side of the activities of actors and actresses is a tribute to their common sense, as well as a recognition by them that movie fame is fleeting and short-lived.

Random Shots from the Mail Basket — Charley Williams, the dancing author with "Hot Cracks Two for Five," is in the big town to put on his play, "The Social Lion." Gene Buck will stage it. . . . Sada Cowan scribbles a note to say she's through with globe-trotting and is doing the script for a new Dashiell Hammett yarn for Select Pictures.

Wanderings around town: Nearly EVERYONE bouncing up to Arrowhead Lodge wants to paddle the canoe Garbo used on her visit. Now, isn't that the HEIGHT of something or other? . . . Neely Edwards, appearing in San Francisco's company of "The Drunkard," is having a GRAND TIME saying howdy to old friends. Years ago he appeared there at the Orpheum many times with his vaudeville partner, the late Ed Flannigan . . . Jean Muir was once Glenda Farrell's understudy during footlight days . . . Henry Wilson has been lunching Ida Lupino at the Russian Eagle . . . Hazel Hayes, the Wampas baby star, made QUITE an impression with her warbling of an aria from "Madame Butterfly" the other eve over the radio . . . Carlo Schipa, kid brother of the high-note hitting tito, is back in the movies for Columbia's "Whom the Gods Destroy."

'Uncle Tom' Is Revived At I.K.S.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Eliza crossed the ice. Little Eva went to heaven. Uncle Tom bravely told the villainous Simon Legree that although he bought his body he did not buy his soul. Topsy just growed and was wicked. Miss Ophelia sniffed. Phineas Fletcher vowed that he would be eternally chawed up. And all other things in order for a traditional performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" were in evidence except one. No bloodhounds pursued Eliza as she made her perilous and death-defying trip across the raging Ohio river filled with ice!

The dogs were too darned fierce to be trusted loose upon the stage.

That, at least, was the explanation given in a between-the-acts talk, in which the audience was invited to go back stage after the performance and see the animals.

This must have broken the heart of Louis Isaacs, director of the old play, and presented with fine attention to technical detail by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Auditorium last night at the first of two performances, the second to be given tonight. The play was staged with the use of the complete original version, as written by George L. Aiken in 1852. Since there are six acts divided into 26 scenes, in addition to the grand ascension scene, as an epilogue, you can understand that the stage crew had about as busy a time of it as the actors themselves.

In fact, the scenic difficulties, which were surmounted with considerable genius in the matter of technical skill, proved to have been worked out so well that it is quite possible to say that it is unlikely that a more complete production of the play has ever been given here.

And no production at all for many years.

It is hard to pick out any special actor for conspicuous credit, but since I am kind of an old meanie, myself, I think I shall decide upon Phillip Moses, as Simon Legree. With his long black mustache and cruel sneer, he certainly was a snake's heel. The Uncle Tom of James Catio also was excellent. Frances Morris, as Little Eva, emanated the proper degree of spiritual beauty, and Leah Green, as Topsy, was plenty impish. Marcella Nedlian, as Miss Ophelia, was a nicely blended mixture of acidity and kindness. St. Clare was well played by Saul Steinfield. The Phineas Fletcher of Sanf Bodell and the Marks of William Bazerman were equally well done. Manuel Frank, as Gumption Cute, and Nathan Singer, as Deacon Perry, also were among the players of principal roles. Bertha Katz was the brave Eliza.

Fourteen members of the technical staff, though they must be anonymous here, deserve praise.

Mint of Graveyard Recommended

I like Irvin Cobb's explanation of why the South is the only place to get a real mint jule—

"It's the mint," says the humorist, now a Hollywood actor. "You can't grow the proper mint for a julep except on the grave of a Confederate brigadier."

Triangle

Karen Morley is a lady of a triangle in "The Crime Doctor," part of a double feature bill that will open Friday in the Regent, the other part being "He Couldn't Take It."

LaughtonDeclines To Wear Wig

Charles Laughton has declined to wear a wig in the film, "The Barrets of Wimpole Street." As an alternative, he is bleaching his hair so it will appear iron-gray on the screen.

'Skin Game' Has Trump Hand

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Another competent and smooth performance of a modern drama is being given by the students of the Drama School at Tech's Little Theater—John Galsworthy's tragic comedy, "The Skin Game." It deals with a feud between two English families—one an old aristocratic house, the other an upstart who resents being snubbed by the blue bloods. This conflict is worked out with such dramatic precision by Galsworthy that the play becomes almost like a game of cards with trump after trump being banged on the table.

Mr. Seibel.

Yet all grows naturally out of the contrast of characters, which the playwright has worked out with all the care of the novelist. The cast last night was very happy in getting under the skin of these characters — especially Joseph Batchellor as Hornblower and DeLisle Crawford as Hillcrist.

Good emotional work was done by Audrey Kelley as Chloo Hornblower, the daughter-in-law with a past. Edward Palkot gave a fine comedy portrayal of the auctioneer. Barry Mulligan was convincingly contemptable as the sycophantic Dawker. And an ingratiatingly fresh piece of ingenue acting by Sarabel Browarsky as Jill was not the least of the sympathetic characterizations.

Staged by E. W. Hickman with intelligent care, "The Skin Game" proved one of the season's worthiest offerings. Somehow the English atmosphere pervaded the drama, and this surely was no British ensemble imported from Bloomsbury or Piccadilly. Perhaps Elmer Kenyon is feeding them on Bath buns and serving daily tea when Big Ben tells four. Fancy that!

Your Theater and Mine

By KARL KRUG

Private advices from the Eastern front assure me that the next big cinematic event to look forward to is Paramount's screening of Damon Runyon's breezy story, "Little Miss Marker." The film marks the real coming-out party of Shirley Temple, the cutest kid to burst over the Hollywood heavens since Jackie Cooper made his bow in "Skippy."

The New York reviewers are calling "Little Miss Marker" a better film than Mr. Runyon's own "Lady for a Day," which means that it must be considerable of a photoplay. After paying due homage at the feet of the Temple youngsters, they lay special benisons to the credit of Adolphe Menjou and Lynn Overman, who have the most important grown-up roles.

"Little Miss Marker" is all about a little girl who finds herself in the keeping of a crew of Broadway race track touts, and if you know the Runyon style of weaving drama and comedy around such unusual events the success of his latest screen yarn will come as no surprise.

Paramount is also planning to transfer another of the Runyon tales to the screen. It is "The Lemon Drop Kid," as human a yarn as any studio could ever dig up, and its leading role is tailored-to-measure for the explosive Lee Tracy, who is slated for the part. In the meantime, motion picture producers are consistently overlooking the best story Damon Runyon ever wrote as screen material. It is "Dream Street Rose," a bang-up narrative with locales that shift from a Nevada mining camp to the Barbary Coast and New York.

DISCOVERING SHIRLEY

Little Miss Temple was "discovered" by Lew Brown, stage and screen producer, and the maker of "Stand Up and Cheer," in which the youngster made her first film appearance. I heard him tell about it one night shortly after his return to New York from the West Coast.

It seems that Shirley was among a hundred or so little girls who answered a call for the part. Instead of waiting to be interviewed, she stepped up to Brown and announced that he need seek no further for a juvenile actress. Although Lew Brown produces romantic musical shows and writes touching song lyrics, he is not a man to be trifled with as he casts a production. Paying but little attention to Shirley, he shooed her back into the crowd and forgot the incident.

Later, as he was half-way through interviewing the kids, he came to Shirley, but did not recognize her, and she did not remind him that she had spoken to him. As she spoke her piece and went through her steps, the Brown mind was made up. This was the little girl he wanted, and he told her so. Shirley replied:

"You see, Mr. Brown, I told you I was the one you were going to pick. You could have saved yourself a lot of time by taking me in the first place."

What the producer wanted to know from the group who heard the story was how a kid like that could have been kept out of the job.

EX-PITTSBURGHERS YOU'LL MEET ON BROADWAY

Musical

Ginger Rogers plays opposite Dick Powell in "20 Million Sweethearts," comedy with songs coming Friday to the Sheridan Square.

Beery Would Act With Child

Wallace Berry would like to have his daughter, little Carol Ann playing with him in an early M-G-M picture. The youngster is only 4, but the actor is teaching her to read lines. She has started to attend school, too.

Odds and Ends

IN THE Broadway sector a few days ago, a theatrical agent received a phone call from a very important citizen. For several years, on a certain date, this influential citizen had been giving an annual party. And the agent in question always supplied the talent.

This year was no different from the others.

"You know what I want, Frank," he told the agent, "and I'll leave everything in your hands. I'm paying you $1,000 for any act you pick out, but it must be something different."

The agent hung up and went to work immediately. He needed a novelty and it had to be hot and new. He called up a number of people and he finally heard of a sensational colored combination that was playing or one of the smaller New York radio stations.

You'll probably hear a great deal about this combination some day, but the day is not yet at hand. As soon as the agent was tipped off, he grabbed a cab and raced over to the broadcasting studio. Within 10 minutes he was listening to the act he had come to hear.

The combination consisted of five colored men who worked somewhat along the style of the Mills Brothers. One song was enough to convince the agent that he had found what he was seeking. So he nodded to the leader of the quintet and drew him to one side.

"I have a little party I want you to play," he said. "What's your price for the combination?"

The reply was little short of sensational.

"We gits $2 an hour fo' each man, an' we gotta play at least fo' hours. After the fo' hours we charges $1 an hour fo' each man."

The prices was so small that the agent was amazed.

"What's that you said?" he cried. "Did you say—?"

The leader thought he had gone too far.

"All right, mister," he interrupted hurriedly. "As long as it's fo' yo,' we'll make the price a dollar an' seventy-five cents an hour fo' fo' hours—an' we'll play as long as yo' want."

The agent grinned to himself. In a spot like this, he could afford to be magnanimous. After all, he was getting $1,000.

"You're hired," he agreed. "You boys work next week. And I'm going to give you $100 for the job."

The leader's eyes almost popped from his head. He regarded the agent suspiciously.

"Ah heard yo' say one hundred dollars, mistuh," he said, "an Ah'm tellin' yo' right now dat yo' kin keep yo' job. We ain't leavin' fo' no round-the-world cruises!"

* * *

MENTION of the Mills Brothers reminds me of the time when that expert quartet was approached to appear in "Hot-Cha," the late Flo Ziegfeld's final production. The boys were being talked about, but they hadn't quite arrived. And Lew Brown got them to agree to sign for "Hot-Cha" for $600 a week.

Everything was set and the boys appeared in Ziegfeld's office to sign the contract. But Flo thought he might be able to save a little by stalling for a while. He offered them $500 a week and, when they refused, told them to come back in a day or two.

The Mills Brothers never came back. They opened in a movie house instead and were sensational. And within a month they were earning $5,000 a week!

* * *

OVER at the Paramount this week is "Little Miss Marker," the second of the Damon Runyon stories to reach the screen. It's a swell piece of entertainment and is certain to be included among the best pictures of the year. Damon is again to be congratulated, as is everyone connected with the production.

Although the entire cast is excellent, I was particularly tickled with the performance of Lynne Overman. For years Lynne has had tough luck in connection with picture contracts. A great comedian and complete master of every stage trick in existence, Overman should have been a screen riot years ago. But the breaks were always against him—and Lynne continued to appear in unsuitable roles on Broadway while inferior comics were scaling the heights in Hollywood.

"Little Miss Marker" finally gives Lynne Overman the opportunity he should have had a long time ago. Within a year it's my guess that he'll be a great star. And we who know what a swell guy he is, are very happy. . . .

* * *

SOME day, if I ever get around to it I'm going to bang out a piece of fiction about a guy who has a race horse named after him. This chap had never gone near a track—but with his name running, he just had to place a bet.

The horse keeps running, but he never wins. The man whose name he bears begins to plunge desperately. He doubles his wager each time in the hope that the horse must win some day. He losses his business and his family, and is finally driven to suicide. That day the horse wins!

If any of the movie companies are interested, I advise them to get in touch with Mr. Ted Husing, my agent, who just had a horse named ofter him.

* * *

IF you had any ideas about the world's dumbest gal, prepare to shed them now. Syd Stogel has a girl friend who wins the title without the slighest argument.

Ever since she was told that "Men in White" won the Pulitzer Prize, this lady has been going around the town congratulating all the street cleaners!

Stork Has Double Burden For Bing Crosbys

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—Really, these Crosbys are too amazing. Last week, X-ray pictures showed that the stork is going to bring two bundles to the Bing Crosby nursery. And now comes a triumphant wire from Spokane, Wash., that Bing's brother, Ted, has just become the father of twins.

This makes five times that the Crosby seniors have become grandparents within a year.

Dixie Lee and Bing had Garry Evans Crosby on June 27. In the same month, a sister, Mary Rose, gave birth to a daughter. Then, in February, Bing's brother, Larry, became the papa of a little girl.

The proud father of the twins is a publicity man for the power bureau in Spokane.

Only one of the six Crosbys is unmarried. He is the youthful Bob, who is working with an orchestra and practicing to become a crooner.

Incidentally, the condition of Dixie Lee is improved. Bing, who is marking time on his picture, "She Loves Me Not," was able to get down to his ranch over the week-end.

Scenario by Wells Of Own Book

H. G. Wells has completed his first motion picture scenario, based on his book, "The Shape of Things to Come." Numerous books of Mr. Wells have previously been made into motion pictures—notably "The Invisible Man"—but they were always in the past adapted for the screen by other hands. Deeply interested in motion pictures as a medium for his ideas, Mr. Wells has now made his own scenario, entitling it "The Hundred Years to Come." It will be made into a picture in England by Alexander Korda, who made "The Private Life of Henry VIII" for London Films.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS :-: By William J. Lewis

The circus is coming! And spring is here, tra-la-la-la-la! An' there's going to be a parade, too, hi-de-hi and ha-cha-cha! Never until announcement comes of the first circus can we be certain that summer is nigh, but that announcement now is made, and you may look for your first arenic entertainment of the season, June 6, when the Hagenback-Wallace circus will show for one day only at Exposition Park grounds, North Side. The old-time street parade, which was abandoned about 10 years ago by the large tent shows, has been revived for this season by the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, and you may expect again to see the gay wagons, drawn by six and eight-horse teams, and to hear the bands play, and to gape goggle-eyed at mounted ladies. Clyde Beatty still is the featured performer of this show, putting 30 to 40 lions and tigers through their paces in a big steel cage. Aerial acts include the Flying Codonas, and there is a new riding act in the Cristiani Troupe, fresh from Europe, besides the other things that always accompany "the daring young man on the flying trapeze."

Henry Foreman, manager of the Hi Hat Club, Aspinwall, was a little astounded when he read the name of another man who was credited with being the director of the popular night spot up the river, which is to open its new patio next Tuesday. And Mr. Foreman is manager.

Three plays written under Chester M. Wallace, instructor in dramatic composition at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be given in the Union of the Administration Building at the studio matinee at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The plays are "The Black Cat Done In," by Louis Kolakoski; "Hector," by J. C. Logan, and "The Wisdom of Soong Yat," by Victor McGovern. They have been directed by Janet Patrick, Walter Derdeyn and George McCalmon. No tickets are required and the public is invited.

Through Harrison Carroll, Hollywood reporter, we learn that Irving Pichel, Pittsburgh actor, had a funny experience. After a performance of Shaw's "Saint Joan" on the stage of the Pasadena Community Playhouse, Pichel, who has become prominent in pictures, was approached by a man who asked him if he wouldn't like to take up screen work, offering to give him a test. The man was a film producer at whose studio the actor is now working in a picture. Well, of course, the boss can't be expected to know personally all his boys and girls.

An X-RAY of GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator Values Revealed

The Refrigerator That Would Impress You Under Such a Strict Observance

NOTHING to disclose . . . and unfortunately you are unable to see all of its hidden values. The General Electric Co. has always been famous for electrical merchandise that will pass the most severe tests and scrutiny, their reputation demands it. If you were to X-Ray the General Electric Refrigerator here is what you would find.

Convenient Features

Stainless Steel Evaporator — accessible — as easily cleaned as a china dish — freezing a large amount of ice cubes quickly.

Sliding shelves that give you 50% more usable shelf space. Eliminates stooping and reaching for food placed in the rear of the refrigerator.

Auxiliary foot pedal door opener — a convenience for opening the door when both hands are occupied with dishes.

Vegetable container for keeping vegetables crisp and tasty.

5 YEARS' PROTECTION on the sealed-in steel mechanism for $5 . . . $1 a year. This charge is included in the delivery price. Do not become confused.

3 MOVING PARTS inside of the steel Monitor Top dome only 3 moving parts, operating on case-hardened steel bearings, comprise the mechanism of the famous General Electric, assuring you of the utmost simplicity.. Motor brushes are eliminated, which offsets brush replacement and radio interference.

NO FANS needed to eliminate the radiation of heat, thus removing a troublesome source of periodic oiling and possibility of sticking.

NO BELTS to break or squeak. Of course, with belt breakage the entire refrigeration system automatically refuses to function until replaced.

NO OILING . . . by that, we mean the mechanism is permanently oiled . . . bathed in a permanent bath of oil that assures proper lubrication. Your worry of the old-fashioned oil-can can be forgotten. As an added protection it has forced feed lubrication.

NO STUFFING BOX to leak and require servicing. Shaft seals are not needed in the G-E Monitor Top.

HERMETICALLY SEALED The entire mechanism is sealed within the strong steel walls of the monitor top away from air, dirt and moisture; just the same as a can of peaches seals its contents from the ravages of the elements (air, dirt and moisture). It is logical to assume that if the mechanism can be protected from these forces—it will not rust or deteriorate, and naturally, will last much longer.

ALL STEEL CABINET built as strong as a safe. Fully insulated cabinet and door with dead air space adding to its efficiency. Acid resisting porcelain interior, rounded corners. Detachable rubber gaskets. Gleaming white exteriors of either Glyptal Enamel or Porcelain.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director — J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

First Two Flight Squadrons Formed
Russell Douglass Gets No. 1 Charter

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, young America's air aces!

To Russell Douglass, 17, of 911 Wool street, Duquesne, goes the honor of being the commander of Flight Squadron No. 1, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Wing, Junior Birdmen of America. He sent in his request for a flight charter along with his name and 9 others last Wednesday. When he heard about our flight squadron plan he corraled all his neighborhood boy friends and had them join the birdmen organization. Congratulations, Russell! I also notice that you are a charter member.

Hold on!

That is not all the squadron news today. The distinction of being the commander of Squadron No. 2 falls to 16-year-old James Baldwin, of 1000 Macon avenue. His request for a charter arrived at the Sun-Telegraph just a few hours after Douglass' request.

That's fine work, Jim—you seem to be a live-wire member. You are also a charter member; your number, as I recall, is 225.

Our local wing is growing by the hour. Membership coupons arrive in every mail and I have received dozens of letters from boys and girls stating that they only needed a few more members until they had a squadron. Take, for instance, the letter yesterday from Evelyn Scott, of Chicora, Pa. She sent in coupons for six of her friends. You see, we do not only have loyal junior birdmen, but also some very active birdwomen.

Before I go further I want to tell you the members of young Douglass' flight squadron. They are as follows:

Flight Squadron Members

Robert McGonegal, captain; Jack McGonegal, William Cooper, Robert Kurzdorfer, Raymond Wells, Harry Douglass, Walter Wells, William Stewart, Howard Snyder, Edward Hillegass, Lawrence Wiegand, Jack Stewart, Reed Mohney, George Shirk, John Shirk, Bernard Krah, Fred Steputis, William Stophel and William Kirkland. Here's hoping that you members of Squadron No. 1 make aviation history some day.

Since Baldwin was not far behind Douglass in his request for a charter I am going to publish the names of the members of his squadron. Besides himself they are:

Robert Ritz, Edwin Booth, George Sanner, Benjamin Cook, Delmar Damrall, Lewis Wible, Ernest Russ, Donald Brown, Robert Stephenson, Jack Alley, Robert Lyle, Hilbert Asjinger, Robert Alexander, Harry Donnelly, Raymond Fisher, William Boocock, Robert Wiley and James Hafer. Good luck, members of Squadron No. 2. I'm sure that you are going to construct many dandy planes.

At this point I want to give you some news from the New York headquarters. Several members who have lost their wings have sent in asking for new ones. The New York office informed me that you will have to send in a dime (10 cents) for new wings. If you are one of those members, be sure that you send in your J. B. number when requesting new pins.

I had hoped to give you some more news about the field day to be held at the City-County Airport on Saturday afternoon, June 9, but I'm going to hold that until tomorrow. Be sure to look for it. And watch for the next model plane-building lesson. It is scheduled to appear Friday.

Air Dictionary List Number 13

Here is the Thirteenth list in our air distionary series. Number 13 is usually an unlucky figure but the various beacons described in this list should make many a pilot lucky in bringing his craft in safely during foggy and stormy weather.

BEACON (AIRPORT)—a beacon light of high candlepower located at or near an airport for the purpose of indicating the general or specific location of the field.

BEACON (AIRWAY)—A beacon light of high candlepower, other than an airport or landmark beacon, located on or near an airway for the purpose of indicating the location of the airway.

BEACON (AUXILIARY airport)—A beacon light, usually of lower candlepower than the main airport beacon light, located on the airport site to indicate the specific location of another airport that has a separate airport beacon visible at a greater distance to indicate the general location of the airpart.

BEACON (AUXILIARY airway)—A light beacon, usually of lower candlepower than the principal airway beacon lights, used to mark special features of the terrain along the airway or otherwise to supplement the principal airway beacons.

BEACON (CODE)—A flashing beacon light have a recognizable characteristic of dots and (or) dashes by which its individual identity can be established.

BEACON (LANDMARK)—A beacon light, other than an airport beacon or an airway beacon, that serves to indicate a definite geographical location.

BEACON RADIO MARKER—A radio transmitter of low power emitting a characteristic aural signal to indicate course positions with respect to a landing field or an airway.

BEACON RADIO RANGE—A radio transmitter supplying directive radio waves that provide a means of keeping an aircraft on its proper course.

BEARING PROJECTOR—A fixed direction projector used in conjunction with a landmark beacon to indicate the direction toward a landng area by means of the direction of its beam.

BED (OF ENGINE)—The engine bed is the metal or ash timbers on which the motor of the craft rests.

The next group of air terms for you to clip out for that growing scrap book of yours will appear shortly. Be sure you follow these every time they appear and save them.

Happy Landings!

Junior Patrol

The oceans and Great Lakes are not far away, fellows!

We who live around Pittsburgh live inland. Of course, we have our fine big three rivers, and we know many people who have boats on the rivers. And there are many thousands who have fun swimming in the rivers and riding in canoes and small boats.

Continually the big boats, the river packets and steamboats, work on the rivers. It's their job to push big flatboats, called barges, up and down the rivers loaded with coal, sand, gravel, iron ore, finished steel, glass and the thousand other things that mills and factories in the Pittsburgh district make and need.

Sometimes boats come up from way down South, even from as far as New Orleans, the great port on the Gulf of Mexico at the mouth of the Mississippi River, bringing us lumber and good things to eat.

But the rivers are not the great oceans or the lakes. Many people here in Pittsburgh have never seen an ocean, and so they have never seen a sea storm or a great ocean liner. Some have not even seen the Great Lakes, where there are big boats, too.

We hope that every Junior Patrol member has been to see the ocean, or that they will soon.

The ocean is so great and broad, and so wonderfully beautiful that you will never forget seeing it.

The seashore is different from a swimming pool, too, though some swimming pools are swell. At the seashore, there is a great sandy beach which goes away as far as you can see for many miles. The waves come rushing in. Most of the time they are just nice big waves, from three to five feet high at many of the beaches. And sometimes, when the ocean is rough, they get much bigger. It's not a good idea to try to swim in the ocean when it is angry that way, and the wind is blowing strong.

But when the day is pleasant, and the waves aren't too high, it is more fun than almost anything. The waves tumble over you and you can jump up and ride on top of them. You can swim between the waves or dive through them. And when you are tired fighting the old ocean you can stretch out on the warm sand and take a salt water sun bath.

Looking out to sea, you can see the big boats on their way to ports all over the world.

Radio Muffs Important News Story

By AIRCASTER

There is considerable excitement in the radio temples, getting organized for the network broadcasts describing the naval review next week, and thus far, the announcers and commentators who will go temporarily nautical number about 25.

This is rather a formidable array of microphoners—perhaps the largest ever to be assigned to what will amount to a news broadcast.

* * *

I wish the descriptionists luck, but I hope that they will be able to put forth a better effort than the would-be radio reporters who didn't do right by the Chicago fire last Saturday night.

From all accounts, the audience might still be wondering just where the fire was, if the newspapers hadn't told them next day.

I did not hear all of the talk about the fire, but a great many of the customers did. An unusual number of them have written letters—and they are not complimentary to the air's newshounds.

* * *

WHERE'S THE FIRE?

The exact location and extent of the fire, I am told by many listeners, was never made clear.

Among the complainants were a number of former Chicagoans, who, naturally, were anxious to know just what was happening. They found out, only in the morning newspapers.

One is assured, as some of the letter-writers point out, by such poor reporting as this, that radio is not destined to do much cutting in on the newspapers' field.

Dr. Bundeson's talk during the fire, in which he recommended, as health officer, that the families living near the fire zone boil their water to avoid contamination from sewers, was not without its humorous phases.

The good doctor was addressing people who, instead of sitting by their radios at attention, were dragging the furniture from their menaced dwellings.

ON WINGS

Capt. Al Williams is winging his way from Pittsburgh to Port Au Prince, Haiti, 2,000 miles down in the West Indies, to join the United States Naval fleet and come north on the airplane carrier Langley for the Presidential review May 31.

Al will take part in the broadcasts describing the fleet's arrival, day after Memorial Day.

Highlights of the Johnstown flood, causing the loss of 2,200 lives 45 years ago next Thursday are to be recalled in a drama staged on WCAE next Thursday morning at 10:30.

Joe Villella, KQV announcer, is chief aide in arranging a series of dances to be held by Pittsburgh, Swissvale, Braddock and Wilkinsburg schools from May 29 to June 26.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Here it is spring, almost summer time, daylight saving, and a complaint from a neighbor on Brainard street.

The neighbor complains because the children of the street in their play run over the lawns and damage the shrubbery. The neighbor doesn't want to be classed as a crank, but he does feel that he has some right to enjoy the fruits of his efforts in keeping a nice yard.

The problem is for all the children to discuss and I'm sure that in a great many cases if Father or Mother will talk to Jimmy and Johnny, pointing out that the man next door tries very hard to keep a nice-looking lawn, the youngsters will do their best to co-operate with the property holders.

Of course it is bad psychology, or at least it was, when I was the romping age, to order youngsters off the premises in a nasty tone of voice accompanied by threats of the policeman. The property holder will have to do his part to make the child understand that he isn't "mad" but only anxious to keep his lawn neat and beautiful.

Anybody lost a love bird? One flew into the window of an automobile driven by J. T. Condon, of 330 Atlantic drive, Mt. Lebanon.

They say that love birds without companions will pine and die.

Elizabeth Carr writes that "we are all so proud of Granddad. He fought in three Civil War battles, and at one time taken prisoner. He has just passed his 90th birthday." He is C. S. Carr, Lilac street, Pitsburgh.

At a recent impromptu gathering, where several of the feasters (who never tasted scnitz and knepp before or since) at the one time dinner in honor of the Mayor, were discussing the palatability of the Dutch dish, David Lawrence, once perturbed at the Mayor's absence, admitted that the smartest thing the Mayor did was not to show up.

Keck's Trained Seals On WCAE Tonight

Carl F. Kauffmann, three times national public parks golf champion, is heard over WCAE tonight at 6 as guest of Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor.

Rubi Blakey's Jubilee Singers present a half-hour program of spirituals over WCAE at 7 p. m.

K. OF C. STATE HEAD RENAMED

More than 300 delegates and their alternates representing 143 Pennsylvania Councils were on their way home today following the three-day state convention here of the Knights of Columbus.

A grand ball, tendered the convention by the Fort Pitt General Assembly, Fourth Degree, closed the convention program in Duquesne Council hall, Oakland, last night.

At business sessions yesterday, John R. P. Magill, of Philadelphia, was re-elected state deputy of the organization, although supporters of John M. Boissou, of Pittsburgh, made his election a close and hotly contested fight.

Other officers elected include: Bernard N. Hanlon, of New Castle, re-elected state secretary; Thomas P. Milan, of Mauch Chunk, state treasurer; Lawrence F. De Ferie, of Tyrone, state advocate and Edward A. McCann, of Crafton, re-elected state warden.

Pittsburgh district men captured three places out of eight for delegates to the Supreme Convention, to be held in August at Detroit. They are: Robert A. Mullaney, Scottdale Council No. 1127; Patrick F. McClain, Latrobe Council No. 940, and William B. Cushing, Donora Council No. 1941.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backaches, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath.

Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

BULGARIA AGAIN MAY MAKE HISTORY

Note—H. R. Knickerbocker, brilliant international correspondent and Pulitzer prize-winner, whose recent series of articles for International News Service on "Will War Come?" attracted world-wide attention, today surveys the suddenly altered European situation caused by Bulgaria's surrender to Fascism last Saturday. He concludes that European history may again be made in the little kingdom of Bulgaria. His article follows.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

LONDON, May 23.—If American ladies had used more rosewater and American gentlemen had smoked more Bulgarian tobacco during the last couple of years, Germany would perhaps have less chance than she has today of mastering Europe.

This apparently fantastic commentary is a long view of Europe's most recent coup d'etat at Sofia, where Bulgarian democracy went down without a struggle and, with the acquiescence of the mild King Boris, delivered the country into the hands of the Fascists.

The first member of a foreign government to visit Bulgaria's new dictators will be Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, right hand man of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, who is due today to call at Sofia, flying back from Athens to Berlin. With Goering is Prince Philip of Hesse, one of the few German nobles who is an out-and-out Nazi and who is a relative of King Boris. It may also be recalled that King Boris is a Coburger, and the Duke of Coburg in Germany was one of the first to approve Chancellor Hitler.

ON 'BLACK SIDE'

The significance of Bulgaria's coup d'etat may prove much greater than Bulgaria's population, which is less than New York City's, and her government income, which is one-tenth of New York City's, would indicate. Bulgaria is the tenth European country to abandon democracy since the war, and with Latvia, whose revolution preceded Bulgaria's by a few days, she has now joined the company of Italy, Germany, the Soviet Union, Turkey, Jugo-Slavia, Poland, Hungary and Austria on the black side of the map of Europe.

One of the prime reasons she did it was the deplorable economic state of the country, due to the catastrophic decline of her foreign trade. Bulgaria's two chief exports are attar of roses and tobacco.

Her total exports have sunk to less than one-third of their volume of 1929. The old government already had granted farmers the right to postpone debt payments up to 15 years and business and professional men up to two years. That was not enough.

SURROUNDED BY FOES

Bulgaria not only suffered from the general world economic crisis, but suffered especially because she is completely isolated and surrounded by enemies who have attempted to choke her economically as well as politically. Hence the new government, headed by the one-eyed fighter, Gen. Kimon Georgieff, with his "Brain Trust" in a political club called "The Chain," seized power, backed by the Army, and resolved, among other things, to end Bulgaria's isolation.

Their first purpose, besides re-establishing relations with the Soviet Union, is to achieve close understanding with Jugoslavia, their Slavic cousin and their only neighbor with whom Bulgarians can talk at all because all the rest of Bulgaria's neighbors took great portions of Bulgaria's territory after the war. This move toward a Bulgarian-Jugoslavian alliance greatly annoys Italy, who is Jugo-Slavia's number one enemy, and who has hitherto had primary influence in Bulgaria.

FRANCE PLEASED

It also pleases France because Jugoslavia is nominally a member of the French alliance. But Paris is reckoning without Belgrade. Sooner or later it appears inevitable Austria will become a part of Germany. When it does, then Italy becomes anti-German. All signs at Belgrade indicate that in that event Jugoslavia will join up with Germany.

Thus, if Bulgaria has become allied with Jugo-Slavia, automatically Bulgaria becomes a part of the German bloc which will then stretch from the Baltic to the Black Sea and include Germany, Austria, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria, with a population of 100,000,000—and the best fighting men in Europe.

Before any of this can happen Bulgaria must suppress her Macedonians, whose raids into Jugo-Slavia frequently have brought the two countries to the verge of war in the past 10 years.

OUTRANKS DILLINGER

The Macedonians, with headquarters in the Bulgarian province neighboring Jugo-Slavia, are ruled by Vantche Mihailoff, a terrorist beside whom Dillinger, the American outlaw, is an amateur killer. His "Impro," of revolutionary Macedonian organization, is more skilled in assassination than ever Sicily's Mafia was. His aim is to free Macedonians in Jugo-Slavia from Jugo-Slavian rule. No previous Bulgarian government ever has felt strong enough to defy Vantch Mihailoff, the Number One killer of the Balkans.

This government has sent Mihailoff the black bean, the "Imro's" notice to go "on the spot." Mihailoff always has answered the black bean with bombs. Balkan and European history again may be made in Bulgaria.

FIREMEN SEARCHING FOR DEAD AFTER FALLING TANK WRECKED CHICAGO BUILDING

King's Status Unchanged Bulgarian Dictator Says

BULGARIA NABS REBEL CHIEF

International News Service.

SOFIA, May 23.—The new Fascist military government of Bulgaria today arrested Ivan Mihailoff, leader of rebellious Macedonian factions long embattled against the Sofia regime, and 300 of his followers in a sweeping move to stamp out threats of revolt.

Their arrests marked the final establishment of full authority throughout Bulgaria by the new government, which seized power in a coup d'etat last week.

Bulgarian Macedonia thus apparently was subjected to strict rule by Sofia for the first time in years, since Macedonia, lying within the borders of several Balkan states, long had clamored for its independence.

POLICE CLUBS ROUT STUDENTS

BELGRADE, May 23.—(AP.)—Prison bars and the bayonets of gendarmes held in submission today 600 university students—girls as well as men—who rioted against the Minister of Education.

The gendarmes, brandishing clubs and bayonets, ended a two-day siege of the striking students last night when they routed them from two university buildings.

Some 275 students, among them 35 girls, were in jail today and a heavy guard was thrown about the school buildings to prevent further outbreaks from other undergraduates.

Eight hundred police surrounded the beleaguered strikers early Monday, intending to starve the students out. They charged the buildings, however, when the students threatened to throw five professors held as hostages out the windows.

SHUN LEAGUE, BRITAIN TOLD

Universal Service.

LONDON, May 23.—Advising Britain to hold aloof from the League of Nations, Lord Rothermere, British publisher, stated today in his London Daily Mail:

"We British must take no part in the league's ill-omened plans for 'reconstruction' of China. The basis of our foreign policy in the Far East can be stated in three words—friendship with Japan."

Chinese Charge Slaughter to Japs

SHANGHAI, May 24.—(AP.)—(Thursday)—Chinese reports from Peiping today allege a Japanese air squadron bombed a wide area around Chingchow in Southeast Manchuria yesterday (Wednesday), killing 1,000 Manchurian farmers and destroying 20 villages.

These dispatches said the onslaught followed the farmers' refusal to comply with Japanese aramy demands that the Chinese give up their arms.

Fascist Rule Denied By Premier; Hopes For Peace

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 23.—The new regime in Bulgaria does not mean a change in the status of King Boris and it is not even proper to describe it as a Fascist regime, the new premier, Kimon Gueorguieff, said in a half-hour conversation in his office near the Royal Palace today.

Said the lieutenant colonel of Reserves who, last Saturday, startled the world with his coup d'etat:

"This, first of all, is a Bulgarian government. It is adapted to the particular needs of this particular country and is not patterned on any foreign model."

He was asked:

"Would you describe the trend of the new regime toward the left or toward the right?"

He replied quickly:

WEARS SPECTACLES

Gueorguieff—despite his spectacular military coup, which pushed him into his present prominence—looks to be anything but a dictator.

He is a man of medium height, is slightly bald, and wears spectacles. He was wearing a lounge suit when I talked to him and, with his friendly manner and soft voice, might well have been an American college professor receiving a visitor in his study.

Only when questioned as to the status of the King did his voice become harsh and metallic. He was told:

"Rumors, various and spectacular, have been circulating abroad in connection with the effect of the coup d'etat on the King's position. Does the new regime in fact mean a change in the status of the King?"

CRISP ANSWER

In crisp, brittle Bulgarian the Premier shot back the answer:

"Not the slightest!"

Col. Gueorguieff objected to a description of the new regime as swinging away from Italy toward Jugo-Slavia. He said:

"It is our desire to establish the friendliest relations with our neighbor Jugo-Slavia, but not only with Jugo-Slavia, with all nations, Italy included."

Whether all political parties in Bulgaria will be abolished is a question, said Gueorguieff "being studied but not yet decided."

APOLOGY SENT JAPS BY REDS

International News Service.

WARSAW, May 23.—The Soviet government has apologized to Japan for the incident at Khabarovsk, Siberia, where the Japanese consulate was fired on Sunday morning, it was learned here today from unimpeachable sources. The apology followed an official Japanese protest, it was learned.

According to the Soviet version of the incident, as reported here, the shot which struck the consulate was a stray bullet fired by a policeman who was attempting to suppress a disturbance in a nearby restaurant. The policeman fired over the heads of the rioters, it was stated, and one bullet penetrated the consulate.

3 DIE IN TANK COLLAPSE

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP.)—The thundering plunge of a steel water tank through the upper floors of a seven-story building left three dead and seven injured today.

Three others were missing but search for them could not be made immediately because of the fear that tangled steel and smashed masonry would come crashing down in another collapse.

The tank, weighing 330,000 pounds, crashed through four floors of the Oakley Building.

Terror reigned for some 200 women and men employed in the various manufacturing shops and laboratories housed by the structure, when the huge tank with 40,000 gallons of water, smashed through girders, beams and ceilings as though they were made of machwood.

The known dead were Kenneth Healy, 29, an engraver employed on the top floor; George Fischer, 69, a commercial artist who had a business visit in the building, and an unidentified man. Their bodies were recovered.

HAVANA EDITOR WOUNDED

HAVANA, May 23.—(AP.)—The 35-year-old editor of a Havana newspaper was in a hospital today with a bullet wound in his shoulder while owners of another newspaper were surveying damage caused by a bomb explosion.

Unidentified assailants fired upon Jose Ignacio Rivero, editor of Diario de la Marina, which has been conducting a campaign against Communists.

An automobile drew up beside the editor's car on a downtown street and poured a fusillade into it. Two soldiers, guards hired by Rivero, returned the fire. One of the guards was slightly wounded.

At the Havana Post, which professes no political partisanship, a bomb let go, smashing doors and windows. No one was injured.

LINK GERMANY IN SAAR THEFT

International News Service.

SAARBRUCKEN, May 23.—All records of the French bureau of highways and schools and of general maintenance in the Saar region were stolen during the night.

The League of Nations administration of the Saar was informed today that the records were loaded upon three trucks which departed toward Germany.

The incident has caused great excitement because of the Franco-German tension over the 1935 plebiscite to determine the fate of the Saar.

DEBT CUT PLEA AVOIDED BY ROOSEVELT

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Roosevelt has decided to refrain from recommending in his debt message to Congress any general downward revision of Europe's debts to the United States at the present time.

This was learned today as the President started drafting his message on the failure of the European nations in general to meet their American obligations.

Hopelessness of bridging the gap between what the European nations might be willing to pay and what might be acceptable to Congress was said in authoritative quarters to be responsible for the President's decision.

However, one outstanding feature of the President's message may be a declaration that this government considers the European nations should commence to make payments more in line with what is known to be their capacity to pay.

If the debtors make substantial payments on the $174,000,000 they are due to pay June 15, it is considered possible that this government would refrain from calling attention to the fact they were in default on the unpaid balance.

However, there are no definite indications as yet that any of them, with the exception of Finland, intend to do so. Finland is the only European debtor which has met its American obligations in full.

FRANCE BLAMES U. S. OVER ARMS

Universal Service.

PARIS, May 23.—Blame for the impending breakdown of the disarmament conference yesterday was laid on the United States' doorstep by the usually government inspired newspaper, Le Temps.

In a front-page editorial, Le Temps indicates that the United States' refusal to embroil itself in the European crisis by giving security commitments has balked progressive disarmament, in the opinion of France.

American instances on the freedom of the seas has prevented Britain from "underwriting European peace by giving security guarantees to the continent, the newspaper adds.

Le Temps called on the United States to take the initiative in offering France a bargain war debts settlement and giving France the security guarantees against Germany she demands for disarmament concessions.

PARIS 'FLIRTING' WITH HITLER

PARIS, May 23.—(AP.)—The French cabinet will confer tomorrow on the suggestion of Louis Barthou, foreign minister, that it would be better to get Germany into an association in which she couold be watched than it would be to shut her off from her neighbors.

The cabinet was expected in authoritative circles to approve the idea whereby France would seek the pacification of Europe through mutual assistance pacts.

Any suggestion of reviving the pre-war military alliance between France and Russia was said by an authority to be impossible, the tendency being to avoid the alliance as leading to "too many adventures."

Diplomatic circles commented that Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign minister, was interested in such an alliance in order to solidify the Soviet western front, thereby giving Russia the opportunity of turning her undivided attention to Japan.

SWANSON SEES U. S. ON ALERT IN PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—Secretary Swanson told reporters in response to questions today that the United States would have to consider strengthening naval bases in the Pacific should Japan seek to build a fleet in excess of limits of the Washington naval treaty or to attain naval parity with the United States and Great Britain.

The Secretary said he believed the present 5-5-3 ratio should be maintained between the fleets of this country, Great Britain and Japan. He added:

"The naval powers met in London and thought they gave safety to each nation. I see no reason for reconsideration at this time."

He gave no indication that he believed Japan was attempting to obtain a fleet of greter strength than permitted under the Washington treaty.

Swanson also said Navy officials are still divided on the question of the utility of dirigibles and that any dicision would be reserved until after full reports are received on participation of the Macon in the Carribbean fleet maneuvers. He said:

"Weare still experimenting."

ARMS EMBARGO VOTED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—The House today voted to give President Roosevelt authority to bar sale of arms and munitions in the United States for use in the Gran Chaco War between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The McReynolds' resolution was sent to the Senate without a dissenting vote after brief consideration.

Chairman McReynolds (Dem.), of Tennessee, of the Foreign Affairs Committee, submitted to the House a table showing that during 1933, United States exports of munitions to Bolivia amounted to $408,707 and to Paraguay $38,511 and in the first three months of 1934, $253,161 to Bolivia and $60,218 to Paraguay.

BRITAIN READY TO ADD ARMS

Universal Service.

LONDON, May 23.—Preparations have been made and a survey has been completed to build up the British navy and air force should the disarmament conference fail, Hector Bywater, naval correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, reported today. He stated:

"It is not only in respect to air armament that the government has been quietly preparing for emergencies. A survey was recently taken of our resources for expanding the navy when need arises and at the same time there is already a pronounced tendency to speed up construction."

Mexico Bans Arms To Halt Chaco War

MEXICO, D. F., May 23.—(AP.)—Mexico claimed today the distinction of being the first nation to declare an embargo on shipments of arms to Paraguay and Bolivia in compliance with the League of Nations move to end the Chaco War.

GROUPS SPEED TEXTS FOR RUSHMORE

Important among the organizations actively participating in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition is the Catholic Daughters of America.

The national officers early recommended every member to write their version of America's epic in 600 words. The courts throughout the district quickly named their special committee chairman and prepared to co-operate through a committee with the Pittsburgh regional judges.

Miss Catherene Monohan was named chairman by the vice state regent, Miss Margaret McHugh, of Uniontown. All members of the Catholic Daughters are submitting their entries in this historical project direct to Miss Monahan, at 904 Phineas street, North Side, Pittsburgh.

As the closing date of midnight, May 30, draws nearer, this huge membership as well as members of many other participating organizations are rushing their texts to completion. Winning texts in the four classifications in this district will be submitted to the national committee, of which President Roosevelt is chairman. The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers have invited every man, woman and youth to enter the competition being conducted for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission.

There are sufficient days remaining to still prepare a text based on nine specific episodes of history in an effort to gain the honor of writing the text that will become the basis of the greatest national monument in the world.

FORD PLAYS 'PEEK-A-BOO', DODGES M'NAIR'S INVITATION

COURT SCORES BARBECUE KILLING

Police Bungled, Says Judge, Suspending Sentence

The fatal "framed" barbecue holdup in Indiana Township Februeary 14 was denounced by Judge W. Heber Dithrich in court today in suspending sentence on Milton Eckel, 19, of Culmersville, charged with violating the state firearms act in connection with the holdup.

The court said:

"This is the biggest piece of police bungling that has ever come to the attention of the court."

Judge Dithrich expressed willingness to quash the charge against Eckel if District Attorney A. T. Park would agree, but Park refused. Eckel then pleaded no defense.

Eckel told the court he had been given a revolver by Constable Irvey Asay in planning "to get" John Cotton, 19, of Curtisville.

Eckel accompanied Cotton into the barbecue of M. A. Sallade in KDKA boulevard while state police and constables watched, the court was informed. In a fusillade of shots Cotton was killed and Eckel wounded in the shoulder.

Two state policemen and two constables were exonerated by a coroner's jury of murder charges in the shooting.

MAPS PROGRAM FOR PARKS

A program based on a master plan for the development of Pittsburgh parks and playgrounds is to be launched under a new superintendent of the Bureau of Parks, Ralph E. Griswold, whose appointment takes effect June 1.

Griswold has a national reputation as a landscape artist, having won a fellowship in landscape architecture at the American Academy in Rome, Italy, and spent three years of travel and study in Europe.

His appointment was announced yesterday by Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston. He succeeds Superintendent James Moore, who has worked for the city for more than 40 years and who will retire on a pension after June 1.

Director Johnston praised Supt. Moore for the long period of service to the city.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor of Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 23.

Senator Norris wanted to abolish the electoral college. This is a bad time to try and do away with anything connected with "college." He will have to wait till the low-browes get in. Well he is not a man to get discouraged, he was years trying to get them to abolish the lame duck session. When you get down to common sense, and level headedness, and answerable to nobody but his own conscience, you just about got the definition of that quiet fighting old Senator.

Will Rogers.

Yours, WILL.

'MISS X,' CITY'S MYSTERY GIRL, HOME AGAIN

Cecelia's Name Given Police as Hajduk, Of North Side

Oakland's "mystery girl," who steadfastly refused to give her name to police after being found walking on Second avenue street car tracks and thereby earned for herself a night in a cell, was back home today.

Matrons and officers were heaving sighs of relief, but the girl's outlook in the matter was subject of conjecture, in view of the story she told in the matron's department at Central Police Station yesterday.

TELLS OF QUARRELS

Fluently, using perfect English and speaking in a low voice—but always remembering, despite her fluency, that her name was entirely her own business—"Miss X" recounted a series of disappointing occurrences as she sat without plans in her cell.

They involved a quarrel at home resulting in her departure for parts unknown shortly after New Years Day, working as a domestic in Squirrel Hill, a search conducted by her boy friend over a six-week period, sweethearts' reunion, sweethearts' quarrel, and the midnight walk which ended in the police station.

BOY FRIEND GOING AWAY

She said her name was Cecelia. That she was 22. That she had known the youth four years, that they had quarreled because he was going away "for the whole summer," which she didn't like, and that she would slap his face if she "saw him right now."

Asked which quarrel carried the most weight in her apparent decision to remain in the matron's department indefinitely, the young lady replied:

"Oh, about half and half."

She was identified last night by a woman, whose name was not learned by police, as Miss Cecelia Hajduk, 21, of 1511 Beaver avenue, North Side. She was turned over to her parents last night. No charge was preferred against her.

BELL ASSURES POLICE ON JOBS

Lieutenants of the Pittsburgh police force came to work today with the assurance their jobs were good as long as they did their work well.

Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell gave the assurance at a pep meeting of the police department yesterday. He didn't use those exact words, but he did say they were safe from dismissal unless there was a "good reason" for it.

The commissioned men were also told that ward chairmen are to be disregarded when enforcing the law. They are to receive the same treatment as the average citizen.

Man, Held as Drunk, Found Dead in Cell

Kelly, 42, a lodger at the Improvement of the Poor, was found dead last night in a cell in the Center Avenue Police Station, eight hours after he had been arrested on a charge of drunkenness, according to the Coroner's report. After his arrest, Kelly was taken to Passavant Hospital and later lodged in a cell, it was reported. An autopsy at the morgue disclosed pneumonia as the cause of death.

PRESBYTERIAN CLASH NEAR

CLEVELAND, May 23.—(AP.)—The first flare-up of the fundamentalist - modernist controversy in this year's general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. threatens to develop tomorrow only a few hours after the opening session is called to order.

The touch-off will come, numerous leaders of the assembly believe, in the election of a new moderator to succeed the Rev. John McDowell, of New York City, one of the first acts of the initial meeting.

Fundamentalists and liberals conducted the final campaigning for their respective candidates today, but made no predictions of the outcome. The two outstanding candidates are Dr. W. C. Covert, of Philadelphia, representing the liberal group, and the Rev. James C. McConnell, of Upper Darby, Pa., a favorite of the fundamentalists.

ORDER PORT VUE PAY INTEREST

Judge William H. McNaugher, in Common Pleas Court yesterday, directed Port Vue Borough to pay the Realty Company $6,994 interest by October 1, next, on penalty of foreclosure on the borough's water plant.

In addition the borough must set up $6,842 in a sinking fund to retire bonds.

On January 1, 1923, the borough became the owner of the water plant and $31,000 in bonds was paid over to the Realty Company for the purchase of the plant. The agreement was that the borough should pay the interest on the bonds and provide a sinking fund to retire them, but the borough has not operated the plant at a profit.

TRIES TO HANG SELF IN CELL

Arthur Ward Devlin, 25, of 5747 Kentucky avenue, was held in the East End Police Station today following his alleged attempt to hang himself in a cell in the Squirrel Hill Station last night.

Devlin, awaiting arraignment on a reckless driving charge, suspended himself from a cross bar by two handkerchiefs which he had fashioned into a rope, according to Sergt. John P. McCullough who cut him down. McCullough and two patrolmen revived him and took him to Homeopathic Hospital. Later he was lodged in the East End Police Station.

Devlin, one of three men injured in a collision of two automobiles at Northumberland street and Murray avenue, last Friday, was discharged from Homeopathic Hospital yesterday. Miss Margaret Mitchell, of 5334 Forbes street, and Miss Gretchen Lappe, of 6536 Northumberland street, riding in the other machine, suffered shock.

COUNTY ROADS BEAUTIFIED

Director Thomas O. Hasley, of the County Department of Highways, Bridges and Tunnels, today announced that the beautification and clean-up of the roadsides along county highways and properties was going forward.

The cost of the clean-up and repair, including materials for the county system, is $150,000 a year, which, Hasley said, compared with previous annual costs of $600,000 and $700,000.

Every Word in Darrow-Johnson Dispute Sizzles

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Discovering NRA codes violate anti-trust laws is as surprising as chasing a rabbit and catching up with a wolf.

That's what Darrow says. And Clarence is a gentleman when he ain't a scholar.

Gen. Johnson is sorer than a sunburned Albino. He gave Darrow a seat in the reviewing stand. But Clarence moved over to the Bronx cheering section.

The famous mouth-piece claims the whole thing is illegal and monopolistic. The general retorts that Clarence is radical. Every word a heat wave.

The whole thing can be smoothed over like icing on a cake. Let Darrow write another report. And have him stick to Babe Ruth's batting average.

PITT FUND NEAR HALF MILLION

Volunteers working in the campaign to complete the Cathedral of Learning have brought the fund to a total of $441,759 by reporting $36,606 for one day's work.

Meanwhile, hundreds of visitors continue to inspect the 42-story structure.

Confidence that the organization of 500 volunteers is moving with greater momentum was expressed last night by Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the citizens' committee, who said he believed the next report at noon tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel would show a tremendous gain.

ORDER REPAIRS TO HIGHWAY

Work on the relocation and straightening of the Stoops Ferry and Shousetown road will begin soon, county officials announced today.

Approval of the project was secured yesterday from a county grand jury, which inspected the road, where several serious accidents occurred last month.

The county planning commission presented to the jury plans which would widen the Stoops Ferry and Shousetown road at the approach and entrance to the Narrows Run road. Under the grand jury's approval, there will be two 30-foot lanes, separated by an island at the entrance to the Narrows Run road, eliminating the sharp curve following the 10 per cent grade.

BELLEVUE BAND ON WAY WEST

Seeking the national championship for Class B high school orchestras, the Bellevue High School orchestras, directed by Robert H. Ruthart, left today over the Pennsylvania Railroad for Ottawa, Kan., to participate Friday night in the nation-wide competition.

A throng of students and citizens assembled at the Bellevue station to see them off.

Last year Bellevue won second honors in the national competition.

Council to Consider Payroll Changes

Numerous changes in the city payroll suggested by department heads are to be considered tomorrow afternoon in a hearing before City Council. Many job eliminations are involved, particularly in the Department of Public Works, and there are some increases in the salary list. The net result of the recommendations, if adopted, would be a small reduction in expense.

MYSTERY VISIT HAS MAYOR AFLUTTER

Goes to Foster Home As 'His Honor' Asks 'Where Is He?'

Returning here for a second mysterious visit to the reputed birthplace of Stephen C. Foster, Henry Ford today played hide and seek with a police inspector who tried to deliver an invitation from Mayor McNair.

It was Ford's second visit within a week to the weather-beaten cottage at 3414 Penn avenue, which he bought to add to his collection of early American homes near Dearborn, Mich.

Whether the motor magnate's return visit was inspired by the controversy over the authenticity o fthe cottage being Foster's birthplace was not learned.

Reporters were unable to get an answer fro mhim on that score, but R. F. Leonard, Ford manager here, who accompanied the motor magnate, denied that the controversy had anything to do with his visit.

QUOTED AS 'SATISFIED'

Leonard said:

"You may quote Mr. Ford as saying he is satisfied he bought the correct cottage as Foster's birthplace."

Less fortunate than newspapermen, who at least got a glimpse of the motor magnate, was Traffic Inspector Jacob Dosey, whom the Mayo rsent to locate Ford and deliver an invitation to visit him in the City-County Building.

Inspector Dorsey rode up to the Foster cottage shortly after Ford had made a 15-minute inspection tour of the place.

Later in the afternoon Ford returned for another look at the cottage but Dorsey had left, presumably to seek him elsewhere.

AND M'NAIR WONDERS

Meanwhile, in City Hall, Mayor McNair asked reporters::

"Why doesn't Mr. Ford come in and see me? I think I ought to tell him about the Foster home. I have all my records at his disposal if he wants to come here."

The records he referred to were those recently laid before a group of clubwomen by City Assessor William B. Foster, a nephew of the composer.

The nephew claimed that Foster's birthplace had been on the site of the Foster Memorial on Penn avenue two blocks beyond the cottage. The house was torn down years ago, he said.

'IT'S RIGHT PLACE'

But Charles Cornforth, 78, retired steel worker, said today that Ford bought the right place.

Cornforth, who lives at 5224 Holmes street, said he has lived for 55 years in the vicinity where both the cottage and the memorial are located.

The cottage was pointed out as Foster's birthplace when he first moved into the district.

M'NAIR BALKED IN TRACTION JOB

Mayor McNair is temporarily balked in sending in more appointments for the $12,000 Traction Conference Board job of Charles A. Finley.

Council has laid on the table his latest appointment, Kermit McFarland, newspaper man, along with a letter from McFarland asking that Council not consider the appointment seriously.

Councilman William A. Magee, meanwhile, has an ordinance which is being studied in the Law Department which would take the power to appoint Traction Board members out of the Mayor's hands and place it in Council.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Little Jesse F. Macfarlane, Jr. (he's kindergarten age), has gone travelling—and without consulting his Aunt Betty's Travel Bureau either. (His aunt is Miss Elizabeth Macfarlane.)

Telling his mother that he would return to her sometime, he departed, and arrived at his grandparents' home in Woodland road. His grandparents are the James R. Macfarlanes.

He informed his grandparents he'd come to stay a week or a month, or he might go home on Sunday.

To keep their young visitor as long as they could, they racked their minds for ways to amuse him. They even brought out his Aunt Betty's dollhouse, relic of her childhood days.

But he prefers a packing box, which he has placed conspicuously on the front verandah of the house in exclusive Woodland road, and the packing box is his house.

Among visitors in his house is a family of squirrels living in a nearby great oak tree.

Century Club Program Full Of Humor

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Another of the Dormont New Century Club literary department's luncheon frolics, which have become famous in the club's annals, was given yesterday at the clubhouse with nearly 100 women present. It was an NRA program, this time, for these Dormont women are nothing if not up to date. Only to them NRA yesterday meant "Nuts Return Again." The department chairman, Mrs. Clarence W. Scheck, in "tails," silk hat and with a mustache was "Gen. Johnson" who explained how, from a bowl of alphabet soup, he and the President evolved the meaningful initials.

There followed equally ridiculous and amusing talks and acts by Mrs. E. L. Thomssen on AAA (Assinine Associated Answers); Mrs. C. E. Frankenberry on PWA (Papa Wants Attention) and Mrs. H. M. White, the retiring president, on RWD (Regusted With Dates).

CWA (Clever Women's Antics) was an "act" in which the women wore their clothes backwards, their hair over their faces and masks of various kinds over the backs of their heads. Mrs. C. C. Taylor wrote "Current Comic Comments" for CCC, and Mrs. Richard B. Perry struck a serious note in her RFC (Real Friends Convene). The new president, Mrs. Ronald L. Thompson, had a brief message, too.

Mrs. E. E. Houghtelin was again the efficient chairman in charge for the day and again furnished the original verses which served to introduce the speakers and the original songs which were sung in assembly. Mrs. H. C. Stevens, new department chairman, presented Mrs. Scheck with a silver compote.

The decorations, spring flowers and small flags, as well as the red, white and blue caps and aprons of the committee, furthered the NRA idea.

Literary Circle Has Meeting

Mrs. Englehart will serve as recording secretary and Mrs. W. J. Probst, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. B. Breener, treasurer, and Mrs. V. K. Leslie auditor.

A number of other organizations were represented at the meeting.

Displays will be exhibited from 2 until 9 o'clock and the flowers, of course, must be grown by the exhibitors.

The exhibits will be placed in three classifications, the first, specimens; the second, artistic arrangement, and the third, a garden nook and novelties. Mrs. S. G. Dunning is chairman.

Mrs. E. J. McCoy will serve as chairman for the annual spring flower show to be held under the auspices of the Edgewood Acres Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association at the Hawthorne School on June 7. Mrs. Norman Allen will be in charge of registration.

Blue ribbons will be awarded for specimens and for the best arrangements of flowers for breakfast nook, living room, bubble bowl, wall pocket and nosegay. Junior exhibitors will receive awards for the best arrangement for teacher's desk and for the best miniature bouquet.

Hostesses will be Mrs. F. H. Wynne, Mrs. E. K. Read, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mrs. J. Scarr and Mrs. J. E. McFeely. They will be assisted by Margaret Belknap, Ruth Brace, Betty Brass, Mary Louise Conover, Jeanne Fox, Ellen Hastings, Lois Hauser, Betty Johnescue, Jean McIntyre, Betty McKee and Eleanor Reddie, of the Junior Garden Club.

Trivialities!
A famous artist once said that "Trifles make perfection but perfection is no trifle." It is the result of bothering with what some hairdressers consider trifles that has been responsible for the success of Mr. Morin's permanent waves.
Sounds like more catchy advertising!!! It is, but to the skeptical we offer not only results but proof. Do you know of any hairdresser who devoted any of his time conducting research work in collaboration with men whose lives are devoted to such work? Do you know of any hairdresser who was willing to take up the study of chemistry to make this possible? Mr. Morin has done just that and now his experience is at your service.

Monkey business! . . . the new little marcasite animal pins! They're awfully cute to pin into the neck of a sports frock . . . or to give as a remembrance at graduation time. Monkeys . . . elephants . . . jockeys . . . donkeys . . . in glittering marcasite with touches of yellow, white, or red enamel. $1.00 apiece.

* * *

Something pretty nice to use as a luxurious aid to keeping as cool as . . . as doing as little as, possible these hot days, is the fine French soap that comes with a "tail" all its own—a little tape and ring hanging from one end. In the box with it, there is a rubber suction cap to stick to the side of the tub . . . and . . . hang your soap up wherever most handy without even moving! How about it! Such laziness . . . but don't you just luu-ve it? $1.00 for the box of three soaps and three suction pegs.

* * *

We think we've been pretty lucky in spotting unusual price events at the exclusive shops around the town! And now here comes another . . . a clearance of the fine-finer-finest things you could want in sports types.

Really excellent things that used to sell for fabulous sums (or at least, they sound so when repeated in an awestruck voice), particularly we marked a sports coat-suit (we suppose that's what you'd call it). Excellent for motoring, traveling, vacationing and such. Of yellow, brown, tan and white plaid cut loosely with cape sleeves . . . and a "built-in" vest that buttons right up to the chin. It WAS $42.50 . . . and it is going to sell now for $29.50. In size 16. So step right up if you could use such a thing.

And there is a brown English fabric made up into the best-cut suit we've laid eyes on in some y'ars! A simple classic . . . plain, well tailored . . . made to be worn by a lady-to-manner-born and all that! $39.50 reduced to $27.50 . . . size 18 . . . and a bargain if ever we saw one. To put away for the Fall, of course.

And value Number Three would be this blue and white knit two-piecer with flecks of yellow, orange, and green splashed hither and yon . . . with 4 silver metal ball buttons at each shoulder . . . and a bright Royal blue knit scarf that muffles up (perish the thought on a hot day!) your throat. Here also we are moved to assure you that we scarcely expect you to wear this right NOW . . . but for, a cool day or the Fall it would be ideal. Size 16.

* * *

A good shampoo for the scrubbing of and the scouring of your little wiglet! We come upon it tucked forlornly away at one of the stores . . . wearing the downcast price of 10c the great big box . . . and simply crying to be bought. Nice and fuzzy-seeming whilst foaming up over your scalp . . . excellent for dry hair . . . and certainly cheap enough to delight the soul of any blear-eyed budget!

Woman, 89, Advocates Control

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 23.—(AP.)—America's oldest active club woman, Mrs. L. L. Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, took the lead yesterday before the council meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in favor of birth control, a definite move for peace, and a new national temperance program.

The 89-year-old pioneer club woman declared that when leaders recognize that regulation of population must come, rather than war, criminals and mental defectives will be sterilized. Mrs. Blankenburg's remarks opened the way for general discussion today on birth control.

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, nationally known proponent of federal legislation to permit the dissemination of birth control literature, who was to have presented the affirmative side of the question to the council delegates, sent word she would be unable to come.

Mrs. Blankenburg, who is the widow of Philadelphia's famous reform Mayor, Rudolph Blankenburg, was particularly caustic concerning many of the administration's recovery measures.

She said her position was that it was "time to stop squandering our poor inflated dollar," and she demanded to know where there was any wisdom in destroying food while there is hunger through the land.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Good Conversationalist But Can't Keep Girl

He is a good conversationalist. Even so, he has bad luck with his PASTIMES.

That is what Duke writes me . . . And he appears to be quite a lady killer . . . He has plenty of girls, one after the other. But, as he says, they always pull a fast one, and that ends it.

Maybe the girls don't like being relegated to the PASTIME contingency . . . It may be they have felt as if they were one of a team of nine, and you were playing baseball with them. . . . Or again, they may have recognized your easy manner, and have planned to go while the going was good.

Miss Brunot

We are the sex who are looked upon as intuitive . . . And we often work our intuition as well as our eyes, Duke.

Anyway, here goes:

Dear Miss Brunot:

What will the public think when it finally happens that a boy can't manage his own pastimes? But I must present my problem. You see, since school began last September, I have had three different girls. Now, I don't claim to be handsome, but I can hold my own in conversation.

These three girls have all pulled fast ones on me, and very hastily I have dropped them and gotten another. In all three cases, I have not regretted it. But now there is another. Will you inform me what is wrong? I would like to remedy it.

DUKE.

Try thinking less of yourself and the impression you are creating. And more of the girl, Duke. To keep going with this girl you now have, be generous, interested in her personally, and let her have a share in the conversation.

Women are the talkative force in society, and when a fellow occupies the floor continually, there is something unnatural about the situation.

WANTS BOY BACK

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have known a certain young man nearly all my life. But only lately have we become better friends. How this started was with notes. Then he began dating me, and I fell very much in love. He took me to a dance. But after the dance our friendship ceased.

We never had a quarrel, and it hurts me to see him pass me and just speak, that is all. I gave back a ring of his I was wearing. What should I do to make up with him again? Thank you. LOVE SICK.

Maybe you did something when at the dance, Love Sick, that your boy friend did not like. You are sure you danced enough with him, and that you did not let other fellows "cut in" on him?

Be pleasant, and act as if nothing had happened, and he may return to you. However, in the mean while, try not to think of him. You may meet someone else you would like even better than you do him.

ALL GIRL'S FAULT

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl, 17, and am in love with a boy one year older. I met him in November, and we are keeping steady company until March 25. He and I had a quarrel on a Sunday, and on the following Wednesday I went to the hospital. He never came to see me while I was there. Was it because we had quarreled?

When I got out of the hospital, he came down to see me two or three times. Why? He told me he loved me and was going to marry me. Our plans seem to have crashed so sadly. In this last month he has disappointed me so often. I am sick of it. But I still care.

I wrote him a letter, telling him we were through. And his cousin told me he was very angry. I saw him Sunday, and he told me that I had never given him any time to explain. But I didn't accept this. He then told me he was through with me.

He said he liked my girl friend better than he did me. I will be looking for your answer in the Sun-Telegraph.

TOOTS.

I agree with the young man, and really believe you did not give him time to explain. He may have been very angry when he said he was THROUGH with you.

If every woman took every man at his word when he made such a statement, there would be many of us LEFT. That is quite an ordinary threat, when a man is disgruntled. There are many young men who would not have gone to a hospital to see a girl. And the fact that he came up to see you afterwards showed he was still thinking of you.

Be more patient and pleasant and not at all given to scolding, and I really believe you will have the attention of this boy friend again.

TAKEN AT HER WORD

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 15, and a young man of 17 has been coming to see me for a year and one-half. Lately he was here and said he would not see me any more. Well, I like him very much, but have been told that if you like a fellow you must not let him know it. So to be independent, I told him it suited me if he stayed away.

One of his friends has seen me and says he has asked him to tell me he wants to come back. It almost burns him up to see me out with the other fellows. I realize I am young and that there is lots ahead of me, yet I like him. I leave this up to you, dear Miss Brunot, to decide for me. LOU.

I cannot see why you can't see this fellow quite often, providing your parents do not object. I agree you are young to have a boy friend. Yet since he and you have been such friends for a year and a half and both like each other, it does seem too bad to break up your good times.

VALUE OF GWINNETT'S AUTOGRAPH POINTED OUT BY FAY KING

By FAY KING

"Button, Button, who's got"—a Button Gwinnett autograph? Great luck, if you can unearth the signature of this thirteenth (alphabetically) signer of the Declaration of Independence.

In May, 1770, Button Gwinnett wrote his name as witness on a will. This May, 1934, that signature sold for $10,100.

A "bargain" at that for the buyer, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, paid $22,500 for Gwinnett's autograph at an auction in 1926.

Button Gwinnett was one of the three delegates from Georgia, where he had come in 1770, aged 38, from Bristol, England.

He was an enthusiastic American patriot.

Twice elected to Congress, and holding the highest office in Georgia, bitterness from clash of authority led to a duel with Gen. McIntosh, in 1777. Gwinnett died of his wounds.

EASY LITTLE SUITS TROT AROUND TOWN

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE BEST of puns is a feeble thing, but you just have to pull this one: it's a season to suit yourself! Yes, ma'am, a jacket and skirt or a jacket and frock is the uniform of this month, though there is infinite variety in the models offered.

* * *

THERE IS A fairly wide choice shown in the sketches below, but they don't scratch the surface. There is the man tailored wool suit—getting a bit hot under the collar now, but still on tap—there are suits of cotton string cloth, very swank and summery; redingotes of plain stuff over print silk are going strong; pastel crepes are sprouting jackets of plaid gingham or non-wrinkling linen; dark crepe is getting about over blouses of organza, very plain and tailored.

* * *

CAFE SUITS may be taffeta with beautiful blouse tops on their frock part, made of sheer lingerie, or they may be of pastel crepe over a one-piece frock, and sport a bit of fur at the cuff. Cotton homespuns in sport checks or tattersall plaids are doubling for town and country knock-about wear, divided skirts for bicycle riders come equipped with a blouse and a three-quarter swagger coat which is long enough to cover the trouser split, thus two-timing as a country shopping costume, and so on, ad infinitum. No one who commutes actively should overlook the knit suits, moreover, both dressy and sporty.

Alpaca in the suit below, believe it or not. The wide wale pique blouse and revers in black and white stripes is a very smart note for the ensemble.

Tailored net suits for city wear on the first hot days is a fashion which has caught on. They are a good deal more practical than the net street frocks of last August, as the extra coat layer is modest without being the least bit heating.

Print and plain silk combined is one of the perenially happy fashions. Here we have a good copy of Molyneaux' coat with the Johnny collar, fingertip length and with three-quarter sleeves, over a print of small design.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Infection Cause of Sciatica

Lumbago, backache and neuritis are terms frequently used to describe a severe and annoying affliction of the sciatic nerve. This disabling condition is known as "sciatica." Most sufferers from it will agree that even the thought of the ailment sends a shudder through the body.

Dr. Copeland

Fortunately, adequate relief, and in most instances permanent cure, are now possible. This advance is due to improved methods of diagnosis and treatment of this dreaded affliction.

Sciatica, as its name implies, is an inflammation of the sciatic nerve. This nerve is the largest one in the human body. It arises from the spinal cord, low down in the back, and proceeds between the deep muscles of the thigh, down the rear of the leg. At the knee joint it divides into two branches. These branches supply the muscles below the knee and go clear to the toes.

Since it is a large nerve, involving a large area of the body, it is extremely likely to be damaged by a blow or fall. It may be disturbed by a strain or dislocation of the sacro-iliac joint of the pelvis. Sciatica can often be traced to some internal inflammation, such as appendicitis, or disease of the female organs.

A common and often neglected cause of sciatica is focal or localized infection of some sort. By this, is meant, that an infection elsewhere in the body may irritate and inflame this nerve. This is true, even though the primary source of infection is located at a point quite distant from the sciatic nerve. For example, infected teeth, nasal sinuses, gall bladder or other organs may be the real seat of the disorder.

As I have implied, sciatic pain is excruciating and extremely painful. The pain may arise in the back, but soon it extends down along the course of the nerve. The attack shoots from above downward, and when it reaches the heel gives the sensation of an actual shock.

In most cases, the pain is so severe as to incapacitate the sufferer. In advanced cases, even contact with the bed clothes causes pain. As a rule, the pain increases at night.

Bear in mind, that though many drugs induce temporary relief of pain, cure can only be hoped for by removal of the underlying cause. This is brought about by a complete physical examination, and X-ray and other laboratory tests necessary to locate the real trouble. If you are a sufferer from sciatica, I advise you to consult with your physician and carefully follow his advice and instructions.

Sciatica is a serious disease and must never be neglected. In many an unrelieved case, the sufferer becomes crippled and unable to carry on his work. In addition, the general health of the individual is undermined and he becomes more susceptible to various diseases.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Sees Lee Chow as Menace

It was at least a minute before my father answered Lillian's query as to what Hugh Grantland thought of Lee Chow's sanity, a minute that seemed interminable, as I sat listening to the ticking of the nursery clock and watching my father's impassive face, his eyes staring straight ahead of him as if he would wrest an answer from somewhere beyond our ken.

"As nearly as I can deduce the thing," he said at last, bringing back his eyes from infinity to Lillian's face, "Hugh has feared that Lee Chow was perfectly sane, but hoped that he was mad."

"I can readily see the reason for that hope upon Hugh's part," Lillian commented. "He and Lee Chow have been close friends, companions, for years. It would be a terrible thing for Hugh to realize that the man to whom he has owed his life upon more than one occasion, was a criminal, a murderer, a diabolical plotter. It is hard enough for him to deal with the things Lee Chow has done, without the added burden of believing that they were evolved deliberately from a sane brain. Therefore I think he is trying hard to believe that his friend is insane, even in the face of the man's clever shamming."

WARNING GIVEN

My father drew out his watch, looked at it and sat erect.

"The fifteen minutes Hugh named are almost up," he said. "I must go back to the room where he is guarding Lee Chow."

He rose and walked to the door, turning with his hand on the knob.

"Let there be no mistake this time," he said sternly. "You are to lock this door and stay here until either Hugh or I come to release you."

"Aye, aye, Captain!" Lillian made a little moue at him. Then he went quickly out of the room, and Lillian as quickly followed him to the door, and turned the key in the lock.

"And that's that," she said, returning to her chair and settling herself comfortably against the cushions.

"Well, old dear," she asked, "what do you make of it?"

I did not keep her waiting for my answer. There seemed to me to be but one answer possible.

"I think he's sane," I said, "with an impossible mental slant on some things which he has carefully concealed all these years. But I can't help believing that he is perfectly ruthless where human life is concerned. And when I think of his ambushing Dicky, and how nearly he came to killing him—why, I could strangle him with my bare hands."

HANDS TREMBLE

I held them out in front of me, but they were trembling so that I could not keep them steady. Lillian promptly jumped to her feet and, crossing to me, took my hands in hers and held them tightly.

"Don't you think I know?" she said softly. "All this academic talk about sanity or madness is very well, but in the meantime it's your husband that was ambushed by an assassin, and escaped being killed only by the mercy of God. Nobody can blame you for feeling that neither Dicky nor you nor yet your children will be safe until this Oriental with the queer views is put safely away, where he can't indulge his fantastic theories. Nevertheless, old darling, keep an open mind on the subject for a few minutes, or hours, or days longer."

I faced her, suddenly breathless.

"What do you mean?" I asked. "Have they told you something that they haven't told me?"

"Not a thing," she answered. "But we're both going to be told something before many seconds. Hear that?" as there came a rapping at the door. "That's Hugh's knock. Will you open the door, or shall I?"

-:- Correct Manners -:-

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Toast to Bride and Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a dinner reception after a church wedding, should the best man propose a toast? If so, when? What is the proper thing to say? S.

Yes, it is the best man usually who proposes a toast to the bride and groom, and the groom responds for both his bride and himself. The toast is usually something like this: "Here's to Jill and Jack . . . may they always walk in happiness," or "Here's to Mary and Tom . . . may their pathway always be a happy one," or "To Florence and George . . . may I speak for their relatives and friends, with the wish that all the days of their lives be full of happiness and joy and contentment."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

We hear about smart gals who mix their own perfumes. Be wary of that yarn. The compounding of floretted odors is an art and it is a bit silly to believe that amateur hands can turn the trick. Two lovely scents may become an aromatic fizzle when they are combined.

When selecting a perfume put a few drops on the back of the hand, wait until the alcohol evaporates, then breathe it in. Don't sniff too many of them. If you do the olfactory organ will become confused, won't know what it likes.

Contract Bridge »« HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bidding a System

"All I know about Bridge, Mrs. Culbertson, is what I learn from reading your articles in the newspapers day after day," remarked a new partner to me recently in a rubber game at Crockford's Club. The cards had just been cut, and my partner, sitting North, drew the deal. The hands were distributed as follows:

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ Q ♡ A Q 7 6 5 ◇ A Q 7 6 3 ♣ 8 3
♠ K J 9 5 ♡ 8 2 ◇ K 10 4 ♣ Q 10 4 2	North West East South	♠ A 10 4 ♡ K J 10 ◇ J 9 5 2 ♣ J 7 5
	♠ 8 7 6 3 2 ♡ 9 4 3 ◇ 8 ♣ A K 9 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠ (1)	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 ♡ (2)	Pass
4 ♡	Double	Redouble (3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—My hand is too strong to pass. It is unwise to immediately raise the hearts with the three small trumps, and the bid of two clubs might conceivably shut out a game bid in spades. The alternative bid of one no-trump would not paint any picture of distribution.

2—Of course, an obvious preference.

3—Remembering my partner's statement that he played Bridge in the manner he had learned from reading my articles, I decided that the Redouble was entirely safe. After all, I had only made one simple Takeout and shown a preference between the two suits bid by my partner. With the added value of the singleton and the fact that I held both the Ace and King of clubs, either one of which I might lack, the Redouble was fully justified.

The East player was one of the world's outstanding players, but his judgment in this particular situation was bad. My partner, a very modest Bridge player, fulfilled his contract, making four hearts redoubled. The Opening lead was a club, but even against a spade Opening the hand can be made, although it is necessary to make the diamond finesse.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A 6 ♡ K J 6 ◇ K Q 10 7 4 2 ♣ Q 4
♠ 9 8 5 3 ♡ 10 8 7 3 ◇ 9 ♣ 8 7 5 3	North West East South	♠ K 10 7 2 ♡ 9 5 4 2 ◇ 8 ♣ K J 10 9
	♠ Q J 4 ♡ A Q ◇ A J 6 5 3 ♣ A 6 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Pippin Stops Objecting To Kisses of Dale

CHAPTER LXXVII.

She protested dreamily yet his words, his voice, his hand on hers were sweet.

"I love you. I've been wanting to say it for a long time. It doesn't hurt you. It makes me happy."

She looked up mocking but gay: "And it all fits in with the moonlight."

"Oh, you think it's the usual patter, Pippin? Your suitors all talk of love in the moonlight? Well! I guess I better go in and entertain my guests."

Pippin felt chilled. She watched him furtively as he sat at the piano.

After an hour, as she looked with Kate over a book of Forain's etchings, Dale came and sat beside them.

"Forain is a draughtsman of marvelous power; every stroke a revelation. Look at this!"

He turned to an etching, infinitely pathetic, of a mother and father on their knees, holding up a little crippled child before an altar. Dale wanted to share his delight in the great master; wanted them to notice the complete, beautiful effect attained with the sketchy handling of line and space.

"Imagine concentrating all that poignant humanity into some dozen lines! I wish I could draw one-tenth as well as that."

When Kate took the book back to the crowded shelf, he whispered quickly, warmly: "Oh come over and sit at the piano with me. Your friend wants to dance."

Pippin Feels Glad

She laughed happily.

Dale looked at her with a wink. He thumped merrily into "Got a place right under the moon, got the words and got the tune—got nobody to hear my song, so—humming to myself!"

When he finished the number he said, teasing: "But you won't make me hum much longer to an empty moon?"

She sang with him and felt amazingly glad.

Kathleen was excited by the evening. They stood in Pippin's dressing room and pulled into warm pajamas that they might sleep with comfort under the cold, bright stars.

"Isn't he fascinating? And, oh baby, those warm black eyes! Kate Stone actually blushes when he puts his arm about her. She's in love with him!"

"That's crazy. Kate is almost 20 years older than Dale."

"What of it? But he's very naive and doesn't know he has her goat. He's in love with you, Pippin."

"Indeed!"

Kathleen's wide, kewpie mouth rippled upward: "Can that man take you in his arms and sing and lead you to a moonlit porch and you don't fall like a ton of bricks? Believe me, I would. He's given me some new ideas—oh romance!"

Pippin laughed: "I suppose we all like people to be in love with us. No matter who says, 'You're beautiful!', it's a sweet song in a girl's ears."

Recalls Romantic Scenes

She went over the scenes of the evening, recalled her dreamy pleasure when Dale sang against her cheek; her delight when he came and brought her back to his side at the piano. She recalled also, and flushed hotly in the dark, that in these two weeks when she had insisted on a carefree companionship, she had many a time wished for his arm about her. She pulled the blankets high over her cheek and thought, disturbed—"Well—what of that—?"

She continued to see him. Each day, so imperceptibly that she was not aware of it, she counted more on Dale's company. He was always doing something that pleased or excited her. Like once when he noticed Jonathan, all shaved, wearing his coat, his vest, a necktie and large gold watch chain. Jonathan sat under the tree, reading a newspaper, but stiffly upright as though dressed for a wedding.

"Magnificent old pilgrim, isn't he?" said Dale. "But why does he wear so many clothes and his Sunday-best all the time?"

"It's your fault, sir! Ever since you made the sketch of Bruce, he's been shaving and dolling. I know he's hoping you'd do one of him—the vain old fellow!"

So Dale asked Jonathan if he might sketch him. Jonathan pretended to scoff, but immediately rushed to the cabin and got himself a clean handkerchief, which he stuck debonairly in his pocket. He sat up, stiff and unsmiling as a corpse. He was overjoyed with the drawing except for the nose. Now everyone knew he had a straight, flawless feature. Wouldn't Dale kindly remove that slight hump?

Pippin said impulsively: "I like you—you're gay!"

"I love you—you're sweet!"

Kevin Writes David

On Friday, David arrived unexpectedly for the week-end. He brought a carload of supplies. No one had told him to bring these; nor could anyone have prevented him. There were crates of lettuce, boxes of fruit, dozens of artichokes, chickens, ham, bacon. French bread and cakes. Whenever David came, the boat was loaded down with the food he brought.

"Any one would imagine we are in Little America!" Chickie teased.

"I haven't really brought so much," said David, hiding an abashed grin, for even he was staggered as box after box was stacked on the pier.

David gave Pippin two letters to read. They were from Kevin. He wrote regularly to her father. The letters always concerned his work. In the beginning, before this frozen silence, he had two or three times mentioned Pippin's name. But in these letters there was no word of her.

She sat at the table while her father ate dinner. She read carefully.

"He seems to be doing very well, doesn't he? How much longer will Kevin remain East?"

"About six weeks more. Till the end of September."

Pippin said: "Will the hospital be ready that soon?"

"Not till the first of the year." She said with effort, but absently: "You'll have to give him time off to get married."

David glanced at her sharply. "Is Kevin marrying? Does Kathleen say so?"

Doesn't Write

"She thinks it likely. Bob Nolan's wife is a friend of Hildegarde's. They say it's all settled. Dr. Meyer thought so, too. Remember?"

David shook his head with impatience. "Kevin has said nothing to me! Do you hear from him, Pippin?"

"No. I wrote when he first went away. Then I got busy with my finals. And now, up here with nothing to do, there's never any time!"

She laughed gaily, but this conversation with her father brought her sharply to face with an issue she had been avoiding. In six weeks she would return to the city. She would go into the laboratory to work at Kevin's side.

She had swept her life clean of other contacts because working with Kevin had such a short while ago, seemed the one desired joy. But to meet him daily now, with all this anguish and resentment in her heart, would be intolerable.

She would return to college; she would go to Europe and lose herself in the mad galloping here and there; she would study to be a doctor; she would sail to China and work with Gregg; she would do anything—ANYTHING in the world but accept the fine torment of daily meetings with Kevin Malone!

She went quickly along the moonlit trail.

"Not running away again?" Dale caught her hand. He saw her white, disturbed face luminous in the moonlight and the burning hardness in her eyes. He put his arm quietly about her and walked along, not talking. She felt grateful and near to him.

Dale a Comfort

She looked up with a soft, uncertain laugh: "You're a comfort—thanks."

He took her in his arms. He kissed her. She closed her eyes and thought with a hard, dry sob in her mind: "What of it! I'm glad!"

"Pippin, tell me," he said one evening not long after this, "you enjoy my company?"

"Of course I do."

"How long then is this embargo to last?"

They were drifting over the dreamy waters. The moon had not come up. The mountains reaching to the starlit sky walled them in a deep, mysterious purple cave. Dale moored the boat in the tree-shaded lagoon.

"How much longer, Pippin, before I can kiss you or love you? Find you beautiful or any of the other thousand and one things I want to do?"

She didn't answer. He felt in the dark for her face. He drew it to his.

She no longer protested when he kissed her. She let her head rest happily against his shoulder.

When he grew silent, she said urgent: "Sing again, Dale."

"All right, but a kiss for a song and I'll sing you a thousand!"

She waited now for these meetings when he came in his boat and took her across the singing poetic silence.

And she knew, when they came to a bend in the trail that he would sweep her quickly in his arms, touch her lips to his, then march along, singing with joy.

Doesn't Love Him

Sometimes he looked down and said: "You think you don't love me, Pippin. Yes you do. I'm just the kind of tramp you can be happiest with. Worthless, utterly. But you're good enough for two!"

At night she often awakened. She would feel a wave of fire dash over her, then a shock and chill. She would find herself saying: "I don't love him!"

Yet her senses clung to his image—to the touch of his hand—the sound of his voice.

One day they passed again the lake where the pond lilies bloomed.

Dale said: "It seems so long since I took you here, Pippin. It is long because so much has happened. I loved you that day—it's more than six weeks."

He came up and took her hand. He pressed it. "I love you so much now!"

He took Pippin in his arms. He lifted her from her feet and held her folded against him.

"Pippin, you love me."

She closed her eyes. A wave dashed from her heart and went in a warm, tingling flush over her face, back to her heart. She felt drowning.

"You won't say it. Never mind. Listen—Pippin, when you return to the city—when you go back down there to Stanford, I'm following you. A year from now I'm marrying you—"

She shook her head. She smiled.

As they came near to Dale's cabin, they saw someone on the porch. A woman—she appeared dark, small. She walked rapidly, back and forth.

"You have a visitor," Pippin said and halted, shocked by the white devastation of his face.

A dress like this has all the charms of a bolero frock and another in addition. Young people are fascinated by make-believe—so, for that matter, are lots of people who are not so young—and the fact that this is a make-believe bolero makes it more interesting in many eyes. It is the front sections of the frock which do the trick and for the very little work they involve the smart results are simply amazing.

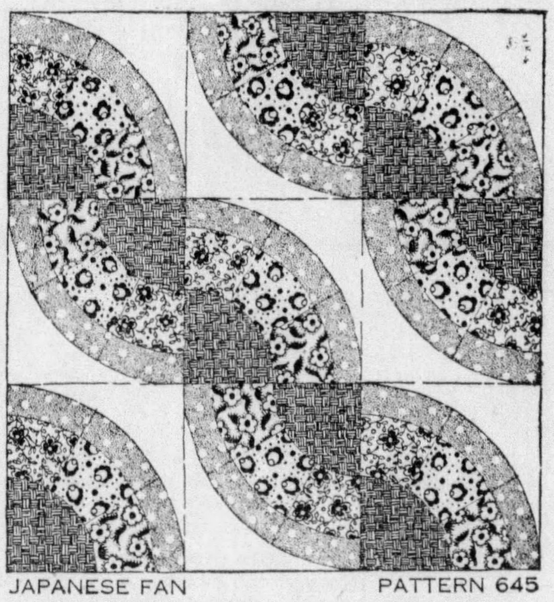
LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



JAPANESE FAN PATTERN 645

Every quiltmaker loves a scrap quilt—it's economical, adds lots of variety to sewing the patches and last, but not least, is delightful to look at. Of course, the first scrap quilt was the crazy quilt, but what a difference there is between that and this Japanese Fan. The block is of such a size that you can use up small scraps of material. And when all the blocks are joined they make diagonal rows of fans right across the quilt.

Pattern 645 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Nisley Beauty is more than "skin deep"

That's what a wearer of Nisley's told us the other day. She said, "I have been a wearer of Nisley shoes for years because I know that underneath their beauty is the highest integrity of manufacture. There is no other shoe that matches Nisley's for good looks, quality of fit (which means comfort), long wear and shape holding, at near the price. Nisley beauty is always more than skin deep".

Nisley's summer price is the lowest (in season) in Nisley's history. Nisley has never reduced quality—never will. Nisley's promise to thousands of wearers insures quality of materials, quality of fit, quality of workmanship, in addition to the last word in style and beauty.

STOCK MARKET PRICES DRIFT LOWER

NEW YORK, May 23.—Financial markets were a little sluggish today and prices, as a whole, were inclined to drift to moderately lower levels.

Overnight consideration of the President's silver message found speculative circles somewhat confused and a bit disappointed that the aid proffered the white metal did not provide the inflationary stimulus sufficient to lift stocks and staples. Equities, especially those of the steel category, were in supply. Trading activity, however, was dull and intermittent rallies found the ticker tape barely moving.

GRAINS RECOVER

Grains showed some recovery on further indications that little relief was in sight for the drought-stricken areas. Cotton drooped most of the time, as did silver and rubber futures. Secondary bonds were a trifle soft, but prime investment loans maintained a steady-to-firm position. The dollar developed strength in foreign exchange transactions.

Some scattered shares registered gains of fractions to around a point. Among these were Otis Elevator, Brooklyn - Manhattan Transit, American Commercial Alcohol and Westinghouse. Losers of as much included United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Case, American Telephone, Du Pont, Montgomery Ward, Eastman Kodak, Santa Fe, New York Central, Howe Sound, American Smelting, Kennecott and Cerro de Pasco. United States Smelting lost a point or so, then retrieved the decline.

FEAR CONTROL

Brokerage houses were extremely gloomy over the stock exchange control bill, although the agreement of the House to adjourn tomorrow until next Monday indicated that final action on the measure would not be taken until at least next week.

Various financial commentators were still of the opinion that the administration's silver program is fundamentally inflationary, but the time element involved was seen as a decidedly restrictive influence in the matter of expanded commitments based on the prospects of an ultimately cheaper American dollar.

At the same time the phrase in the silver message regarding "stabilizing the purchasing and debt paying power of our money on a more equitable level" did not escape the attention of those who believe that substantial currency expansion will be necessary if the recovery policy is to be carried out successfully.

There were various guesses as to the amount of silver which the Treasury has already purchased through the exchange equalization fund. In some quarters it was thought that the amount was between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 ounces, which would mean that less than $20,000,000 had been expended for the purpose. Most of the government's buying was said to have been in the neighborhood of 45 cents an ounce.

WHEAT PRICES ADVANCE

CHICAGO, May 23—Pronounced strength developed in wheat values late today, with Winnipeg leading the advance, affected by unfavorable crop reports from Canada, the United States and Europe.

Winnipeg dispatches said the Balkans, France, Germany and Italy were reported as showing likelihood of 1934 wheat crops 300,000,000 bushels less than last year. Rumania crop damage was estimated at 50 per cent, and Bulgaria 20 to 40 per cent.

Following a jump of 2¼ cents from the day's low point, wheat reacted at the last, closing unsettled, ⅜-¾ above yesterday's finish, corn ⅛-½ up, oats unchanged to ⅜ higher, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

Many Able To Advise President

By B. C. FORBES

ONE PROFESSOR, formerly ace-high at Washington, has fallen from favor; theorist Warren, who persuaded President Roosevelt that commodity and other prices in this country could be raised to any desired level merely by chalking up on the blackboard each day a higher figure and calling it the "price" of gold. When James P. Warburg, practical banker, then close to the President, warned that such a theory was fantastic, he was let out. Events have upheld Warburg, discredited Warren.

Mr. Forbes

But another professor is riding high, wide and handsome at Washington today, namely, Rexford Guy Tugwell.

Prof. Tugwell is supposed to confine his activities to agriculture. But he has a ready-made solution for every conceivable problem.

IN THEIR class rooms professors are not accustomed to have pupils give them backtalk. Prof. Tugwell expects the adult citizens of this country to accept his say-so unquestioningly upon any and every subject.

He is fond of trotting out the unfounded, exploded shibboleth that our business organizations are owned and controlled by the few.

That used to be popular propaganda, but every intelligent schoolboy, who knows that when Prof. Tugwell makes such an allegation, he is talking through his hat.

ONE WESTERN reader asks this column to inform Prof. Tugwell that the business enterprises, the railroads, the utility companies, the banks, the mines, the oil properties, the communication companies, the motion picture companies, etc., are today owned, not by the few, but by as many security-holders as there are families in America.

He points out that the utility which supplies his community with power and light has far more than 100,000 stockholders whose average holding is 30 shares.

He declares that it is time politicians and office holders of the Tugwell stripe awakened to the fact that they can no longer gull the people into believing that the business concerns of America belong to a handful of plutocrats.

THERE ARE ACTUALLY more security holders than there are tax payers—although how long this condition will exist, no mortal can foretell, especially since Prof. Tugwell and those of his mental caste are itching to bring every variety of business enterprise under the thumb of myriads of political overlords.

Other communications received by this column indicate that thoughtful citizens are becoming sick and tired of bossing by Washington doctrinaires.

One sentence from one reader, Clayton Snyder:

"It is regrettable that the President has not availed himself as freely of the counsel and services of the able men of the country as he has of its wealth—he seems to have allowed himself to be influenced by the juvenile socialistic element that has gathered around him and sought to turn him from his purpose of recovery to fanatical reform."

THE SECURITY and commodity markets continue lifeless, paralyzed by uncertainty over what Washington will do.

AMERICA'S MAKERS of the finest automobiles are suffering severely because of the provision in the dealers' code which fixes rigidly the trade-in allowance for high-priced cars. The owner of a Packard or Cadillac or Pierce-Arrow or Lincoln who desires to turn in his car and to get a new model of the same make can be granted only the same allowance as if he wanted to purchase the very cheapest car in the market.

Dealers handling $2,500 and up cars naturally receive a larger total commission than is received by the seller of the low-priced car. Therefore, in order to encourage the purchase of a high-priced car, he could afford to make a more generous allowance, especially for a well-preserved car, than he could make if the prospective buyer wanted only a cheap car.

The feeling is rising that, the dealers' code should be modified insofar as it applies to expensive makes. It would be unfortunate were all American manufacturers of fine cars driven to the wall, thus compelling purchasers to turn to foreign makers.

DISAGREEMENT ON NEW DEAL EXPECTED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, May 23.—It was to have been expected that the New Deal doctors would disagree. It is too bad to find prominent men squabbling and calling names, and I fear we are getting more heat than light from the Darrow-Johnson set-to; but it is ever thus when egotistic "reformers" get together.

A while back, we heard much about the fatality of economics, and there was much jeering at the differences of opinion expressed by certain economists.

Now what about the new dealers?

I think if you will look into the history of radical social reform movements, you will find it full of bitter conflicts and disagreements. Each reformer knows exactly what is good for mankind, but no one agrees with any other as to what that is.

Each idealist has his own ideal, and his own notion of what utopia is like. Put them together and the verbal sparks fly.

In fact, I know of no greater disagreements than are found among the numerous species and varieties of socialists and communists. There are dozens of them, and about the only thing they have in common is the belief that the system of individual initiative is all wrong, and that private property must be abolished in a more or less sweeping way.

PRESENT QUARREL

In the present quarrel over NRA, we find Darrow (who appears to be some sort of a "socialist") asserting that there is no hope as long as men are allowed to produce for profits, but also opposing government regimentation. Richberg (who also appears to be some sort of a "socialist") lambasts Darrow, and wants government regimentation and control over industry. Johnson (who runs more to oratory and action than to philosophy) wants "self government" by industrial cartels, and probably favors allowing them to operate for profits.

Probably they are all wrong in thinking that they know how to control economic life.

I am impressed with the folly of those who think that we can safely "experiment" with economic life; also with the collossal egotims of those who think they know what is good for mankind.

Society is somewhat like a great river. The stream of economic life is made up of millions of different individual besires, feelings, judgements, activties and costs. It flows on seeking its level, as is determined by the lay of the land and the volume of the stream.

We can clear the channel, and even straighten it here and there. We can build levees and dame. But the cost must be counted. And above all, we must recognize that the general level of the stream and its general course depend upon "human nature" and our physical environment, neither of which can be revolutionized by "codes" or changes in "institutions."

HUMAN NATURE

We can no more abolish competition than we can abolish human nature. We can no more repeal the law of supply and demand than we can repeal the force of "gravity" whatever that may be).

The true scientist is very modest—even humble—and especially so when his problem concerns human life and society. He does not know

PIRATE SOUTHPAWS TURN IN FINE PERFORMANCES

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Boston Jinx to Pirates.
Six Straight Lost There.
Second Basemen's Year.
Production of Managers.
Ranking of Turf Greats.
Runyan's Rich Harvest.

Pittsburgh fans today were hoping that the feast of 24 runs on which the Pirates waxed fat in the last two games at Philadelphia to capture first place would not be followed by a famine as the Bucs moved into Boston for a tough series with the Braves. The Gibsons might have profited by saving some of those surplus tallies for the tussles with Bill McKechnie's outfit, for unless there is a big form reversal as compared with previous showings in the Hub, plenty of trouble may be expected during the New England invasion.

Bill McKechnie

If the National League circuit has a hoodoo spot for the Corsairs, it is Boston. You may get an idea of the unusual extent of the jinx's activities from the fact that before the present series in the Hub the Pirates lost six games in succession there, not having tasted victory at Braves Field since June 20, last year, when Bill Swift won a 6-to-2 decision. The remaining two games of that series were lost, and four more were dropped in a row during the final visit in August.

The ill luck was not confined to that period, but has extended over the last two seasons. Of the 22 games played in Boston in 1932 and 1933, the Rovers won only eight, or just four out of 11 each year. Two of those eight victories were scored in the first two contests of 1932, so that in their last 20 Boston appearances the Pirates were beaten 14 times. A change of fortune ought to be about due if there is anything in the law of averages.

SPOTLIGHT ON SECOND BASE THIS YEAR

Calling to mind that dramatic cycle of baseball which throws the spotlight on a different position each season, a veteran observer finds that 1934 has picked out second base for glorification, despite Augie Galan's slip there yesterday which cost the Cubs a game and first place.

Cookie Lavagetto, only 19 and just one year ago an unknown in the Coast League, has come up with one season's professional experience to win the keystone job on the Pittsburgh club. Don Heffner advanced from a Baltimore job to shine with the Yankees and push Tony Lazzeri over to third base. Just before the season opened, the Indians plugged up a hole with Eddie Moore, the man who came back after being ditched by the Pirates, Braves, Dodgers and Giants. Marty McManus entered the National League at the age of 34 to replace Rabbit Maranville for the Braves. Rabbit Warstler, just a throw-in as part of the Grove-Bishop-Walberg deal, suddenly blossomed into a valuable regular for the A's. Max Bishop took on a new lease of life when transferred to the Red Sox. Bob Boken appears to have solved one of the infield problems of the White Sox since being obtained in the recent trade with the Senators. Ralph Kress, who was traded for Boken, has forced Buddy Myer out of the Washington lineup.

M'GRAW'S SCHOOL TOPS MACK'S IN PILOTS

They're claiming a record for Connie Mack in the production of managers because nine of Connie's players went on to become major league pilots—Napoleon Lajoie, Harry Davis, Fred Mitchell, Jack Barry, Eddie Collins, Stuffy McInnis, Bob Shawkey, Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes. But even without counting Rogers Hornsby, Bob O'Farrell and Bill McKechnie, the last named in the Federal League, who had been managers before they joined the Giants and became skippers again afterward, John McGraw's school turned out no fewer than 14 pilots. They were Frank Bowerman, Bill Dahlen, Wilbert Robinson, Roger Bresnahan, Buck Herzog, Christy Mathewson, Arthur Fletcher, Dave Bancroft, Heinie Groh, George Gibson, Billy Southworth, Bill Terry, Frankie Frisch and Casey Stengel.

Connie Mack

And how about the Pittsburgh club as a school for managers? The Pirates would appear to be second to none in pilot development. Though some of the names appear on the lists of McGraw and Mack, the Bucs can lay claim to a small army of men who became managers in the National or the American League after playing here. The roll includes Mack himself, Gibson, McKechnie, Carey, Stengel, McInnis, Bowerman, Davis, Southworth, Ned Hanlon, Tom Burns, George Miller, Pat Donovan, Monte Cross, Joe Kelley, Chief Zimmer, John Ganzel, Irving Wilhelm, Harry Smith, Jack O'Connor, Jimmy Burke, Honus Wagner, George McBride, Lee Fohl, Rabbit Maranville, Charley Grimm and Joe Cronin.

JOCKEY HOLDS MAN O' WAR UNEQUALED

Each succeeding turf season, when some particular horse begins to attract national attention by winning one or more of the big stakes, they proceed to compare him with Man o' War, the sensational standout of 1919-20.

Now they're trying to rank Cavalcade with Man o' War, besides reviving the claim that Equipoise also deserves an equal rating with the star of 14 years ago. Jockey Mack Garner, who has been booting them home for 20 seasons and now rides Cavalcade, takes exception to both assertions and declares that neither Cavalcade nor Equipoise can be mentioned in the same breath with Man o' War. He admits that Cavalcade's full possibilities have not yet been determined, but says so far the Sloane colt has not qualified for any such ranking, and insists that Equipoise was beaten by too many ordinary horses to be called truly great.

RUNYAN GETS $1.73 FOR EACH GOLF SHOT

Summing up the winter golf activities of Paul Runyan, favorite for the coming United States open championship, George Trevor finds that the 25-year-old professional was paid $1.73 a shot for his operations around the barnstorming circuit. No other golf pro ever made such a golden haul on the winter circuit as did Runyan in collecting $7,026 in prize money. He played brilliant golf to earn the money, 1,098 holes in 4,356 strokes, an average of 71½ strokes per round in 61 rounds of medal play under pressure. He was 36 strokes under even fours in trekking from the Pacific Coast to the Carolinas on all sorts and conditions of turf. Truly, consistent brilliance.

Paul Runyan

Despite his great form in other tournaments, Runyan never has been able to shine in the national open. He played in it for the first time in 1928, when a fledgling of 19, and failed to make a showing. He passed up the tourney the next two years, and in 1931 couldn't qualify. In 1932 he finished twelfth, and last year was disqualified on account of a scorer's error.

Baseball Returns to Bluff With the Dukes' Informals

MGR. ED WOLFE PAUL MEEHAN BILLY DILLON ERNIE HEFFERLE PAUL BIRCH ART STRUTT GEORGE MEYERS

SAL FEDERICI ELLIS O'BRIEN JAMES ZERILLA

For many years college baseball has been deader than a doornail in Pittsburgh, and now they're trying to revive it at Duquesne University, where an informal team has been sanctioned for this season and has started off with two victories over West Virginia University at Morgantown. The outfielders consist of O'Brien, Meehan and Dillon, and the infielders of Hefferle, Zerilla, Birch and Strutt, while Meyers is a pitcher and Federici is the catcher. Birch and Zerilla are basketball stars, while Strutt is the backfield ace in football, and, along with George Rado, co-captain of the Dukes' varsity eleven for next fall's campaign.

CROWDS SEEN AS REGATTA PROBLEM

One of the big problems in connection with the William Randolp Hearst Gold Cup outboard motorboat regatta to be held in the Allegheny River at Oakmont, Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15, under auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Oakmont Boat Club, will be that of handling the traffic, and already the railroads, street car lines, bus lines and persons who are planning to drive their own cars are grappling with the situation.

The railroads and bus lines are considering offering reduced rates for a week-end trip to Pittsburgh from points throughout the tri-state district, and the local transportation alone, that of getting the thousands of spectators from Pittsburgh to Oakmont and back, is no little job in itself. A traffic committee is working on the problem.

Meanwhile other work is being done to set the stage for the races. At the Oakmont Boat Club extensive preparations are under way. The club members are putting their boats in the water and a scene of bustling activity is presented—with the event still almost two months away.

FIFTEEN CREWS ENTER RACE

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—The revival of the classic intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson, opposite Poughkeepsie, on June 16 after a year's lapse, will find at least 15 and possibly 18 eight-oared crews renewing the traditional East-West rivalry.

Entries have not yet been closed and the draw for positions will not be held until June 5, but Maxwell Stevenso, chairman of the board of stewards, indicated the following probable lineups:

Varsity, four miles—California, Washington, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Syracuse and Navy.

Junior varsity, three miles—California, Columbia, Cornell and Navy. (Pennsylvania and Syracuse doubtful.)

Freshman, two miles—Washington, Columbia, Cornell and Syracuse. (Pennsylvania doubtful, and Navy not entered.)

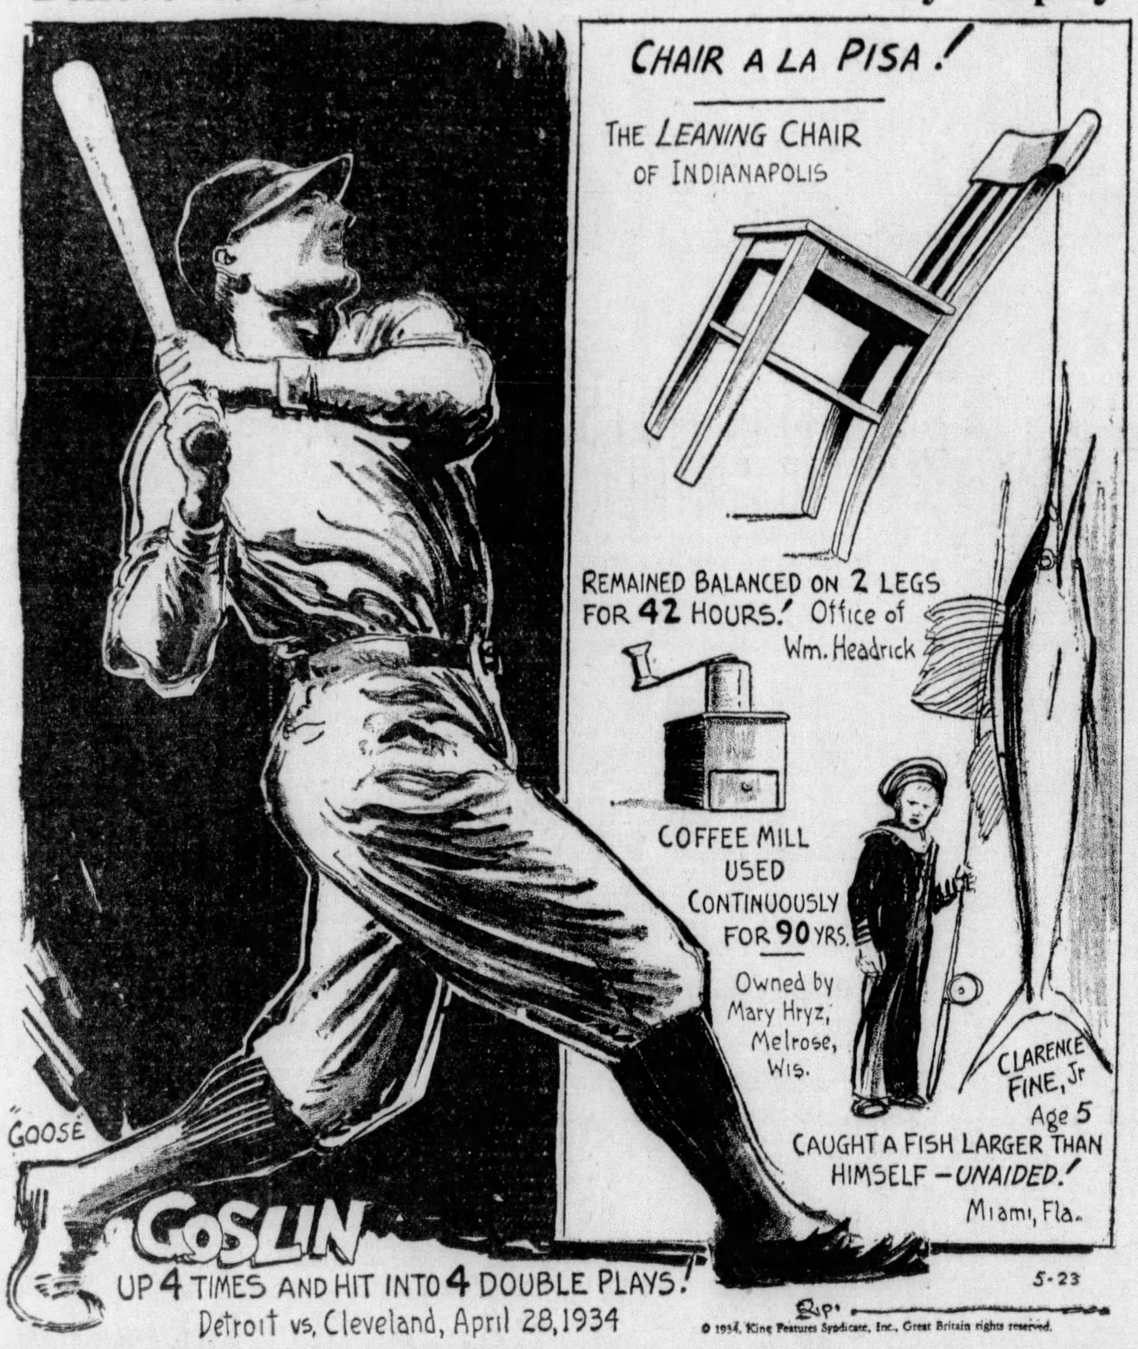
Believe It Or Not By Ripley

(Reg. by U. S. Patent Office)



EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: S. S. JOHN RANDOLPH—Yesterday, May 22, marked the centennial of America's first iron steamboat—the S. S. John Randolph—which was launched in Savannah, Ga., in 1834, after a voyage from England in the hold of a wooden ship. The John Randolph was fabricated and engined by Laird and Sons, of Birkenhead, England, for the reason that in America there were no facilities for rolling iron plates. The ship was then dismantled in England and shipped aboard a wooden sailing vessel to Savannah. As compared with the floating palaces of today, the Randolph is an excellent example of the great strides made in shipping during the last 100 years. The length of that ship was only 110 feet, beam 22 feet and draft only 2 feet 8 inches. The engines and machinery weighed only 17 tons and developed only 36 horsepower—about one-third the power developed in the average motor car of today.

TOMORROW: A TRANSCONTINENTAL ENGINEER.

LINDY'S HOMER CLEANS SACKS; PHILS BEATEN

BOSTON, May 23.—The pitching of Larry French and Ralph Birkofer as the Pirates reeled off two victories at the home of the Phillies was a subject of keen comment among the Pirates today as they made their season's bow here.

The two strong-armed southpaws of the Pittsburgh flinging corps did not put on any shutout show, but both started and finished what they started, quite a rare accomplishment in the Baker Bowl. Birkofer yesterday matched his mate's trick of the day before as the Toronto graduate threw back the Quakers in another one-sided fight. The score was 13 to 4.

JUMP TO FIRST PLACE

Led by Fred Lindstrom, who smacked a homer with the bases loaded, the Pirates made it two out of three over the Phillies yesterday. The Pittsburgh success put the Pirates back on top, the Cubs having been trounced by the Dodgers.

The Buccos enjoyed two banner innings to bring about the downfall of the Phillies. George Gibson's hustlers carved themselves six runs in the fourth and followed through with six more in the fifth. It was in this frame that Lindstrom drove the rocket for the homer. Fred came up with two out and hit a Hansen pitch into the centerfield seats to score four runs. The Rovers negotiated a tally at the outset of the game, Arky Vaughan hitting a single after two were out to score Paul Waner.

SCORE ON HOMERS

All four of the Quakers' tallies were the result of two homers. Todd socked a two-run homer in the fourth and Johnny Moore belted a four-sacker in the seventh with a mate aboard.

Recruit Southpaw George Darrow opposed Birkofer at the start. The youngster was taken out in the middle of the fifth-inning drive of the Pirates. Hansen gave way to a pinchhitter in the fifth and Austin Moore took up the slab task.

The contest was stopped in the first of the eighth by rain. Vaughan, Lavagetto and Thevenow had delivered singles and Vaughan had scored before the contest was called. The game then reverted to even innings under the rules.

P. I. A. A. ADOPTS THREE SPORTS

HARRISBURG, May 23.—(AP.)—An expanded spring athletic program, to include the naming of champions in three sports new to schoolboy title-seekers, has been adopted by the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association.

The program will be inaugurated next year. Coupled with a revival of the state track and field meet will be an athletic carnival in which golf, swimming and tennis titlists will be named for the first time.

District meets in each sport will precede the state competition, to be held in 1935 at Pennsylvania State College.

In addition, plans are being considered to bring volleyball and wrestling into the P. I. A. A. calnedar next winter.

ILLINI COP TITLE

FISCHER LOSES IN BRITISH AMATEUR; GOODMAN, LITTLE WIN

AMERICAN ACE DEFEATED BY M'LEAN, 2-1

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 22.—(AP.)—Jack McLean, Scottish Walker Cup star and the pride of Prestwick, today defeated Johnny Fischer, sensational Cincinnati youngster, by 2 and 1, in the third round of the British amateur golf championship.

Putting brilliantly, sinking the ball from distances as far as 20 feet from the cup, McLean was out in a scorching sub-par 33 for this strenuous seaside course to be 2 up on Fischer at the half-way mark.

Fischer, who was the medalist in the last two American amateur championships, toured the outward holes in par 35 and try as valiantly as he did, he was never able to overcome that two-hole deficit.

Jack Westland, of Chicago, was the second American casualty of the day. He was eliminated by Roger Wethered, veteran internationalist, 3 and 2.

GOODMAN, LITTLE WIN

Catching up with the rest of the field, Johnny Goodman, United States Open champion, and W. Lawson Little, Pacific Coast star, won their second round matches today.

Goodman defeated Capt. G. A. Rusk, of the Royal and Ancient He overpowered his British rival on the first nine, shooting a 37 to be 5 up at the turn.

Little scored an easy victory over Lester Rankin, of Sunningdale, winning by 5 and 3.

Playing in his second match of the day, in the afternoon, Little put out one of Scotland's best linksmen, Eric McRuvie. The margin of the American's victory was 3 and 2, and the thrills were plentiful for both the victor and the vanquished shattered par with sensational shot-making.

Goodman also made it two in a row this afternoon when he defeated Sean Burke, Irish champion, 4 and 3, in a third round match.

Jesse Guilford, of Boston, former American amateur champion whom the experts are beginning to reckon with seriously as a real threat, scored a lop-sided victory over Lt. Col. T. J. Mitchell, of Prestwick, to advance to the fourth round. Guilford won by 6 and 4.

DUNLAP ADVANCES

George Dunlap, Jr., amateur champion of the United States and regarded by old links disciples here as a "man of destiny" after his first and second-round comeback victories, made short shrift of George D. Hanay, former French amateur titleholder, The American king won, 6 and 4.

Rotund Cyril Tolley, champion in 1920 and 1929, was eliminated in the third round by James Wallace, who won by 4 and 3.

ROSS FINISHES HEAVY WORK

FERNDALE, N. Y., May 23.—(AP.)—Barney Ross, latest of the young Jewish warriors to defy the Irish lightning, has loosed his last heavy barrage on his sparring partners before tackling belting Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight championshhip in the Long Island Bowl next Monday night.

It was a swift-moving, cocky, hard-hitting young challenger, though Ross himself holds the lightweight crown, who walloped his sparring partners through a strenuous 10-round session in his training camp in the Catskill Mountains yesterday. When it was over he weighed 136 pounds. He will work lightly from now on.

JIMMY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 23.—(INS.)—Old Pop Foster, with Jimmy McLarnin, his smiling Irish welterweight champion, by his side, motored into town this morning from the Atlantic City training quarters, in response to an invitation to visit the solons of sock for the customary five-day prebattle physical examination.

Pop and his champion will leave as soon as they can get away, for both realize that Jim needs as much sharp boxing practice as he can crowd in between now and bell time for his 15-round defense of his crown against Barney Ross for the Milk Fund at the Garden Bowl next Monday night.

Indications point to a sell-out for the battle. The arena, which seats 61,000, is scaled for a gross gate of $345,875 and a net of $294,000. Yesterday the cash advance sale was $75,000.

BAER CAMP DESERTED

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 23.—(INS.)—Max Baer chafed under the tension of near-oblivion today as he resumed training for his heavyweight championship battle with Primo Carnera, June 14. Most of the fight experts, managers and pugilistic hangers-on who have been daily spectators at Max's workouts, left camp today for Ferndale, N. Y., to look over Barney Ross, who is training there for his fight with Jimmy McLarnin Monday night.

PRIMO SCORES K. O.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., May 23.—(INS.)—Punching accurately, Primo Carnera knocked out his newest sparring partner, Yustin Sirutis, of New York, in one round during his boxing drill yesterday afternoon. Corn Griffin, of Florida, managed to last three rounds with the champion.

GOLFERS CLASH IN EVENT AT SOUTH HILLS

By TOM BIRKS

Starting out at early morn, the leading amateur golfers of the district are trekking over John Graham's classy South Hills layout in the first Pennsylvania State one-day tourney of the season.

These bargain affairs held by the state body are becoming more popular each year, as they give the rank and file of the amateurs a chance to play over the best courses in the district at bargain rates. Nearly 200 golfers are expected to compete today.

Two real surprises marked yesterday's golf program. The first occurred at Nemacolin where Wash-Jeff evened matters with Pitt, handing the Panthers their first defeat of the current season. The score was 5 to 4.

In the singles, Wayman, W. & J., defeated Regis Wolff, Pitt, 1 up; McKee, Pitt, defeated Butters, W. & J., 2 and 1; Leiber, W. & J., defeated Wasco, Pitt, 3 and 2; Matthews, Pitt, defeated Drost, W. & J., 6 and 5; Decker, Pitt, defeated Miller, W. & J., 2 and 1, and Ahringer, W. & J., defeated Ferraro, Pitt, 2 up.

In the four-ball, best-ball matches, Wayman and Butters defeated Wolff and McKee, 2 up; Wasco and Matthews defeated Leiber and Drost, 4 and 3, and Miller and Ahringer defeated Decker and Ferraro, 4 and 3.

The second surprise was the defeat of the Kiski team in the Interscholastic Conference by Greensburg, 8 to 7, at Saltsburg. This was only the second time that Kiski has been beaten since the formation of the conference. Turtle Creek turned the trick two years ago.

In other matches, Wilkinsburg topped Sewickley, 8½ to 6½; Aspinwall stopped Shady Side Academy by the same score, while Dormont turned in a victory over Mt. Lebanon, 9½ to 5½.

VARSITY NET TEAMS BUSY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

For the last time in 1934, all three local college tennis squads are primed for hostilities this afternoon. One home tussle, wherein Carnegie Tech entertains Grove City, and two out-of-town affairs, calling for Pitt to visit Wash-Jeff and for Duquesne to invade Waynesburg, comprise the card.

The Tartan-Grover contest marks the end of seasonal festivities for the Plaid. An earlier tilt between Carnegie and the Crimson resulted in decisive victory for the latter.

The Panthers, who barely edged out a 5-4 verdict over the Presidents here not long ago, stand in peril of seeing their unspotted district record marred at Little Washington. W. & J. copped four out of six singles, but dropped all three doubles frays in the previous engagement with the Blue and Gold and, with Roy Heckler likely to be an absentee from the Pitt lineup, due to an injured finger, the position of the Golden Cats is precarious.

The opening round of intersectional playoffs in the Interscholastic Tennis Conference is scheduled for the Trees Field courts at Pitt at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Shady Side Academy, captor of honors in the first suburban group, will meet Wilkinsburg High School, Section III survivor, in one of the matches, while Mount Lebanon, 1933 Conference champion, will represent Section II with the city High school premier in the other.

The destiny of the city division title will be settled this afternoon, with Allderdice High, winner last year, taking on Carrick. The playing of this joust has been delayed because of the fact that a postponed Schenley-Allderdice melee held up completion of the regular campaign.

Public Links King on Air Tonight

CARL F. KAUFFMANN

How does it feel to be a three-time winner of a national golf championship aiming for a fourth title?

Listen in to the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6 o'clock this evening and hear Carl F. Kauffmann, local star, tell about his reactions.

Kauffmann never took a lesson from a golf instructor. He fashioned his own game and set a record for public links play. He'll be back in the title event at South Park this summer, the most feared player in the field.

For all of his success, Kauffmann always has remained in the background off the links. Tonight's broadcast marks his first appearance on the air. He'll be interviewed by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph. Tune in to get an earful of live golfing information.

SOFTBALL PLAY SETUP TO BE ELABORATE

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

Managers of teams competing in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament, which gets under way June 10 and entries for which close June 1, will find the setup arranged for the competition one of the most elaborate and yet most simplified ever conceived for the handling of such an event over a wide area.

Going to each manager in the mail will be a team registration blank and individual registration blanks for all of the players, which will be placed on file for reference. Also, a bracket list will be sent out showing each team its opponent for each of the seven weeks of the round robin play which makes up the first round of the tournament, together with rules and regulations. A set of score cards to be filled in also will be sent to the managers, together with protest blanks for use if needed.

As soon as the players are sanctioned by the Amateur Softball Association of America they will receive insignia buttons, and trophies will follow at the end of the tournament, along with the trip to Chicago for the national tournament, the reward of the senior division winner.

Another girls' team is among the latest entries. It is that of the Solomon Girls' outfit, of Braddock, Joseph Gold, manager. Other teams among the new entrants include the Highball Aces, of the East End, Robert Creighton, manager, and the E. J. Noftz team, of Penn avenue, E. J. Noftz, manager.

Fatal Bout Brought Schaaf Only $1,752

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—The fight with Primo Carnera in Madison Square Garden, February 10, 1933, which cost him his life only netted Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, $1,752.30, an accounting of his estate revealed.

Schaaf's share of the gate was $8,473.52 but managers' shares, paid to John Buckley and Jack Sharkey, as well as medical, legal and burial expenses took the major portion.

Schaaf died of a cerebral hemorrhage, to which an attack of influenza was a contributing cause, two days after being knocked out by the heavyweight champion.

BROTHERS WIN PAIR APIECE OVER CHAMPS

Associated Press.

The Dean family of St. Louis brought the count up to 4-0 against the Giants as the Cardinals batted out a 7-to-4 victory behind the younger member, Paul, yesterday. Each of the brothers has beaten the world champions twice. The Cards got the winning runs in the ninth when Lefty O'Doul failed to hold Joe Medwick's fly when the sacks were crammed and it went for a triple.

The Pittsburgh Pirates returned to the top of the National League standing and a major share of the credit belonged to Ralph Birkofer, young southpaw.

EASY FOR BUCS

While the veteran Larry French, only other lefthander on the staff, has been slow to round into form, Birkofer has blossomed out as one of the league's most effective elbowers. The Pirates' 13-4 victory over the Phillies yesterday gave the youngster his fifth triumph against only one defeat. He was rapped rather freely, giving nine hits before rain halted the contest at the end of seven innings, but there was no need to bear down after Fred Lindstrom's homer with the bases filled in the fifth had given him a 13-2 lead.

The victory sent the Bucs into the lead by a few percentage points over the Chicago Cubs who blew a 5-4 decision to Brooklyn in the twelfth when Augie Galan let a grounder go through him. Hack Wilson's pinch homer in the ninth paved the way for the Dodger triumph.

The Cincinnati Reds shattered their hard luck streak when they piled up 17 hits behind Paul Derringer to beat the Braves, 10-4, and give the big right hander his first victory of the season.

The Yankees' lead in the American League dwindled further when the Cleveland Indians walloped the pace setters, 5 to 1, behind the three-hit hurling of Lloyd Brown which effectively offset Lou Gehrig's tenth homer.

INDIANS GAIN

The victory left Cleveland only a game and a half behind while Washington moved into a virtual tie with Detroit for third place by trimming the Tigers, 5 to 2, behind Al Crowder's steady hurling.

Rogers Hornsby's Browns made another jump from seventh place to fifth when they scored six runs in the ninth to defeat Philadelphia, 12 to 11, after the A's had scored nine runs in the last two frames. The White Sox also won in the ninth, edging out the Red Hose, 6 to 5, when Henry Johnson walked in the deciding run.

Veteran Illinois Track Coach Quits

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 23.—(AP.)—Harry L. Gill, for 30 years coach of the University of Illinois track team, has put his stop watch in his pocket and retired.

The board of directors of the athletic association voted him a retirement allowance which the university board of trustees approved.

George Huff, director of athletics at Illinois, characterized Gill as one of the greatest track coaches in the country.

Former Star, Now Coach of the Pirates.

Honus Wagner

To the Sports Editor:

I overheard three fellows on a train discussing what they think would be the biggest story that could break in the newspapers. One said he thought a story saying that a sure cure for cancer had been discovered would be it. The second thought that having a telescope big enough to see actual life and people on another planet would be it. The third said the discovery of the art of mental telepathy would be it. I'll string along with the first bird because, while it would be interesting to know what kind of people lived on other planets and plenty interesting to know what other people thought about you, what good would those things really do?

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

HUNTINGTON BACK ON TOP

The worm turned in the Mid-Atlantic League and the victims of the night before became the victors in last evening's hit-and-run performances.

This turnabout sends Huntington back into top position in the standings, the perch the Red Birds have occupied for much of the campaign.

Last night they repulsed Charleston, 6 to 5, while Beckley, which had been holding forth in first place since Huntington's recent exit, was thumped by Zanesville, 9 to 4.

Johnstown, reversed by Springfield Monday night, handed the Greys an 8-to-7 defeat, despite a two-run rally in the ninth on the part of the Ohioans.

Dayton finally got the upper hand over Wheeling, 13 to 10, in an "everybody hits" contest.

Rain played havoc with the Pennsylvania State Association card yesterday, only Benny Bengough's fast-stepping Washington entry and Charleroi seeing action. Playing at Washington, the home nine routed Charleroi, 9 to 5. Third Baseman Johnny Wood leading the attack with three hits in as many trips to the plate.

McKeesport and Jeannette and Greensburg and Monessen were held idle by wet grounds.

BELTZHOOVER SET TO MAKE NEW START

The Beltzhoover club of the City League, under the sponsorship of a new backer and with Bill Hite in charge as manager, makes a new start in league warfare this evening, taking on the crack Parmelee nine at Frick Park.

George Rounds started the season as pilot of the Beltzhoover entry, but the team was not organized until late, with the result that the cream of the district playing talent had been obtained by rival clubs. Hite is to have a free hand in securing playing talent, and likely will devote the remainder of the first half to building his club for the second half campaign.

Manager Dinty Moore, of the Parmelees, will send either Regis Leheny or Harry Powley to the slab in this evening's tussle.

BOOKS MEET MT. OLIVER

The league leading and defending champion Books face a tough rival in this evening's fray in the up and coming Mt. Oliver nine. The game will be played on the new Frederick street grounds. In the league's third game, the Vaughans meet Dormont in the South Hills.

The Raymonds, girls' mushball team, formerly known as the Allenport club, 1933 Monongahela valley champions, are seeking games. Clubs wishing to book this attraction may do so by writing Tom Crowe at Allenport, Pa.

Last evening's City League card was washed out completely and the entire sandlot program suffered to some extent by the rain of the afternoon.

CRAWFORD VICTORS

Both the Crawfords and Homestead Grays, however, saw action. The Crawfords whipped the Philadelphia Stars again, 5 to 2, at Greenlee Field. The Grays added to their impressive string of victories by lacing Evans City, 11 to 3. Strong, Gray right fielder, cracked out a homer.

In the County League, Sharpsburg blanked Verona, 9 to 0. Verhovays won over Brushton, 7 to 0, and the Knapils ... ped the Ambassadors, 6 to 5, in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, while in the North Side League, the Ottie Cochrans won over Millvale, 14 to 4, and Bellevue topped the Gavins, 6 to 5.

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

"She said she called up to ask where she could find Wynant, but this Julia Wolf said she didn't know, so Mrs. J., thinking she's lying and maybe she can get her to tell the truth if she sees her, asks if she can drop in for a minute, and she says sure." He frowned at my right knee.

"Well, she went there and found her. The apartment house people don't remember seeing anybody going in or out of the Wolf apartment, but that's easy. A dozen people could do it without being seen.

The gun wasn't there. There wasn't any signs of anybody busting in, and things in the place hadn't been disturbed any more than I've told you. I mean the place didn't look like it had been frisked. She had on a diamond ring that must've been worth a few hundred and there was thirty-some bucks in her bag. The people there know Wynant and Morelli—both of 'em have been in and out enough—but claim they ain't seen either for some time. The fire-escape window was locked and the fire-escape didn't look like it had been walked on recently." He turned his hands over, palms up, "I guess that's the crop."

"No finger prints?"

"Hers, some belonging to the people that clean up the place, near as we can figure. Nothing any good to us."

No Close Friends

"Nothing out of her friends?"

"She didn't seem to have any—not any close ones."

"How about the—what was his name?—Nunheim who identified her as a friend of Morelli's?"

"He just knew her by sight through seeing her around with Morelli and recognized her picture when he saw it in the paper."

"Who is he?"

"He's all right. We know all about him."

"You wouldn't hold out on me, would you," I asked, "after getting me to promise not to hold out on you?"

Guild said: "Well, if it don't go any further, he's a fellow that does some work for the department now and then."

"Oh."

He stood up. "I hate to say it, but that's just about as far as we've got. You got anything you can help with?"

"No."

He looked at me steadily for a moment. "What do you think of it?"

"That diamond ring, was it an engagement ring?"

"She had it on that finger." After a pause he asked: "Why?"

"It might help to know who bought it for her. I'm going to see Macaulay this afternoon. If anything turns up I'll give you a ring. It looks like Wynant, all right, but—"

He growled good-naturedly, "Uh-huh, but," shook hands with Nora and me, thanked us for our whisky, our lunch, our hospitality, and our kindness in general, and went away.

Might Be Kidding

I told Nora: "I'm not one to suggest that your charm wouldn't make any man turn himself inside out for you, but don't be too sure that guy isn't kidding us."

"So it's come to that," she said. "You're jealous of policemen."

Macaulay's letter from Clyde Wynant was quite a document. It was very badly typewritten on plain white paper and dated Philadelphia, Pa., December 26, 1932. It read:

Dear Herbert:

I am telegraphing Nick Charles who worked for me you will remember some years ago and who is in New York to get in touch with you about the terrible death of poor Julia. I want you to do everything in your power to (a line had been x'd and m'd out here so that it was impossible to make anything at all of it) persuade him to find her murderer. I don't care what it costs—pay him!

Show Letter

Here are some facts I want you to give him outside of all you know about it yourself. I don't think he should tell these facts to the police, but he will know what is best and I want him to have a completely free hand as I have got the utmost confidence in him. Perhaps you had better just show him this letter, after which I must ask you to carefully destroy it.

Here are the facts.

When I met Julia Thursday night to get that $1,000 from her she told me she wanted to quit her job. She said she hadn't been at all well for some time and her doctor had told her she ought to go away and rest, and now that her uncle's estate had been settled she could afford to and wanted to do it. She had never said anything about her health before and I thought she was hiding her real reason and tried to get it out of her, but she stuck to what she had said. I didn't know anything about her uncle dying either. She said it was her Uncle John in Chicago. I suppose that could be looked up if it's important. I couldn't persuade her to change her mind, so she was to leave the last day of the month. She seemed worried or frightened, but she said she wasn't. I was sorry at first that she was going, but then I wasn't, because I had always been able to trust her and now I wouldn't be if she was lying, as I thought she was.

Suspects Ex-Partner

The next fact I want Charles to know is that whatever anybody may think or whatever was true some time ago Julia and I ("are now" was x'd out lightly) were at the time of her murder and had been for more than a year not anything more to each other than employe and employer. This relationship was the result of mutual agreement.

Next, I believe some attempt should be made to learn the present whereabouts of the Victor Roseben with whom we had trouble some years ago inasmuch as the experiments I am now engaged in and in line with those he claimed I cheated him out of and I consider him quite insane enough to have killed Julia in a rage at her refusal to tell him where I could be found.

Fourth, and most important, has my divorced wife been in communication with Roseben? How did she learn I was carrying out the experiments with which he once assisted me?

Fifth, the police must be convinced at once that I can tell them nothing about the murder so that they will take no steps to find me—steps that might lead to a discovery of and a premature exposure of my experiments, which I would consider very dangerous at this time. This can best be avoided by clearing up the mystery of her murder immediately, and that is what I wish to have done.

How to Reach Him

I will communicate with you from time to time and if in the meanwhile anything should arise to make communication with me imperative insert the following advertisement in the newspapers:

Abner. Yes. Bunny.

I will thereupon arrange to get in touch with you.

I hope you sufficiently understand the necessity of persuading Charles to act for me, since he is already acquainted with the Roseben trouble and knows most of the people concerned.

Yours truly,
Clyde Miller Wynant.

I put the letter down on Macaulay's desk and said: "It makes a lot of sense. Do you remember what his row with Roseben was about?"

"Something about changes in the structure of crystals. I can look it up." Macaulay picked up the first sheet of the letter and frowned at it. "He says he got a thousand dollars from her that night. I gave her five thousand for him; she told me that's what he wanted."

"Four thousand from Uncle John's estate?" I suggested.

"Looks like it. That's funny: I never thought she'd gyp him. I'll have to find out about the other money I turned over to her."

"Did you know she'd done a jail sentence in Cleveland on a badger-game charge?"

"No. Had she really?"

Still Refuses Case

"According to the police—under the name of Rhoda Stewart. Where'd Wynant find her?"

He shook his head. "I've no idea."

"Know anything about where she came from originally, relatives, things like that?"

He shook his head again.

"Who was she engaged to?" I asked.

"I didn't know she was engaged."

"She was wearing a diamond ring on that finger."

"That's news to me," he said. He shut his eyes and thought. "No, I can't remember ever noticing an engagement ring." He put his forearms on his desk and grinned over them at me. "Well, what are the chances of getting you to do what he wants?"

"Slim."

"I thought so." He moved a hand to touch the letter. "You know as much about how he feels as I do. What would make you change your mind?"

"I don't—"

"Would it help any if I could persuade him to meet you? Maybe if I told him that was the only way you'd take it—"

"I'm willing to talk to him," I said, "but he'd have to talk a lot straighter than he's writing."

Macaulay asked slowly: "You mean you think he may have killed her?"

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay, calls on Nick and tells him Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting him.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

It is learned Julia was a former sweetheart of a racketeer.

Dorothy appears at Nick's apartment and flashes a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. She is drunk and Nora puts her to bed. Morelli, a gangster, is suspected in Julia's murder.

Nick is shot by Morelli. Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Dorothy, beaten by Mimi, seeks shelter at Nick's, and tells new story about gun. Nick and Nora visit Jorgensens', but leave suddenly. Julia served time for working badger game, Guild tells Nick.

Now go on with Charles' narrative.

POST-WASHINGTON PERIOD OF U. S. HISTORY

John Adams, Vice President during Washington's administration, was elected President of the United States in 1796. His office holding (1797-1801) is remembered for the passage of the Alien and Sedition Laws. The former raised the required time for citizenship from 5 to 14 years and provided also for deportation of undesired aliens by the President. The Sedition Laws violated the First Amendment of the Constitution, by gagging free speech and press. Kentucky and Virginia objected to these laws in resolutions. Diplomatic relations were temporarily broken with France for XYZ affair (French agents wanting bribe from U. S. envoys for U. S. recognition). This almost caused war (1798). George Washington was appointed commander-in-chief of the Army, who accepted—as always—the call of duty (right).

CHARLES MARTEL IN BATTLE OF TOURS (732)

Among the independent countries formed from the disrupted Roman empire, Christianity was the main unifying factor, lending inspiration and power to the defense of Europe against the invading Mohammedans. Islam, the religion founded by Mohammed (570-632) conquered the eastern Patriarchates of Antioch, Alexandria, Jerusalem, reduced that of Byzantium and spread within a century from Arabia to Persia, India, over Africa even into Spain and France, threatening all Christendom.

A turning point of history was the battle of Tours, when Frankish King Charles Martel, descendant of King Clovis, defeated the Moors. (World History)

CANNED EVAPORATED MILK, A VALUABLE FOOD PRESERVE

Evaporated, condensed or canned milk is made by reducing water content of whole milk to about half, in "vacuum pans" (1), heated by steam coils. Vapors are sucked out by a pump to allow boiling at low temp. in order not to destroy valuable enzymes and vitamins. Remainder, the condensed milk, is squeezed by pumps through tiny holes (1/10,000 inch diam.) in a "homogenizer" to shutter fat-globules for permanent, intimate emulsification.

Condensed milk is then filled into tin cans and sealed by automatic machines (2). Sealed cans are placed in a perforated container and with it into the sterilizer to destroy germs (3).

Slight caramelization of the lactose (natural milk sugar) gives characteristic flavor to condensed milk. Properly made, condensed milk is about twice as rich (minimum 8% butterfat) as whole milk, not lacking valuable enzymes and vitamins. It keeps without refrigeration while can is sealed. (Gen. Science)

"VILLAGES OF POTEMKIN"

Potemkin, Prince of Taurida, was a favorite of the Czarina, Katherina the Great of Russia, who made him governor of the Southern provinces, taken from the Turks. Expecting the visit of the empress, Potemkin caused to be erected false villages, like on a stage, where hirelings played the part of the contented peasants. The ragged, starving people had to hide.

Potemkin earned additional favors for his "achievements."

People sometimes manage to win honors by faking accomplishments "Villages of Potemkin," which, however, are short-lived and bound to collapse. Truth can be hidden only temporarily, falsehood, like cheap paint, peals off. Unearned laurels mature finally into disgrace. (Character Building)

AIRPLANE ENGINE

Airplane engines are powerful, reliable, light weight (1½-3 lbs. per h.p.) gasoline motors, mostly air cooled; cylinders often radially arranged for compactness. Medium and low speed planes have 1 h. p. for each 8-20 lbs. weight; high speed planes less weight per h. p. To reduce the weight of the stored fuel, the more economical Diesel motors (operating with higher compression hence greater efficiency) will probably be used in near future. The propeller is directly coupled with the crankshaft of the motor, or reduction gears are between.

NITRIC ACID MANUFACTURE BY ARC PROCESS

Nitric acid (HNO3), besides being made by distilling Chile saltpeter with sulphuric acid, is also produced from air by the electric arc process.

Oxygen and nitrogen of the air, heated by an electric arc to about 3,000° C., unite (only about 5%), beginning slowly at 600° C. Reaction: N2 + O2 = 2NO, which decomposes by cooling. But if cooling is rapid enough, NO is left for reactions: 2NO + O2 = 2NO2 and 2NO2 + H2O = HNO2 + HNO3; also 3HNO2 = HNO3 + 2NO + H2O; again 2NO + O2 = 2NO2, which re-enters the reaction in successive towers. The yield is nitric acid, of about 30% concentration. By distilling it with sulphuric acid it can be further concentrated; by neutralizing it with limestone it forms calcium nitrate, a fertilizer (Norge saltpeter). (Chemistry) 85 B

Hitch-Hiking Safer Than Bystanding

Modern times and capers have knocked the props out from the noble profession of innocent bystanding.

There was a time when a man could do some very fine pedestrian kibitzing. When a wagon balked on the R. R. crossing, we would stand around offering the driver advice that the hoss ignored.

If we saw a mugg wrestling with a policeman we would holler, "Let him up," no matter who was on top. A fire or a burglar chase was always good for some fine collegiate coaching from the side lines.

No more of that now. Life is short, and insurance rates are high. There are too many guerillas popping at the law and too much law cracking back. No place for an innocent bystander.

Walk up to a legal huddle on the corner. What happens? A policeman reaches out of the crowd and says, "And I'll take you along, too."

You answer, "Why, officer! I'm just passing through the town. Seeing a slight disturbance here I stopped to observe it."

"Brother," says the copper, "You've lighted your cigaret on a forest fire. The First, Second and Third National banks have just been neatly skewered and basted by the Joe Magurffle Mob, Incorporated. I've got orders to grab everything that moves, crawls, or commutes within 60 miles of the alphabetical spot."

So you go along with the other suspects. A passage through town is always good for a stopover at the city cold storage dormitory. You may have been innocent when you started, but by the time the evening sun sets on your laundry mark you have had your finger prints painted for the gallery of immortals.

That's why we all keep moving anytime we hear the shrill and sympathetic notes of the police whistle calling to its mate in the twilight and the shadow.

The former innocent bystander knows that the rain falls on the just and the unjust alike and that miscreants, citizens and bystanders are all tarred with the same brush. If he is wise he gets his bunion boxes in motion and makes a bee-line that is seven miles long from the honey to the hive.

Farewell to innocent bystanding. It was fun. But curiosity barbecued the cat. When there is trouble distilling in the neighborhood, the innocent bystander gets in some high knee-action and carries the mail.

He's better off tip-toeing through the tulips and chinning himself on the far horizon. A policeman's life is not a happy one and he doesn't want some rubber-nosed citizen gumming up the details. Keep moving or he'll take you in too.

No Entangling Alliance!

Co-Operation with Britain in the Orient Would Be At the Risk of War.

The British Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, had something to say a few days ago in the House of Commons about the tension in the Far East, arising from Japan's aggressions against China.

He is reported in the dispatches to have made it clear that Great Britain will take no action against any treaty violator without the full co-operation of the United States.

Co-operation in what?

Co-operation to what extent?

Sir John Simon declared that:

"Economic sanctions (pressure against a treaty violator) cannot be applied without the risk of war, and we (Great Britain) cannot undertake any system of sanctions or effective action unless the United States co-operates."

It is thus clear that Sir John Simon wants the United States to co-operate with Great Britain in economic sanctions, which he admits "cannot be applied without the risk of war."

In other words, to be perfectly plain, Great Britain wants the United States to co-operate in war or in the risk of war.

That is the trouble with all these European nations. They want the United States to CO-OPERATE in WAR or IN THE RISK OF WAR.

France wants a protective pact, which means that the United States will CO-OPERATE IN WAR OR IN THE RISK OF WAR against any nation which may threaten France.

If the United States is once involved in such a compact, the United States is SURE TO GET IN THE WAR.

The course of France is habitually provocative and is already arbitrary enough to invite war at any time, and with the possible support of the United States behind her, there is no question that the autocratic action to which she is so prone, would inevitably involve Europe in war, and also involve the United States in another European war—for no other reason than to protect France.

We are asked to put teeth in the Kellogg Pact. Teeth in the Kellogg Pact would be bayonets. This policy means nothing other than the use of force.

The European nations perennially seek to involve us in war or the risk of war, and it is always in THEIR WARS, for THEIR militaristic purposes and for THEIR selfish interest.

We are asked to join the League of Nations.

We are asked to join the League Court.

We are asked in every possible way to involve ourselves in wars or in the risk of wars.

OUR DUTY TO OUR PEOPLE IS TO MIND OUR OWN BUSINESS.

Our duty to the world is to show the nations of the world, by precept and example, the way to peace, and the way to the progress and prosperity which peace alone assures.

Europe has LEARNED NOTHING from the last great war.

The world has NOT been made safe for democracy. It is more despotic today than it has been for two centuries.

Nearly every European nation has lost its liberties and succumbed to tyranny.

In nearly every European nation, the welfare of the individual is sacrificed to the militaristic purposes of the state.

THERE IS NO INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY.

Every citizen is merely a cog in a militaristic machine.

The duty of our government is to preserve the liberties of its people, to restore the prosperity which was largely destroyed by the late war, and to promote peace and happiness in our own land.

We cannot co-operate in wars or in the risk of wars.

Let England pursue its imperialistic policies alone.

Let Europe pursue its militaristic purposes alone.

LET THE UNITED STATES FOLLOW THE PATHS OF PEACE AND DEVOTE ITSELF TO THE WELFARE OF ITS OWN PEOPLE.

'Prevention First'

The Proposed State Psychiatric Hospital Has Become Indispensable.

No matter what the condition of one's finances, the sensible person who is dangerously ill will not neglect medical treatment because of the cost.

Pennsylvania, although confronted with an acute situation in the number of its mental patients for whom accommodations are not available in the state hospitals, has been deterred by the cost from making provision for them.

The matter is brought to attention anew by the demand of the Public Charities Association that the proposed State Psychiatric Hospital in Pittsburgh be built. The University of Pittsburgh has given the commonwealth a site at the corner of DeSoto and O'Hara streets, and the architects' designs have been prepared. For financial reasons the state hesitates to build. Meanwhile the waiting lists at the asylums of mental patients who might be saved from the necessity of commitment, if the Psychiatric Hospital were functioning, become longer.

The Psychiatric Hospital is planned to save people from becoming hopelessly insane by giving them preventive treatment in the early stages of nervous disorders. Pennsylvania has no such hospital, but Michigan, Massachusetts, Maryland and New York have, and their usefulness is generally recognized by the medical profession.

The Public Charities Association says:

"The construction of the Western State Psychiatric Hospital in Pittsburgh will constitute an important and vital step in the realization of the final stage of the objective: 'Much for care, more for cure, most for prevention.'"

Senator Frank J. Harris sponsored the project, and the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania has indorsed it. The general public should join in the demand by calling on candidates for the Legislature to pledge themselves to work for the construction of this much-needed institution.

The Theater Bombings

The Outrages Look Like the Threats of a Vicious Labor Racket.

While considerable mystery surrounds the explosion of phosphorus bombs in motion picture theaters in Pittsburgh and nearby towns, the outrages give every indication of being threats in a vicious labor racket. Pittsburgh cannot afford to let such a lawless racket fasten its clutches on the community.

Entirely apart from the motives for the bombings, the perpetrators should be tracked relentlessly and prosecuted because of the injuries that have been suffered by many persons, as well as the property damage.

These bombings have been going on now for several weeks. It reflects seriously on the efficiency of the city detectives that they have not put a stop to them.

Linking Them Up

Tin from Bolivia and the Straits Settlements, coffee from Brazil and the Caribbean shores, rubber from the Dutch East Indies—these are bulk commodities which America imports.

In exchange, our farms and our factories have goods to sell, and much of our exported produce is bulk merchandise.

Our railroads and motor lines are best adapted to carrying inland the classes of merchandise which pay the higher freight rates. On the other hand, world experience has proved that water transport is cheapest and best for the heavy, slow moving bulk commodities.

Consequently, development of our inland waterways—both canals and navigable rivers—will promote economic division of our carrying trade, water transport for the heavy goods and railroads for the choice freight traffic.

That is why the Federal Government should forge ahead with development of our waterways system as a part of its Public Works program.

CALIFORNIA DAY BY DAY

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—The beach homes at Santa Monica, from Marion Davies' Taj Mahal to lesser minarets, are the apotheosis of seaside luxury. Along the shore in sardine-box compactness many cinema stars have their residences and relax when off location.

Each mansion has its private strip of beach. We dropped in last night on Townsend Netcher and Constance Talmadge. Next door live Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyons, their patios saparated by a white ballustrade. In the moonlight the languorous courts suggest a musical comedy setting.

Entrances are through narrow hallways, paralleling the garages. Butlers in the areas have attained the opulence of owning their own airplanes. The residents live mostly in de luxe beach costumes, bizarre pajamas, bathing suits and silken jersies.

There are tennis and squash courts and private beaches illuminated at night by a push of the button. When not breasting the breakers, the Santa Monicans loll in the sand, play backgammon or toss the handball. Salamandering touches a splendor not even the Riviera rivals.

* * *

Santa Monica is usually shuttered and tomb-like after 10 p. m. The early studio calls, if nothing else, preclude late parties. The eternal sweep of the salt winds promotes a healthy exhaustion that brings sound sleep aided, of course, by the ceaseless flounce of the ocean. A grand spot.

The ubiquitous Louella Parsons probably knows more moving picture celebrities, executive and stellar, than any person in the world. A remarkable lady who has gained and held confidence of every star. Even when the forked tongue of scandal touches them they reverse the usual incommunicado proceedings and phone Louella first. I remember Miss Parsons' column on the old Morning Telegraph, when the movies were about two jumps from the nickleodean, yet so intense was her enthusiasm she made rather drab material sparkle.

The Wilshire district is a paradise for the leisurely window shopper. The big displays are not so close together and one may feast the eye awhile, saunter on and have space for rumination. This morning my wife and I came on a magnificent dressing gown spotlighted all alone in a large window against a solid background of white plush. "That," said the clerk with a Mede and Persian flourish, "is especially made for—" and he named a great lover of the screen. He explained in awesome tones a duplication would be lese majeste. Somehow I went out feeling an old flour sack with cut-out arm holes would be the proper dressing gown for me. Such is the suffocating grandeur of Hollywood.

Just now a houseman, with a priestly tonsure of thin, grey locks, came into the hotel room quietly to perform a requested service and fade away. Nowhere have I ever read a panegyric to this self-effacing guild. Every houseman I have seen—and most of my life has been spent in hotels—moves about with hang-dog humility. He darts into shadows at a guest's approach. Almost without exception they are kindly past-fifty men with high sense of family devotion, puttering about inglorious chores and doing as much for the comfort of patrons as any other employe, and without extended palms.

There are few cities where the process of orientation is so swift. One feels perfectly at home in a few hours. Before breakfast today, for instance, dinner invitations from W. R. Sheehan, Frank Craven, Miriam Hopkins, Edgar Selwyn and Earl Anthony. Retiring old settlers from the middlewest take root as rapidly, largely because California's welcome to the stranger has become an unconscious effort. It may be Rotarian rigamarole, Babbitry or what you will, but it holds strangers with hooks of steel. We laugh at this Chamber of Commerce effort, yet where is there more obvious flattery and insincere carpet kissing than in Paris? That is merely the babble of Babbitry in another tongue and who having visited Paris, does not want to go back? Paree! Paree! Los Angeles executes the same hocus pocus.

I went down to Ted Cook's at Laguana today to add my usual jet of comedy to the beaches. In a bathing suit I take on the gelatinous goofiness of Stan Laurel, plus the physical contour of the anaemic Australian ant eater. Dogs bark, children cry, horses try to bolt up shade trees and smart alecs cry "What is it—a—gag?" when I pass by. And to give them all their money's worth I never go near the water.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Something Young Husbands Should Know

Marriages would last longer—so would husbands—if all prospective grooms were made to realize one vital fact about their brides; namely—

THERE IS NOTHING THAT WILL GET THE DEAR-LITTLE-WOMAN-AT-HOME'S GOAT MORE SURELY THAN BEING CONSIDERED THE DEAR-LITTLE-WOMAN-AT-HOME.

I do not know who invented all the gentle, sentimental theories about Woman's Sphere; but you may be sure of this:

It wasn't a female!

Don't girls want homes?

Don't they wish to become wives and mothers?

Don't they enjoy having families?

They certainly do. But they also enjoy doing a great many other things. And it burns them up when this fact isn't recognized.

Every young man cherishes an ideal of a loyal and lovely mate who "hasn't an idea outside her family"—

BUT EVERY YOUNG MAN WHO HAS HAD THE ILL FORTUNE TO MARRY SUCH A CREATURE WANTS TO STRANGLE HER WITHIN THREE MONTHS.

It isn't any more "normal" for the average young woman to find complete satisfaction within the four walls of her home than it would be for the average man.

And it's quite as natural for a devoted wife to go berserk and long to commit mass murder, if she has too monotonous a diet of home chores, as it would be for a devoted husband.

Somewhere there is a poem whose theme is these two lines:

"Every woman is a wild, wild thing—

"Deep inside."

There is the simple truth about "the gentler sex." Women are naturally no gentler than men—no more timid—no more addicted to firesides and cosy corners. To the contrary.

WOMEN ARE THE EXCITED, THE CURIOUS, THE ADVENTUROUS SEX.

Startling as this statement will seem to complacent husbands, Family Life is as artificial a habit for women as for men. The primitive mother was as much a gypsy as the primitive father. Housekeeping, at best, was originally a catch-as-catch-can affair, in which Papa did quite as much catching as Mamma.

Savage females worked as laboriously as savage males, but their work was also as diversified. Mixing bowls and sewing baskets were not considered exclusively feminine perquisites in 1934 B. C.; nor are they today in many a primitive tribe where Big Braves often cook, weave and shush the baby while the Missis builds, digs or gabbles with the other girls.

So there's nothing that makes the Dear Little Woman at Home madder than to regard her as a Dear Little Woman at Home—and nothing else but. She can't explain just why it makes her mad . . . or why she feels that the Big Boy is getting all the breaks by going down to the office . . . and that she Has Been Done Dirt by being left at home. But she's sure something's wrong somewhere.

Something is! All these distinctions and barriers which have arisen between men and women are wrong. Men and women aren't primarily He's and She's with separate and distinct niches in life.

Such notions may pamper Male Egotism and Female Laziness—BUT THEY RAISE THE DEVIL WITH HUMAN COMPANIONSHIP.

For men and women are, primarily, just PEOPLE—with identical impulses, identical interests. And civilization will never get going in a big way until we realize this fact.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

The Limelight!

"Success" has been described as the point at which a woman stops worrying for fear she'll be talked about, and begins worrying for fear she WON'T be talked about.

* * *

A "popular society girl" these days, is one who has managed to get her picture in the rotogravure sections of the newspapers almost as often as a gun-moll. This requires daring, originality and a good press agent; but the modern slogan is "The LIMELIGHT, at any price!"

It is not as easy for a Perfect Lady to get "talked about" as it was in Mother's day, when a girl could get reams of free publicity merely by smoking a cigaret on the promenade deck of an ocean liner. Or when a society woman had only to divorce ONE husband in order to be a nine-day-scandal.

* * *

In these days, a girl has to do something awfully silly or awfully shocking, in order to make the Front Page. There is so much competition! Being married in an airplane and parachuting down, getting arrested for speeding or eloping with the chauffeur are all just old stuff! Ho-hum! How tame!

* * *

It is hard to believe that there was a time, when an actress got pages and pages of publicity, merely by taking a milk-bath. And when a society leader startled the world by staging that famous "monkey-dinner," to which all her friends brought their simian pets.

* * *

Nowadays, such dull conservative items could never compete as "news" with the romances and divorces of the movie colony, the engagements and disengagements of our Broadway favorites, or the latest outbreaks of the Nudists.

* * *

A gal would have to do something positively startling to be able to crowd the picturesque Peggy Joyce, and the irrepressible Nila Cram Cook off the news pages. And if she succeeded, there would still be the loves of the Millens and the Dillingers to compete with.

* * *

This is a pretty sad day for the girls who want to do something sensational—because there doesn't seem to be anything MORE sensational to do. "Do and dare!" may be your motto—but there is nothing up to date, that has not already been done or dared in the name of "publicity."

* * *

Somebody might write a book on "How to Be a Scandal in Your Own Home Town." But before the book was off the presses, its "57 rules for shocking the neighbors" would probably be "old stuff."

Dear Old Grandmother, sitting by the fireside—with her cigaret and her copy of "Anthony Adverse"—may not understand why a girl wants to be "talked about."

* * *

But, Grandmother (Bless her dyed hairs!) considered it an insult to be stared at. Whereas, nowadays a girl regards it as a reflection NOT to be stared at. LIMELIGHT! That's what they all want!

Wars Are Not Caused By Armaments

By James T. Williams, Jr.

AGITATION has been revived recently on both sides of the Atlantic about the international traffic in arms and munitions of war and about their private manufacture.

The spread of all such propaganda at this time appears to have the following objectives:

First, to divert popular attention from the breakup of the so-called disarmament conference at Geneva—an international farce that seems to be nearing the end.

Second, to popularize throughout the United States a European scheme for the production of arms and munitions of war that would give the European nations and Japan a tremendous advantage over the United States in the event of trouble either in the Atlantic or Pacific.

Third, to continue the Old World propaganda that swept over this country like a tidal wave during the Great War and still deceives so many Americans by subjecting them to the hallucination that armaments are the great cause of war.

* * *

Folly of Obsession Recently Exposed

GEORGE WASHINGTON was well aware that such was not the case when he said:

"One of the most effectual means of preserving peace is to be prepared for war."

The utter folly of the obsession that the wars of the world have been caused by armaments was exposed in a recent article contributed to the Literary Digest by no less an eminent authority on law, diplomacy and the history of nations than John Bassett Moore.

This eminent authority points out that Article VIII of the Covenant of the League of Nations illustrates "the propensity of the human mind to seek, in glib phrases, a refuge from its disinclination and failure to grapple the stern realities."

This article of the league covenant thus begins:

"The members of the league recognize that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety by common action of international obligations."

The two false implications in this provision of the league covenant are thus set forth by Dr. Moore:

"The first is that national armaments have been a prime, if not the chief cause of war; the second, that nations, as regards the 'lowest point' in armaments 'consistent with national safety,' can be brought to accept, without mental reservation, the judgement of others.

"I am not here expressing thoughts first suggested by recent events. In a volume published more than 20 years ago, I ventured to affirm that the connection between armaments and military conquests had been misconceived and greatly exaggerated, and that questions of war and peace depend, and will continue to depend, 'not so much upon the size of military establishments as upon the cultivation of the spirit and habit of justice, of self control, of reciprocal recognition of rights and of forebearance; and that, if these things were not practiced, all plans for the preservation of peace would 'prove to be as so much waste paper.'

"The truth of these statements is demonstrated by the history of civil wars, as well as that of international wars. No one could attribute either our own Civil War or our participation in various wars, including the last one, to our excessive armaments. Neither the possession of great armaments by others nor the lack of them by ourselves sufficed to deter us from going in."

President Indorses Washington View

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in calling upon the American Congress to build up the Navy to treaty strength, put his administration on record as believing that George Washington knew what he was talking about and that John Bassett Moore has read aright the lesson of history.

The President's message to Congress, had it followed the writings of Washington and the other framers of the Constitution and of John Bassett Moore and other sound interpreters of international law and history of diplomacy, would be a much stronger state paper.

The message, however, seems to have been based upon Geneva propaganda that wars are caused by armament rather than by racial hatreds, over-population and national ambitions for economic and territorial expansion.

The fact that the United States has allowed its Navy to sink to third place and its Army to seventeenth place is not a guarantee of peace, as the President would be the first to admit. On the contrary, it is a grave menace to our national security, European and Asiatic propaganda to the contrary notwithstanding.

America's Cup, Most Prized Trophy in Sport, Though Not Intrinsically Valuable, Is Again in Competition.

By Edwin C. Hill

A SQUAT and ugly old bowl, made of 134 ounces of silver, 27 inches high, 36 inches around in the middle and 24 inches around at the base—such is the America's cup. Melted down it might bring as much as $30 from a junkman. Yet, over a stretch of 80 years, men have paid out twelve million dollars to vie for it, and that fact alone would make the old mug, as Tom Lipton called it, the most prized trophy in the history of sport.

Once more it is in competition. England tries again for the fifteenth time to recover the cup which the old schooner America picked up on August 22, 1851, when she outsailed the pride of Britain's yachting fleet in a race around the Isle of Wight. A bottle of champagne is broken over a blue steel hull, the blocks are removed and down the way she slides to hit the water at Gosport. She is the Endeavour, the new challenger.

The Rainbow May Represent America

UP in New England, the new defender, Rainbow, is nearing completion, built by Harold Vanderbilt and a syndicate. It was no easy task, even for Mr. Vanderbilt and his associates to organize the pool for the building of the Rainbow, and even after the expenses of several hundreds of thousands of dollars, it is not at all settled that Rainbow will be the sloop to race against the Endeavour. The new defender must first prove herself and win the right to represent America against two other sloops, the Yankee and the Weetamoe, which were built in 1930 to race against the last of the Shamrocks.

Aside from the yachtsmen, we do not get unduly excited these days over the international cup races. For the public in general, the edge has worn off. But the time was when it appeared that the fate of the two nations, the United States and England, was at stake, while two trim yachts raced 15 miles off Sandy Hook. Why, in 1895, feeling ran so high that some people thought there would be a war. That was the year that Lord Dunraven charged that the Yankees were up to all kinds of chicanery, causing him to withdraw his Valkyrie III, after she had been defeated three times by the yacht Defender.

It took that grand old sportsman, Sir Thomas Lipton, to restore an era of good feeling, coming along as he did, three years later with his first Shamrock and returning four times, the last time in 1930, in five futile and gallant attempts to lift the cup.

This year, England sends Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, a 45-year-old manufacturer of airplanes, as the owner and skipper of the Endeavour. He is an old hand at adventure, one of the pioneer fliers, and an early counterpart of our own Lindbergh, which distinction he won at the age of 21, when he flew across the English Channel and 150 miles into France.

Mrs. Sopwith Aboard as Timekeeper

AND with him on the Endeavour, as a member of the crew, when she races this fall off Brenton Reef Lightship, will be Mrs. Sopwith, the first woman to ship aboard an America's cup yacht. Some have been guests, but Mrs. Sopwith will be at her husband's side holding the watch as timekeeper. And this is a most important job, especially at the start, while the boats are jockeying for an advantage.

Furthermore, Mrs. Sopwith's participation will add a touch of color to the races, giving them that human touch which might have passed on with Sir Thomas Lipton. Yes, old Tom has gone. Young Tom comes in his place, and if he is of the same stuff as the old baronet, perhaps this fall he will sail home with the 134 ounces of silver.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

A Hill in May

O, for a blossomy hill in May,
Swept by a wind that blows care away!
A hill so steep that you climb with a gasp
And catch at a sapling with frantic clasp
Just as you pull yourself up to its crest,
There to be master of east and west
There to be lord of the north and the south,
And to glimps the river winding forth
Out of a fold in the hills below,
Bright as a ribbon you see it flow!
There to lie, prone in the waving grass
And gaze at the sky where white clouds pass;
To catch the sudden flash of a wing
As a lark goes by, too swift to sing!
Never a fear there and never an ill,
O, for the blossomy breast of a hill!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why envy the fortunate persons who are able to avoid much of the rigors of northern winters by going to sunny climates?

You would get a lot more out of life if you would think less and complain less of what they are able to do.

Why not be philosophical?

If it's something you can't do, why not be resigned to the fact?

If it is necessary for you to remain in a locality, don't complain about its disadvantages, but accept them sensibly.

Have you ever thought how fortunate you are to have a constitution that will stand severe weather?

Suppose you were delicate and obliged to live in sunny sections for health's sake.

In such circumstances, wouldn't you feel you had a heavy cross to bear?

Acclimated to the section where you have spent most of your life, you need what it produces to feel well and happy.

Many persons financially able to visit the beauty spots of the world prefer to stay where they've spent the greater part of their lives.
